McGovern Radiates Confidence, But ...

Historic Victory Seen for Nixon

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Once considered one of the great losers of United States political history, Richard Nixon could be headed for a victory of historic proportions in Tuesday's presidential election.

The most bullish of the president's Republican advisers happily foresee their candidate winning a majority of votes in every one of the 50 states. Their principal fear is that voter apathy and cynicism will keep potential Nixon supporters at home.

Democratic nominee George McGovern, insisting steadfastly that he will beat Nixon, has had few people to share his optimism. A Las Vegas bookie has quoted 1,000-to-1 odds against him. Even his home state of South Dakota seems doubtful.

The polls have said Nixon is likely to attract voters of almost every stripe, including many who had long been given up as lost to the Republican party — union members and college students, Jews and Roman Catholics, the hungry poor and the limousine liberals, independents and lifelong Democrats, the solid South and the industrial North.

And all of this although Nixon has barely budged from the White House to show the colors, and has not allowed McGovern's name to cross his lips.

A typical one-day campaign swing recently to the wealthier suburbs of New York City was nearly a triumphal procession for Nixon.

But only "nearly," because among the 400,000 people who lined the motorcade route and the 7,000 ecstatic Long Island Republicans at an evening pep talk, there were enough dissenters to give the president and his supporters a taste of ashes.

The dissenters were overshadowed by those who had come to cheer the president, but there were always enough of them to warn Nixon that his re-election cannot be assured until the ballots have been counted.

One held up for Nixon to see a sign that said simply, "Remember Dewey" — a reminder of Harry Truman's come-from-behind victory over the excessively confident Thomas Dewey in 1948.

Several protesters had cards spelling out a statement Nixon made in October, 1968, while campaigning for his first term: "Those who have had a chance for four years and could not produce peace

No Deadlines U.S. Tells North Viets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Thursday night that "we are ready to conclude" a Vietnam peace settlement but "we are not going to allow an election deadline or any other kind of deadline to force us into an agreement which would be only a temporary truce and not a lasting peace."

In his first nationally-televised political broadcast of the United States campaign, Nixon said: "We are going to sign the agreement when the agreement is right, not one day before—and when the agreement is right, we are going to sign, without one day's delay.

● Ceasefire talk too sudden for planners. Page 8

"We have reached a substantial agreement on most of the terms of the settlement," Nixon said. "The settlement we are ready to conclude would accomplish the basic objectives" he presented on May 8—a return of all prisoners of war, "a ceasefire throughout Indochina" and the right of the South Vietnamese to determine their own future "without having a Communist government or a coalition government imposed on them against their will," he said.

Without giving details, Nixon said "there are still some issues to be resolved."

In Paris, the North Vietnamese said there will be no further negotiations with United States envoy Henry Kissinger until the United States commits itself to signing the draft Vietnam peace agreement.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong speakers denounced the Nixon administration for what they called "a breach of promises" in not signing the accord by Oct. 31, the deadline set by Hanoi.

The South Vietnamese government warned at the 165th weekly session of the peace conference that it would refuse to recognize any ceasefire agreement concluded against its will.

North Vietnamese forces led by tanks overran a South Vietnamese border camp Thursday in the central highlands of South Vietnam. Hanoi announced it had "no other choice than to step up the fight on all fronts."

Trudeau Opts To Carry On

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced Thursday night that his Liberal government will attempt to carry on in office despite Monday's federal election dead heat between the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives.

Trudeau said he will ask Governor-General Roland Michener to call Parliament into session "as soon as possible" so the government can seek a vote of confidence in the House of Commons.

The prime minister declined to predict when the new Parliament will convene, but political observers calculate that it may not be until January.

The announcement put an end, at least for now, to a political impasse resulting from the election count which gave the Conservatives and Liberals 109 seats each in the Commons.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield immediately accused Trudeau's government of displaying an "arrogant desire" to cling to power. Stanfield earlier had called on Trudeau to resign and make way for a Conservative government.

NDP leader David Lewis pledged support for the government provided it does not introduce legislation his party judges unacceptable.

The NDP would back measures to reduce unemployment and the cost of living and legislation to deal with foreign ownership. It also would fight for an end to "corporate ripoff" — the term Lewis uses for extended tax concessions to large corporations.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette forecast that Trudeau's administration will be able to remain in office at least 1½ years thanks to the support of Lewis.

Until Thursday afternoon, it appeared that the government party would end up with one seat fewer than the Conservatives. But an official count in the Quebec constituency of Drummond took a seat away from Social Credit and gave it to Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin by five votes.

A judicial recount, required

Barrett Backs Liberal Move

Premier Dave Barrett said late Thursday he believes Trudeau made a "constitutionally sound" decision to call Parliament into session. But he added it will be up to the House of Commons to make the "ultimate decision" as whether or not it will support his Liberal government.

Barrett repeated his earlier remarks to reporters that he wasn't concerned whether the Liberals or Progressive Conservatives form the next federal government. And he added NDP national leader David Lewis is now in a position of the most important politician in the nation who could become "the Canadian statesman."

"I would expect that (Lewis) would use this position wisely to support legislation which will be for the benefit of all the people of Canada," Barrett said.

The premier added he felt B.C.-Ottawa relations would remain amiable no matter who heads the government and said he was still of the opinion it would be unwise to rush into an early federal election in an effort to resolve the stalemate created by voters last Monday.

Russians Set Off Mighty N-Device

UPPSALA, Sweden (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday exploded underground a nuclear device in the "megaton class" and comparable to the U.S. Amchitka test, the Uppsala Seismological Institute reported.

Prof. Markus Baath, head of the Swedish institute, said the size of the nuclear charge could be between one and five megatons, or possibly even bigger. One megaton is equivalent in explosive force to one million tons of TNT.

The explosion in the Semipalatinsk testing area in Siberia was registered at 1:27 a.m. GMT Thursday. It measured 7.1 on the Richter earthquake scale, Baath said.

"It was a very powerful explosion," he said. "Today's test is without doubt in the megaton class and comparable to the Amchitka test a year ago."

Baath said the Soviet test was one of the most powerful, or possibly the most powerful, carried out in Semipalatinsk.

"Only two previous tests have been of comparable size," he said. "They occurred Jan. 15, 1965, and Nov. 30, 1969, both with a magnitude of 7.0 on the Richter scale."

The Soviets have carried out seven major nuclear tests of a military nature previously this year, Baath said. "But there may have been many more minor ones which cannot be detected from the outside," he added.

During all of 1971 the Russians conduted 10 nuclear tests believed to be military.

The Russians are also using nuclear devices in an area north and east of the Caspian Sea from time to time. But scientists believe these explosions are part of a peaceful project using nuclear power for a major water irrigation program.

Separatists Hit French Office

ZARAGOZA, Spain (UPI) — Basque separatists bombed the French consulate Thursday in an apparent act of vengeance for a recent crackdown on Basque extremists living in France.

Police said consul Roger Tour, 62, was critically injured and two members of his staff less seriously wounded. The bombing caused a fire which gravely damaged the downtown building housing the consulate.

German Talks In Difficulties

BERLIN — East and West German negotiations on a treaty of reconciliation ran into new difficulties Thursday, the West German negotiator said. "We truly are in real trouble," West German State Secretary Egon Bahr said as he left the East German cabinet office building in East Berlin.

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — United States space agency officials gave the go-ahead Thursday for Apollo 17 preparations to proceed on schedule toward a Dec 6 launching to the moon.

To Avoid Canadian Fishermen

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)— Experiments are under way to develop a "left-turning" salmon that will avoid British Columbia fishermen as they head to sea from the Strait of Juan de Fuca, turn south and keep Washington fishermen happy.

"Young chinook and coho salmon migrating seaward from Puget Sound are largely behaving as if there is a right-turn only sign posted at Cape Flattery," the state fisheries department says.

"Although this is fine for the large Canadian troll fleet plying the waters off the west coast of Vancouver Island, it is not so good for the citizens of Washington state.

"Very encouraging" evidence indicating the department may be able to produce south-migrating coho from Puget Sound resulted from fin-marking experiments at the Cowlitz River salmon hatchery, the agency said.

The stocks of coho can be raised at the hatchery — one the Toutle River stock which has been used successfully in Columbia River hatcheries for years, and the other a later-running native coho, the department said.

Several years ago, the agency said, thousands of young coho of these groups were reared, fin-marked and released from the hatchery.

"Some fascinating results came from the ocean catches of the marked coho," the agency said. "About two-thirds of the Toutle coho were taken off Oregon and California, whereas two-thirds of the native Cowlitz fish were caught off the Washington coast. The experiment was repeated, and the same thing happened again."

Since ocean distribution of coho from the Cowlitz hatchery apparently can be influenced by stock selection, "why can't the same be done from Puget Sound?" the department asked.

"We believe there is a very good chance that this can be done and experiments are now under way to discover or develop left-turnng coho salmon from Puget Sound hatcheries.

"South-migrating Puget Sound coho salmon and increased emphasis on north-migrating Columbia River fish should help to insure the quality of our coastal salmon fishing," the agency said.

NDP Discloses Rules For Tobacco Products

The provincial government Thursday made public new regulations passed by the NDP cabinet covering labelling, packaging and sale of tobacco products.

The government repealed the tobacco advertising ban at a special session held in the last two weeks of October and passed new legislation to give itself a measure of control over companies distributing and selling tobacco products.

The new regulations state that beginning Dec. 1 all cigarette packages sold in B.C. must carry a warning message.

Three forms of warning have been approved for use in this province:

● Warning: Cigarette smoking is harmful to you.

● Warning: The Department of National Health and Welfare advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked.

● Warning: The Surgeon-General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health.

The choice of warning forms will permit the sale of American cigarettes in this province after the regulations come into effect.

On the same date, Dec. 1 next, cigarette vending machines are also required to display the warning in one of the approved forms and beginning Jan. 1, 1973, all premises where tobacco products are sold will come under the same provision.

The enabling legislation passed at the special session specifically prohibits billboard advertising of tobacco products.

Romania Explosion Kills 36 Miners

VIENNA (UPI) — A mine explosion in Romania killed 36 persons and injured 12 others Thursday, Agerpres, the official Romanian news ageney said.

Gorde Hunter
Newspapers

THERE IS absolutely no sense in denying the ills and faults of newspapers. My business is fraught with many ailments, some of them visible to the reading public, some invisible, but certainly known to those in the industry.

But having worked in this business for a number of newspapers during the past 27 years, I can tell you flat out there is a lot more to recommend our daily papers than there is to criticize. I am a little bit up to here with the bleats of a Senator Keith Davey, a man who criticizes certain aspects of journalism without having first-hand knowledge of same.

I AM ALSO ticked off with those others who take the pot shots without checking their facts or without first-hand working knowledge of the subject. Ross Lambertson, a member of Camosun College's social sciences department, took a small run at the press in a recent address.

He said, for instance, that letters to the editor are concessions — "not an effective means for the individual to question the policy of the newspapers."

Concession? Hardly. As a matter of brutal fact, some of the efforts that cross the editor's desk are worthy of what they receive — a fast trip to the nearest waste receptacle. Editors, in fact, would give their eyeteeth to get higher quality correspondence.

THE POLICY of a newspaper is the newspaper's own prerogative — that prerogative not being open to debate. Argue for or against the policy, fine, but leave the newspaper the democratic right to set that policy.

Lambertson said it is obviously cheaper for Canadian newspapers to import American syndicated columns than to use Canadian columnists. The argument being the American writers tell us nothing about Canada.

My defence will be that of this paper's policy, and Lambertson's backside is out a foot. The Daily Colonist does indeed make use of syndicated column material — the witty and irreverent Art Buchwald, the delightful Erma Bombeck, the sob sister Ann Landers, the brilliant Sydney Harris and the movie specialist, James Bacon. Readership on all happens to be very high, regardless of the fact they are "imports."

LAST TIME I looked Jim Tang still rated as a Victorian of long standing and Jim does a pretty thorough column writing job in our sport pages. Alex Merriman is our resident outdoors columnist and Merriman's fame has spread far beyond the bottom chunk of this island.

Bruce Lowther does a six-day-per-week shot as a television columnist and does it with verve, humor and a dash of vitriol. Nobody is more local than Lowther.

Dorothy Wrotnowski gives the local column angle to matters about women and Ian Street writes knowingly about happenings in the legislature, as does George Gibson in his business column.

Y'r obedient servant hammers this column out three times a week. Like it or knock it, it's still local.

ADD SUCH Canadian columnists as Frank Lowe, Lubor Zink and Richard Jackson and I fail to see where readers of The Daily Colonist are being short-changed re Canadian content.

Each and every working day I manage to read seven or eight Canadian newspapers and one or two American newspapers. I'll match my ability to know what is good or bad in a paper against any layman critic; and I say our paper does an extremely competent job that compares very favorably with any paper its size either here or in the United States. Amend the last part — does a better job than most U.S. papers of comparable size.

"WE HAVE no guarantee newspapers are really concerned with the pursuit of truth," Lambertson further charged. "They are generally concerned with profit."

Lambertson failed to make a necessary distinction. The papers are concerned with profit and under a free-enterprise system that concern doesn't rate as a dirty word.

But those charged with turning out the daily offering — the managing editor, the news editor, city editors, wire editors, deskmen, reporters, photographers, couldn't care less about profits. They work on salary, their job is building a good product — bucks don't enter into it with them. They are, I assure you, concerned with good reporting, truthful reporting.

SENATOR Davey advocated a national press council. Most editors were against the idea, although there were some in favor. The major drawback to a national press council, as I see it, is the built-in fear of government censorship through a government-appointed body. Countries governed by either left-or right-wing dictatorships have such press supervision and restraint.

Happily, in Canada you still pay your dime in the knowledge no government body is force-feeding you what they want you to read.

Mistakes we'll continue to make. Temper that knowledge, however, with the fact most ink-stained wretches in the business try to do a workmanlike, honest job.

A Faulty Occlusion?

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: At times when my granddaughter yawns, her jaws lock. Last week it was an hour before she got relief. Her family doctor doesn't know what to do for her.—Mrs. H.M.S.

The first step would be to see the dentist. About 25 per cent of problems of locking or clucking of the jaws are due to faulty occlusion or "bite"—the teeth don't come together properly, and the jaw gets out of alignment to compensate for it. Result: the jaw joint can give trouble. Dentists can correct the biting surfaces to get rid of this trouble.

In other cases there can be a weakness of the jaw muscles on one side. Exercises—moving the jaw, and biting against resistance—frequently help.

Finally, an X-ray of the jaw joint is in order, to make sure there is no deformity.

The situation should be checked soon, since recurring dislocation of the jaw can cause a stretching of the joint capsule of the jaw and lead to frequent discomfort as time goes on.

In older folks (which I assume your granddaughter is not) arthritic changes can be a factor in such troubles.

Trudeau Decides To Carry On

when there is a winning margin of fewer than 25 votes, could once again reverse the result in Drummond. Recounts scheduled in six or more other ridings could further alter the parliamentary picture.

Trudeau's decision to remain in office and face Parliament was believed to have been taken even before the result of the Drummond count was announced.

The cabinet had been meeting for two days and the prime minister promised Wenesday that a "crystal clear" statement on government intentions would be made Thursday.

The Liberals will be dependent on 30 New Democrats, who hold the balance of power in the House, to avoid losing the parliamentary confidence vote.

The National Press Building was crowded and tense as reporters waited for Trudeau to make known his intentions.

A surprise witness to the proceedings was the prime minister's wife, Margaret. She arrived, dressed in a bright yellow coat, with her husband and sat at the back of the theatre with Jim Davey, Trudeau's program secretary.

Trudeau said that it is clear the results of the election indicate that "there have been failures" on the part of the government.

But there had been no clear degree of approval for any one party.

He said he is not going to "govern for any particular party" and added that he does not agree the Liberal government needs the NDP.

He said whether Parliament will work depends on all parties in the House.

Asked how he can govern when his party is no represented in all sections of the country, he said the test is to get the confidence of Parliament.

If the opposition did not think he could govern, it would have to defeat the government.

Trudeau said that neither observers nor his cabinet have been able to determine what went wrong with the Liberal campaign that resulted in his party losing the majority he held in the last Parliament.

He said the possible causes were discussed in an all-day cabinet meeting Thursday. But he said he wants to discredit any single explanation — such as the results represented an anti-French backlash.

He said he could not predict when there would be another election.

But he said he hopes to put legislation before Parliament that will answer the complaints the people expressed in the Monday vote.

Asked about possible tax cuts, he said he had not talked of such things before the election and will not talk about them now.

But an economic package would have to be placed before Parliament that would fight unemployment without causing "galloping inflation."

Stanfield accused the Liberal government of displaying an "arrogant desire" to stay in office.

"Mr. Trudeau made clear tonight the arrogant desire of his government to hang on to power," Stanfield said.

"He is treating the election result as simply another opinion poll in the hope he can somehow get away with it."

In the interests of Canada, Lewis said, there will have to be some concessions by all sides.

However, if the government reintroduced its foreign ownership and election expenses bills without substantial changes, both would be opposed by the NDP.

"Obviously we will have to accept less than we would want on many issues in order to enable Parliament to produce something . . . We have to think of what is good for Canada in this situation. But of course there are limits."

Lewis quoted Trudeau as saying the government, working from a minority position, will have to accommodate itself to conform in part to the wishes of other parties.

"In those circumstances, if he acts as I hope he will act, I see no reason why Parliament couldn't sit for a full, long session at least before the people of Canada are put to another election."

He also said, however, that no Canadian believes Parliament can sit a full four-year term in view of the inconclusive election results.

"Although Mr. Trudeau was rejected" by Canadians in the election, "no other party was accepted," he said.

Another measure he said the NDP could not accept was the Liberal plan to reintroduce legislation to accelerate depreciation allowances to promote business expansion.

"That we can't support, but we will support any measures that deals with the pocketbook issues we talked about during the campaign."

Lewis said a period of minority government could be good for Canada even if it could not be expected to last indefinitely.

He had watched the prime minister on television during his news conference and "seldom esen a more chastened man."

"... We may be able to get a good many things that might not otherwise have been available."

He rejected a suggestion that his party would be forced to tread lightly in Parliament because another election soon might be bad for the NDP.

He said he did not approach the prospect of another election "with the slightest fear" because he was certain basic NDP support across the country was close to the nearly two million votes it received Monday.

One of the top priorities that must be considered by Parliament, he said, is tax relief for the individual.

"I talk in terms of some tax credit to taxpayers who are now paying under a certain amount of tax."

He suggested the figures of $500 or $1,000, saying something must be done to "make up at least" for the rise in the cost of living for families that already bear a heavy taxation burden.

Trudeau said the Commons cannot meet before the end of the first week in December.

But he could not be more specific than that. A date would be discussed at a meeting of the Liberal caucus next Wednesday.

Asked whether, if defeated in a confidence motion in the Commons, he would agree to hand over the reigns of government to Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, he said that is a hypothetical question.

But he said he would take the advice of constitutional experts. Things to consider in that situation would be how long he had governed and the interests of the people.

The prime minister hedged on whether the government will go ahead with its intention to end a three-per-cent tax reduction Jan. 1.

He said he will follow the budgetary measures scheduled for this year, but "whether we will take any other fiscal measures I can't say at this time."

The three-per-cent tax reduction was put in for 18 months last year. The Conservatives said during the election campaign that a Stanfield government would continue the reduction.

Dog Leaves $5,000 To U.S. College

NORTON, Mass. (AP) — Wheaton College recently received a bequest of more than $5,000 from the estate of a dog.

The dog's master designated Wheaton as one of the recipients of that portion of his estate which survived his pet. The dog died and the estate has just been settled.

Nessie Filmed Again

BOSTON (AP) — Nessie, the Loch Ness monster, has had her picture taken again and with the unusual inconclusive results.

Robert Rines, president of the Academy of Applied Science, disclosed Wednesday a series of pictures that he says show a part of a large marine creature inhabiting Scotland's Loch Ness.

The sonar picked up two creatures moving down an underwater ravine toward the camera, Rines said, and showed them to be 20 to 30 feet long. The camera, set 50 feet under water and 150 feet from the sonar equipment, was set to take strobe-light pictures at 15-second intervals and Rines said the fin moved in and out of view in five frames.

Rines displayed a series of photos that show a green-brown triangular object, identified as a fin, moving through murky water.

Rines says an academy expedition took the photos late this summer and that the pictures are substantiated by sonar and other data.

The academy, a group of scientists and laymen dedicated to promoting science and technology, presented its findings at the annual Northeast Electronics Research and Engineering meeting.

While zoologists have yet to identify the object in the pictures, Rines said one report said the fine structure resembled that of the tail of a newt, a small semi-aquatic lizard.

Extension Rejected By Guild

VANCOUVER (CP) — The executive of the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild Thursday rejected a proposal from Pacific Press Ltd to extend the Guild's old contract to Dec. 31 and give all employees an immediate 5-per-cent pay raise.

Bill McLeman, Guild-executive secretary, disclosed the executive's decision and called on the company to resume negotiations on the "major issues in dispute — technological change, jurisdiction and job security."

Contracts affecting about 1,100 employees in six unions at Pacific Press, which holds a proprietory interest in both the Sun and the Province newspapers, expired Oct. 31.

Strike notice was served Tuesday on S and P Distributors Ltd., a company that delivers some Sun and Province newspapers in Greater Vancouver.

B.C. Counting the Days

Waiting for Ballots

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ballots are being counted officially in most B.C. ridings, but not yet in the key riding of Okanagan-Kootenay, where Liberal Douglas Stewart holds a slim 42-vote lead over Progressive Conservative hopeful Howard Johnston.

On election night, Stewart was declared the winner with a margin of 77 votes, but officials said later there had been a counting error—someone had marked down a five instead of a two.

Returning officer A. R. Kaulback said in Vernon Thursday that the official count will begin at 10 a.m. today "if all the remaining ballot boxes come in today."

There are about 96 boxes to come. "If they don't come in today, we will have to hold the count either Monday or Tuesday depending on what comes in Friday," he said.

Weather will be the determining factor in the Coast-Chilcotin riding, where Harry Olaussen of the NDP leads Liberal Paul St. Pierre by 322 votes with three polls still unheard from.

"I have helicopters and planes fluttering round trying to get the boxes," said returning officer A. J. Pearsall in Powell River.

"North of here, there are 25- to 45-mile-an-hour winds. A little further north, the winds are 55 to 65 miles an hour."

"If we don't get into the coast areas by 3 p.m. today (Thursday), we won't be able to get in for three days."

The official count is set for Saturday, but Pearsall "isn't too optimistic."

In Kamloops-Cariboo, the count will begin at 2 p.m. Monday, providing mailed boxes are delivered in time. Returning officer Wilfred Rimmer said in Kamloops that some areas with ballot boxes "only get mail service once a week."

In Comox-Alberni, which covers the northern two-thirds of Vancouver Island, the official count is not expected until next week. Two isolated settlements which were to have reported their results by radiophone couldn't get through, and the phones are still out.

Four Facing Arson Charge

SALMO, B.C. (CP) — Four young Salmo residents were remanded a week Thursday on charges of arson after a Halloween attempt to burn down a wooden bridge across the Salmo River. Charged are Miles Barychuk, 17, Elaine Chernoff, 18, Cathy Berukoff, 18, and Debora Landy, 17. The girls are also charged with wilful damage in the burning of a pickup truck canopy.

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — Five persons, all St Thomas residents, were killed in a two-car collision on Highway 3, a quarter of a mile west of here.

Uganda Invites Commonwealth

KAMPALA (Reuter) — President Idi Amin proposed Thursday that the August, 1973, Commonwealth summit be held in Uganda instead of Canada.

In a telegram to the Commonwealth secretary-general, Arnold Smith of Canada, Amin said he believes that "if the Commonwealth is to have real meaning for all concerned, summit conferences of the group should be held evenly in all the regions and in all the continents where the Commonwealth is represented."

Amin said his proposal is the more important because of the political uncertainty in Canada resulting from this week's inconclusive general election.

Saigon Stand Adamant

IT IS NOW CLEAR that the efforts of the North Vietnamese to stampede the United States into acceptance of the terms of a ceasefire have failed.

Hanoi has obviously over-estimated President Richard Nixon's anxiety to hasten the extrication of his country from the war before the presidential election. And its leaders have shown, by the almost frenetic arguments and threats of the past few weeks, how important a settlement was to them before the United States named its new chief executive. Obviously, now, Hanoi fears a possible stiffening of the United States' position if the outcome of the election is what its administration anticipates: return of Mr. Nixon with a more impressive majority.

Possibility of the signing of any agreement before the result is known—next Tuesday—has all but vanished, in spite of the insistence of American delegates in Paris that "peace is near."

South Vietnam, moreover, has complicated the situation further by insisting that it will never accept a cease-fire as long as there are 14 North Vietnamese divisions on its soil. It is not clear whether Saigon will insist on complete or partial withdrawal; but for the first time it has stated its position in this regard without ambiguity.

In Pyongyang, North Korea's capital, meanwhile, representatives of the two Korean republics are meeting to find a solution to the political problems that still divide them. It seems that at last they can discuss these things without distrust and suspicion of each other's motives.

But that is not the case with the Vietnamese. Emotions between them are too heated to allow development of an accord. How could it be possible when both sides are fighting desperately for every foot of territory possible to strengthen their political positions in the event of a truce?

The longer the stalemate continues the more desirable it becomes to find a formula that will separate the factions until, as in Korea, hatreds are cooled, if not dissolved.

That would mean a peace-keeping force of large dimensions. But it would appear to be the only alternative that might be acceptable to South Vietnam if the North's armies refuse to withdraw.

"I can hardly wait to go out and see if the cost of living has gone down yet . . ."

From Smoldering to Mouldering

VIEWED FROM HIGH vantage points the Greater Victoria area appeared under siege last weekend. And it was in a way. Brisk, autumn weather rallied the leaf-rakers en masse, and their assault produced a pall of smoke over the entire region. The blue of the sky was almost blotted out. Hundreds upons hundreds of smoldering piles of nature's refuse gave the impression that havoc had been wrought on this peaceful land.

A destructive force really was at work, too; at least in the eyes of puritans of gardening who see in fallen leaves the answers to soil deficiencies. Put back what is taken out, is their cry. In other words, compost the cast-offs to nurture growth.

But they aren't making headway in their campaigning against burning. The potash grows ever deeper; not because it, as well as leaf mould, can do great good to the garden patch, but because disposal by fire is the easy way out.

It doesn't take the space, nor the pit-box construction required in the compacting process. In facing up to this reality, the promoters of composting are going to have to press their pollution arguments further and, at the same time, look in different directions for help.

One might be municipal government which now is showing more ecological concern than ever before. A leaf-collection plan might be advocated in which the rakings of householders would be picked up and carted away. Many municipalities already have street vacuum cleaners which would make the work easy.

The expense could be covered, partly if not fully, by selling compost from municipal pits which, in a garden area such as this, could become a thriving business. It would make for new jobs and greater use of publicly-owned equipment at a time of year when works projects are slackening off.

Another Park Incursion?

THE CONCLUSION said to be contained in a report by the Victoria traffic engineering department, that the creation of a major pedestrian mall downtown would demand the extension of Michigan Street through Beacon Hill Park, is bound to have all park-lovers concerned again. One more nibble at the park might not do much harm — but it could be the precedent for another and another.

The report, not yet released, is said to deal with three alternatives to deal with the increase in traffic into and out of James Bay: one being minor street improvements and limited land use in the district; another, major street widenings, and the third, pushing Michigan through the park to connect with Rupert and Vancouver and also extending Belleville to Vancouver and Humboldt to Quadra. But without the Michigan route, James Bay traffic would still have to use the downtown area, precluding the creation of a mall on Douglas or Government.

But perhaps there is some comfort, for those whose aim it is to protect the park from all incursions, in the name that has been attached to the study by the planning and traffic departments expected to be complete in mid-November. It's referred to as Victoria 2000. And it's difficult to recall all the previous reports that have found their way into neglected files in the last 28 years.

The Moving Headstones of Gaza

By IRENE BEESON from Beirut

I had not been long in Gaza before I heard about the miracle of the moving tombs. For weeks it has wrested the attention of Gazans away from their daily grappling with the harsh realities of life under Israeli occupation.

First, at Khan Yunis refugee camp a mob of excited children crowded round me. "Did you visit the cemetery? . . . did you see the tombs? . . the moving tombs? At Shajaieh . . . it is the fedayeen . . a miracle," they shouted breathlessly.

I asked an older boy to explain quietly. It was the tombs of four fedayeen he said, stepping outside the shrill circle. They were moving. Had been moving in their graves.

I am no believer in miracles, but I went to the cemetery, out of natural curiosity and as a welcome relief from the depressing routine of hearing of acts of resistance, retaliation, expropriations, expulsions, arrests and imprisonments. I went to Shajaieh cemetery with two friends from Jerusalem who shared my skepticism.

It is a large cemetery on the edge of Gaza town. Most of the graves are simple earth mounds, fashioned by hand with two stelae, the taller one facing Mecca. A few large tombstones rise high above the burial ground. On their tall headstones are carved invocations to Allah, the name, dates of birth and death of the dead. Clusters of people were gathered round four of these stone graves. They were staring at the headstones or praying or talking in whispers.

Two youths moved towards us from one of the groups when we entered the cemetery ground. "Here," they said, leading us through a group of men and women gathered round one of the tombs. "Look at the headstone. You will see it move." I looked and was reading the name of the dead man—Nafal Mahmud Khalil Shemali, died 18 December, 1971—when the stone appeared to sway slightly from side to side. I felt the base of the headstone, where it is cemented to the grave. It was solidly, immovably anchored.

"Well, did it move?" one of my friends asked. "It IS moving," I replied.

"You're joking." I stepped aside to allow him to get close to the headstone.

"Yassalam!" (in the name of peace). "You're right!" he admitted after a few seconds, "It IS moving." "What's wrong?" we asked. "It's moving," he said, letting go of the stone. "I saw it move, but didn't believe it. When I took hold of the stone a current went through my arm and body and I felt myself sway. I couldn't resist the pull. I was dizzy and faint." I looked closely at the headstone. It seemed to be swaying slightly, back and forth, but when I touched it I felt no movement.

A tall, middle-aged woman wearing a black dress and headshawl stood beside the grave. "He is my son-in-law," she said. "He married my daughter one month before he was killed. His son was born eight months after his death. His spirit is speaking. "His father," she pointed to a man standing on the other side of the tomb, lost in meditation or prayer.

We visited the four graves. Pilgrims crowded round us, excited that a foreigner had come to witness their "miracle." How did they explain it, I asked them? It was "the fedayeen moving in their graves," or, "it is Allah speaking to us," or "the fedayeen sending us messages."

"What is Allah saying?" I asked a youth who believed God was speaking through the buried men.

"He is telling me that the time has come for action," he replied. "that the fedayeen are not dead, that martyrs do not die."

Said another youth: "I believe the fedayeen are speaking to us. They are telling us to continue their struggle, that they are with us, even in death."

I returned to Shajaieh the following day; with a Christian family from Gaza who did not believe in miracles—especially in Muslim miracles. They also thought they saw the tombs move.

Back in Gaza town I looked up a professor of physics and asked if he had an explanation for these extraordinary happenings. He had. The headstones, he said, only appeared to be moving: it was an optical illusion, induced by the condition of the people believing in it. It could be taken as a measure of the grief and sense of hopelessness in the people of the Gaza Strip; individually because of the loss of a loved one, collectively because of their situation under military occupation.

★ ★ ★

Did a great many really believe it was a miracle, I asked Muslim friends? They said the simple, uneducated but faithful Muslims believed without question. Others, they thought, were convinced or conditioned to believe by the collective force of the unquestioning believers. Then, some probably pretended to believe out of consideration for others or out of fear of being thought irreligious. And some pretended to themselves that they believed, because they needed to believe.

A school inspector in Gaza thought the "miracle" of the moving tombs or its interpretation by the Gazans could be seen as a refusal to give way to despair or total hopelessness.

"This is their profession of faith in God, in nationalism and resistance. They have lost faith in everything — the Arab regimes, the big powers, the United Nations."

Evil Spirit of Terrorism

By ARNOLD TOYNBEE

Political murders, like private murders, are unpardonable crimes. They are not excused by the difference of motive.

Terrorists and guerrillas, like uniformed soldiers in war, kill, not for personal revenge or personal gain, but in an impersonal cause, and usually their killings are retorts to some extreme and long continuing ill-treatment and injustice. Yet, whether or not we condemn war, we are bound to condemn terrorism.

Human society sometimes survives wars (though many societies have been destroyed by them), but terrorism, going to the length of murder, threatens to destroy the very foundations of social life. To quell the present rising wave of terrorism is the most urgent item on mankind's current agenda.

Terrorism does not have any excuse, but it does have a cause, and we must understand this cause and must deal with it, in order to cope with its criminal effects. If we limit our action to combating the effects without simultaneously attempting to remove the cause we shall be giving ourselves no chance of success.

Never before have we been so promptly and fully informed as we are today of the wrongs that human beings, all round the globe, are inflicting and are suffering. Yet never before have we been so sluggish in our reaction. This callous indifference is a sin of omission which, like the terrorists' violent reaction to it, is inexcusable.

Two reasons for this present-day callousness are manifest. Human nature's ingrained perennial self-centredness has been accentuated by the increasing difficulty and strain of life under modern conditions. In the second place, the shock given to us by atrocities has been dulled by familiarity.

The world was shocked in August 1914, when batches of Belgian civilians were massacred by German troops. We shuddered when in the Spanish civil war a town was bombed from the air for the first time, with the inevitable slaughter of defenceless noncombatants. But the German terror in Belgium has been eclipsed by My Lai, and the bombing of Guernica, by the dropping of the two atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and by the American bombing campaign in Vietnam.

This blunting of our sensitivity has led us to ignore the infliction of grievous wrongs that have been perpetrated, in some cases for generations and even for centuries. Too many of those of us who have had the duty to act have ignored the bad treatment of the Catholics in Northern Ireland, the oppression of the blacks in southern Africa and in the United States, the spoliation and eviction of the American Indians in the United States and of the Arabs in Palestine.

The just grievances of the Catholics in Northern Ireland have remained unredressed for four centuries. The far greater wrongs inflicted on the Palestine Arabs have been festering for half-a-century. The Balfour Declaration was published in 1917; the selling of Palestinian land to the Zionists by Arab landlords, and the consequent eviction of the Arab tenants and laborers, were carried on under the British mandate. Massive dispossession of Palestinian Arabs accompanied the two Israeli-Arab wars of 1948-9 and 1967.

The meekest populations will turn and bite if they are provoked, without redress, for a long enough time. This has been the story of both Northern Ireland and Palestine. To rebel against persistent ill-treatment is natural and legitimate in itself, but the nemesis of such mass revolts is that they give an opening for a sadistic minority that enjoys inflicting suffering on fellow human beings, even if these are not parties to the quarrel.

This is true of the ugliest features of present-day strife, and the terrorists who go to the length of murder are not the only militants who are resorting to these tactics. Strikes, so far, fortunately, have caused little bloodshed, but the tactics of tormenting third parties in order to apply pressure to opponents is common to strikers and terrorists. The sadistic militants even hit their own people as well as strangers.

Little has been done so far to make life tolerable for the Palestinian Arabs. On the other hand, Britain is now belatedly doing her utmost to make life more tolerable for the Ulster Catholics, and here the course of events is disconcerting. It seems clear that the great majority of the Catholic population wants peace if and when they are convinced that their just grievances are going to be redressed. This is indicated by the Catholic women's protests against the murderous activities of the Provisional IRA. But so far there is no sign that the Provisionals are prepared to stop shooting and bombing, and it will be difficult to suppress them so long as the rest of the Catholic community continues to give them passive support.

Unfortunately, they may continue to do so, partly for fear that if they give information to the authorities they themselves will be the Provisionals' next victims.

But probably the peaceful minded majority is moved less by fear than by a feeling that the Provisional are fighting the Catholic community's battle and are avenging its age-old wrongs.

No doubt the majority is aware that the Provisionals' policy is perverse. The Provisionals can murder individuals and can wreck buildings, but they cannot defeat the British Army, and, in the psychological battle for winning public sympathy, terrorism is manifestly counter-productive. Possibly the terrorists, too, know this, but for them, when once they have found their opportunity, terrorism becomes an end in itself. It is an outlet for the malevolent wish to injure one's fellow creatures — a wish that lurks in the depths of the human psyche, but that is normally suppressed.

Britain must do its utmost to make sure that the Ulster Catholics shall have a fair deal, but however successful Britain may be it must not expect that this will be an automatic cure for the Provisionals' terrorism. This is the nemesis of callousness. In arousing the majority of an aggrieved community to rebel it also gives an opportunity for a minority to indulge in criminal violence for its own sake.

Now the nemesis has overtaken both the Arab states and Israel. In murdering Israelis, the Palestinian Arab guerrillas are doing their worst for the Palestinian Arab people. They are making the world forget that the noncriminal majority of the Palestinians has been grieviously wronged. Yet the patent counter-productivity of terrorism does not deter terrorists from continuing on their criminal course. It has been reported that the Israeli police have caught an Israeli terrorist — a veteran of the Irgun Zvai Leumi — in the act of trying to launch a counter-terrorist campaign against Arab embassies in the territories of third parties. This would, of course, be a sure way of producing a revulsion of feeling in the Arabs' favor. Terrorists never learn because they do not want to learn. Persistent neglect to right wrongs has let loose this evil spirit. It is not going to be easy to exorcise it.

One-Way Tourism

By WAYNE HOWELL

As winter draws closer, many Canadians are looking wistfully at airline and bank advertisements and are making plans for a "sun-flight" to the white sands and white resort hotels of the Caribbean and Latin America. And now, thanks to Canada's ministry of manpower and "tourism," the tables have been turned. For instance, in the tiny Central American country of Abalone, the Abalone Gazette is running ads like this one:

"Faced with another winter of cloudless skies and jobless days? Shake the mid-winter blues with a 'snow-flight' to Toronto on an Air Abalone 707. Our special round-trip tourist excursion fare is no more expensive than a normal one-way flight! How can we offer such a bargain? Our careful analysis of the tourist trade to Canada has allowed us to make an ingenious arrangement with Air Abalone regarding the size and type of aircraft utilized for the return flight. The substantial saving realized by using a Piper Cub on the Toronto-Abalone run is being passed on to you!"

Since Canada is the "in" thing for tourists this year, the Abalone travel writer offers timely tips in his Gazette column:

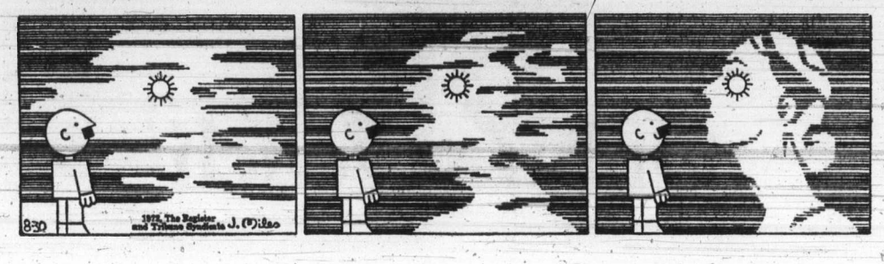

"The tourist in Canada has unlimited opportunities. He can, for instance, explore the Bruce Trail, or the Cabot Trail — but we strongly recommend the appealing Landed Immigrant Route as soon as they leave the airport. If that sounds confusing, just remember this simple rule to help you through the formalities at the airport — lying is rewarded and honesty is punished."

★ ★ ★

Naturally, Abalonian banks are cashing in on the tourist trade. The Abalone Gazette carries ads like this one: "Fly to Canada the easy way. Open a special 'snow flight' account with us and watch the balance grow until you too can enjoy that 'once in a lifetime' holiday trip to Canada!"

For some reason, Fly-Now Pay-Later doesn't seem to have caught on with the lending institutions of Abalone.

Mental Stability of Political Leaders Creates Justifiable Anxiety

'Lust for Power Rooted in Weakness'

The question for historians to answer is how sound was their judgment and how essential to national survival were these wars?

Leaders are driven by their inner aggression and an often gnawing hunger for a plus of power.

And since in the words of Erich Fromm, "The lust for power is not rooted in strength but weakness," the need to compensate may become obsessive, compulsive and relentless.

★ ★ ★

Childhood experiences of inferiority and helplessness generate a drive to prove to oneself one's worth, or one's very existence,

Aggression, when it is positive and realistic, is a healthy, forceful, goal-oriented drive.

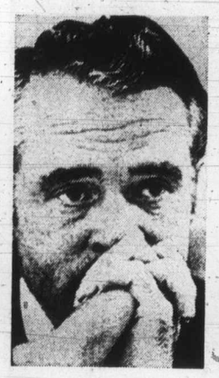

But it must be balanced so that it may serve the individual and help him to make use of his potentials in a constructive self-fulfilling way.

Aggression that is unrealistic becomes destructive and may be directed agains society or oneself.

The long line of mad leaders throughout history had been men who were whipped by their pervasive delusion of grandeur and an inability to control or sublimate their destructive and unconsciously homicidal aggression.

The realization of weakness or inadequacy are not necessarily determines. On the contrary, it may generally serve as a stimulus to mature.

The classic image of the heroic seems to be on the wane, not because man has become more mature but because the risks of a total holocaust have become so much greater.

A new ideal of leadership seems to emerge. It is based on the preponderance of the creative instinct over the destructive drive and of controlled judgment over impulsive pressures.

In today's world, a leader's greatness seems to lie less in a dramatic display of might than in a less spectacular policy of patient negotiation and of resisting the urge of acting out inner aggression to back up a political philosphy by military might.

It is a symbol of statesmanship if a leader dares to change the trend of well-established foreign policy in order to build a bridge of understanding with his antagonists and a peace that is based not on fear but on friendly relations.

Whatever the scope of action, control of self is the key word. In a politically explosive situation, the exercise of control is a supreme test of a leader's inner strength.

Eisenhower, at the height of the cold war, resisted the relentless pressures around him and actually paid with his health for his promise to keep the peace.

The strength of character of an American president is not only challenged by the constant threats and provocations of a restive world, but by some of his overaggressive and sometimes mentally unstable advisers.

There was the mentally disturbed first secretary of defence, James Forrestal, and John Foster Dulles, with his constant brankmanship, and Robert McNamara, who saw human lives in the light of cold computerized statistics, to name only a few.

In the life of any nation, there may be, of course, unprovoked bona fide attacks, not always on as huge a scale as those hatched by psychopaths such as Hitler or those who ordered the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

Leaders of vision may at an early stage even have prevented that disaster.

To make the point, I would like to quote Haile Selassie's wise and valid words:

"Throughout history it has been the inaction of those who could have acted, the indifference of those who should have known better, the silence of the voice of justice when it mattered most, that has made it possible for evil to triumph."

Failure to act may be as destructive as is over-reaction. the criterion is an objective evaluation of a crisis.

If a threat to survival is not real but exaggerated or even imagined, if a theory that a small war might prevent a big war is considered valid, then the neurotic judgment of a leader can push a nation into a bloody quagmire.

★ ★ ★

How can we as people distinguish between mentally healthy leaders and men who under an appealing facade hide an inner rage and a mind in disarray?

How can we know whom to trust, who will keep his word or who might betray the trust of the people?

Pavlov could by his scientific method of conditioning produce aggressive behavior and leadership and so did the fathers of John F. Kennedy, Frederick the Great and Thomas F. Eagleton.

These three fathers were overly ambitious men who carefully or brutally groomed their sons for their future tasks. All three young men performed superbly. All three were ill; Frederick the Great had the mood swings and depressions of a homosexual, John F. Kennedy suffered from Addison's disease and Senator Eagleton had three nervous breakdowns.

Does that mean that neurotic men cannot be great leaders?

Is there one man of stature who has not gone through the tortures of the damned and who has not gone to the rim of an abyss before his upturn to a meaningful and creative life began?

Does the so-called "normal" man, who has a minimum of trouble because he functions like an automaton, make a better leader?

The answers lie in the personality structure of the man who strives for leadership, and whether his drive to power is motivated by creative or destructive forces, whether he wants to serve the people or whether he needs the people to serve him and his ambition.

★ ★ ★

Evidently, the fear in the case of Eagleton was that under the pressures of his high office, he could break down and then possibly make unsound or destructive decisions.

This was obvious in the controversy that captured the headlines of the press.

Generally speaking it takes insight and enormous courage for a person to decide to go through a process of self-examination as in psychotherapy, when he must come to grips with the person he really is and his place in a world of reality.

Consequently, to consult a psychiatrist is not necessarily a sign of mental instability and may often speak more for than against a political leader.

In our search for security, we need some safeguarding principles to do away with the worry every four years about how well put together a candidate is.

Balance of Power
The Kiss of Death

BACKGROUND

By STEPHEN SCOTT
From Ottawa

David Lewis has guided the New Democratic Party to its greatest federal election triumph since its foundation in 1961—30 seats.

And he holds the balance of power now for either a Liberal or Progressive Conservative party attempt to shape a minority government, barring their coalition.

But history says he should beware. Other minority parties have fared badly in supporting minority governments.

★ ★ ★

The standings after Monday's election gave the opposition Progressive Conservatives 109 seats to 108 for the Liberal party — leaving the ruling Liberals to resign, seek a new election or try to put together a governing band of parliamentarians from the 30 NDP, 15 Social Credit and two Independents who comprise the 264-seat House of Commons.

That put the NDP on the spot as the only group that could assure either party the majority. There are examples of the risks to be run.

★ ★ ★

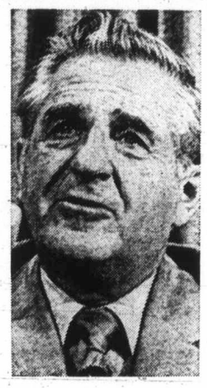

The National Progressive Party, formed under Thomas A. Crerar in 1920, kept W. L. Mackenzie King in power from 1921 until 1926. In the process it almost wiped out the Conservative party.

In the 1921 election, the Liberals won 117 seats, compared with 64 for the Progressives and 58 for the disorganized Conservatives.

In 1925 Progressive strength dropped to 24 but that was enough to keep King, with 101 MPs, in power against 116 resurgent Conservatives.

By the 1926 election, King was still in a minority position with 116 MPs, compared with 91 Conservatives, 11 MPs from the United Farmers of Alberta — which also has disappeared from the scene — 13 Progressives and 19 Liberal Progressives.

Lewis

But the Progressive party was on the way out and virtually died after a strong Conservative victory in 1930.

Then there is the case of Social Credit, first on the federal scene in 1935 with 17 MPs from Alberta and Saskatchewan.

These were wiped out in 1940. But from 1945 until the John Diefenbaker Conservative landslide in 1958, the party always managed to survive.

But party leader Robert Thompson, unsuccessful Conservative candidate Monday, found himself in the same heady position Lewis is in today when Diefenbaker was returned to power in 1962.

With a minority government of 116 MPs, Diefenbaker was dependent upon 30 Social Crediters to keep him in office against 99 liberals and 19 New Democrats.

★ ★ ★

Before the year was out, Thompson sided with the Liberals under Lester Pearson to dump Diefenbaker on the issue of arming now-defunct Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles with nuclear warheads.

In 1963, Thompson was back with a soon-to-be-split Social Credit group of 14 that helped keep 129 Pearson Liberals in power against 95 Conservatives and 17 New Democrats.

Dissension hit the party that year and Real Caouette took the Quebec wing away from Thompson's group.

By 1965, the 131-member Pearson government needed help from the five western Social Crediters to stay in power. There were 97 Conservatives, 21 New Democrats, nine Caouette Creditistes and two others in the Commons.

After the 1968 Trudeau sweep, there was no western Social Credit representation in parliament although Caouette's Creditistes survived in Quebec. They remained a Quebec party after Monday's vote.

★ ★ ★

The old Co-operative Commonwealth Federation had 25 MPs in 1957 after Diefenbaker was elected with 112 Conservatives. The Liberals had 105 members, Social Credit 19 and there were four others.

The CCF had the balance of power, but all parties decided to give Diefenbaker a chance to show what he could do.

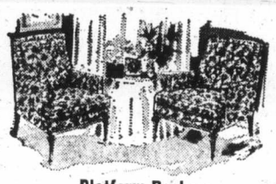

He subsequently flew secretly to Quebec City to ask the governor-general to dissolve parliament and in the ensuing election the CCF was reduced to only eight members from 25.

Hydro Head Socialistic?

Bennett Asks for Probe Over Cass-Beggs Hiring

Opposition leader W. A. C. Bennett called Thursday for a public inquiry into the appointment of David Cass-Beggs as chairman of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Cass-Beggs is currently head of Manitoba Hydro and formerly held a similar position with Saskatchewan Hydro.

In a written release issued by Bennett's office the opposition Socred party charged the appointment of Cass-Beggs in Manitoba had proved "a very costly mistake" for that province.

Bennett added "the costly impact of (Cass-Beggs') socialistic methods of operation of the Manitoba Hydro authority" can be claimed as justification for firing him as chairman of Saskatchewan Hydro when former premier the late Ross Thatcher's Liberal government took office.

The opposition leader said an independent inquiry board should be established "forthwith" to examine the competency of the B.C. Hydro chairman-designate.

Bennett later came to the legislative press gallery to register his formal protest against a report in the Vancouver Sun which quoted Premier Barrett as saying Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum was a political appointee. (Barrett said Oct. 12 the position by its nature was subject to political appointments and that both Shrum and his successors fell into this category.)

Bennett's statement said: "Dr. Gordon Shrum was never a partisant politician. He was never a member of the Social Credit party or to my knowledge any other party. The attack on the integrity of this man . . . is totally unwarranted and there should be a public apology by Premier Barrett forthwith."

Open Space Concept Puzzles Alderman

Victoria Ald. Tom Christie appeared a little bewildered Thursday when he tried to find a common denominator for the Open Space theatre, the Acme Tool Company and the open spaces celebrated in a popular song of post-war vintage.

It began when Gene Miller, president of the Open Space Society which operates out of two warehouses on lower Fort, appeared before city council's finance committee requesting a $9,100 grant.

Two weeks ago, Miller left a detailed brief with committee members explaining what the Open Space theatre was and why he asked for the grant.

But Christie said Thursday he was confused by the name Open Space.

"When I hear the word open space, I think of wide open spaces like in the song; what's your theatre got to do with that?" he asked.

Miller explained that there was no connection between his Open Space and the open spaces Christie was thinking of.

"It's difficult to define. Just like the man who called his firm Acme Tool Company; it doesn't really mean anything," Miller said.

"What's a tool company to do with the Open Space Theatre?" Christie replied, but that question was never answered by Miller.

The Open Space theatre, according to Miller, is a facility, not a group. Artists and performers use the facility which, he said, has become one of Victoria's major artistic endeavors

But members of the finance committee under Christie's chairmanship, unanimously rejected the grant request.

Ex-MP Disenchanted

Trudeau Advice Source Blasted

EDMONTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau must be prepared to appear before a national Liberal convention and defend his policies, a defeated MP said Thursday.

Hu Harries, who lost his seat in Edmonton Strathcona as part of the the clean sweep of 19 seats by the Progressive Conservative party in Alberta, said Trudeau has "been listening to the wrong people."

He charged that Ivan Head, prime minister Trudeau's chief adviser for Alberta, is completely out of touch with the situation in the province. The prime misister "should get rid of" the advisers who have been giving him incorrect readings.

"I've been saying for four years, the prime minister was receiving bad information."

Harries said he and seven other Alberta Liberal candidates—all beaten resoundingly in the Conservative sweep that included the defeat of two Liberal cabinet ministers in the province—want an immediate policy conference.

"Many, many young people in this country thought the promise of 1968 could have been fulfilled," said Harries. "I think it will be a tragedy if the needs and wishes of those young people are not considered."

As an example of Prime Minister Trudeau's lack of awareness of the West, Harries said, a letter he sent from Iran sat for nine months before it was answered.

"It was signed by Pierre Elliott Trudeau," said Harries, "but I don't believe the reasoning was his."

"I'm surprised he has waited so long with these bad advisers, because he's a very bright guy."

Harries said he is not "playing a cute little game."

"The Liberal party constitution says that any convention automatically involves a call upon the leader to face the party members. I think that's right and fair in these circumstances.

"I am not calling for a resignation but I think the party deserves a full accounting.

Harries, who said Head had not spoken to him in the four years he served as MP for Edmonton Strathcona, was disappointed that strong Liberal candidates were caught in the anti-Trudeau feeling that spread through Alberta.

"I felt the people I was running with this time formed the strongest group I can remember. There was more pure talent in that group than in the others."

Harries said he hopes his bid for a policy conference will lead to "almost a social contract for action and . . . in specific terms."

A former dean of economics at the University of Alberta, Harries said he had tried for four years to tell Trudeau his economic policies were wrong, particularly for the West.

Pepin's Victory Awaits Recount

OTTAWA (CP) — The announcement Thursday that Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin won Drummond by five ballots in Monday's election came at the end of the official addition of the reports prepared by deputy-returning officer at each of the 220 polling stations in the Quebec riding.

But in that official addition, the ballots themselves were not individually counted and the final result could change again.

Under the Canada Elections Act, whenever there is a winning margin of fewer than 25 voters at the official addition, there must be a judicial recount in which each ballot paper is examined under the supervision of a judge.

In the election-night tally, Pepin was reported trailing Social Crediter J. M. Boisvert by 138 votes. The error corrected Thursday was in the total figure accumulated from all the individual polls.

The tenuous liberal victory in Drummond stalemates the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives at 109 seats each and drops Social Credit strength to 14. The New Democratic Party's 30 seats are unaffected by the Pepin victory as are the two elected independable

At least one similar switch could occur within the next few days as official additions are completed in other ridings.

B.C. Pension Earnings Lid Lifted

B.C. has decided to unpeg the earnings of provincially-administered pension funds for civil servants, municipal employees and teachers from the interest rates established by Ottawa for the Canada Pension Plan.

Premier Barrett said Thursday the existing regulations were too restrictive in terms of investments and earnings from the funds which are administered by the provincial government.

The purpose of the change, the premier said, "is to allow more flexibility in the plan — a wider range of investment so that there can be a wider return to the pension funds."

Estate Law Repealed

The provincial government has repealed a regulation which allowed the province to seize the estates of persons who died in B.C. mental institutions.

The previous Social Credit administration in 1970 passed a controversial regulation which enabled it to assess back charges against the estates of deceased mentally ill

In future, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Thursday, the mentally ill in this province will be treated the same way as all other persons regardless of whether or not they die while patients in a mental institution.

Money in Hand, Meeting Maybe

Victoria city council's finance committee approved a $500 expenditure Thursday to send Mayor Peter Pollen to a conference in Toronto that may never take place.

The conference, originally scheduled for Nov. 20-21 in Toronto, was to be attended by representatives from the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Its aim was to design permanent plans for consultation among the three levels of government.

Last week's election results have placed the fate of the conference in doubt. A spokesman for Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford has said the Liberal government would proceed with the conference if it is in power.

But a source in Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield's office has said a Conservative government would consult with provincial premiers before deciding whether or not to hold the conference.

Solidity Souring

Solidarity Forever is the name of an old trade union song. In practice, however, the tune apparently has some sour notes and the time element is much less than forever.

Larry Tickner of the carpenters' union provided the Victoria Labor Council with a good example Wednesday night.

Tired of watching Esquimalt workmen pass through a recent carpenters' picket line, Tickner stopped one to ask him if he belonged to a union himself. He did.

Tickner said he then asked the man what union he belonged to and was told:

"I don't know, but ask that guy who just went through the line—he's our president."

Tickner told the council the union involved turned out to be the Canadian Union of Public Employees—even if some of its members weren't aware of this.

"You have the unenviable distinction of having the highest Breathalyser reading that I can remember," Judge William Osfler said Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court to a 42-year-old Victoria man.

The man, Ernest Lageri of 631 Raynor, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving early Thursday in Victoria and prosecutor John MacIntyre said Lageri's Breathalyser reading was .33 per cent — "he was close to being clinically dead."

Ostler called the reading "often a lethal load" and sentenced Lageri, who was convicted in 1970 for a similar offence, to one month in jail and an 18-month driving ban.

The reading refers to the percentage of alcohol in the blood. A figure of .08 per cent is enough for a conviction while .15 per cent is considered enough for an "impaired" case. A Vancouver man is known to have had a reading of .42 per cent and survived but experts say a reading of .45 per cent means death.

□

"If he had gone to a probation officers, he probably would have saved himself a lot of money," Ostler said of David Lindsay Ryan, 18, of 959 Balmoral.

Ryan pleaded guilty Oct. 16 to a Victoria charge dated Oct. 15 of taking a car without the owner's consent, driving with a breath-analysis reading above .08 per cent and driving without a licence. He was remanded for a pre-sen-

Farm Accident Fatal for Man

GRANDE CENTRE, Alta. (CP) — Terry Bamber, 19, was killed when his trousers caught in a post-hole digger being drawn by a tractor. The accident took place on a farm about seven miles southeast of this community near the Saskatchewan border, about 90 miles northwest of Lloydminster.

Summer home. "In the summer we spend a lot of time at our cottage on Gabriola Island. It's one of the prettiest Gulf Islands across the Strait of Georgia from Vancouver."

Retirement plans. "When I retire, we'd like to live on Gabriola permanently. At that time my London Life policy will be of great value in supplementing my income."

"When we bought this island property the bank said there was no better collateral than my London Life policy."

Constructive use of money. "A couple of years after I came to Vancouver I met my wife Connie," says Bob Gray, a film production manager. "That's when I decided to do something about my future family responsibilities and bought a London Life policy.

"Years later when I visited my bank manager for a loan to buy our island cottage I showed him that policy. He said, as far as he was concerned, there wasn't any better collateral and gave me the money right away. Frankly I hadn't appreciated that useful aspect of the policy until then."

Supplementary income. "When the children are grown up and Connie and I move to Gabriola Island, my London Life policy will be a great financial help.

"My yearly dividends now come to quite a sizable amount. That's another aspect of my policy that I didn't appreciate initially. Not only does it provide protection but it's a good investment, too."

PROVINCIAL COURT

"You have the unenviable distinction of having the highest Breathalyser reading that I can remember," Judge William Osfler said Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court to a 42-year-old Victoria man.

The man, Ernest Lageri of 631 Raynor, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving early Thursday in Victoria and prosecutor John MacIntyre said Lageri's Breathalyser reading was .33 per cent — "he was close to being clinically dead."

Ostler called the reading "often a lethal load" and sentenced Lageri, who was convicted in 1970 for a similar offence, to one month in jail and an 18-month driving ban.

The reading refers to the percentage of alcohol in the blood. A figure of .08 per cent is enough for a conviction while .15 per cent is considered enough for an "impaired" case. A Vancouver man is known to have had a reading of .42 per cent and survived but experts say a reading of .45 per cent means death.

□

"If he had gone to a probation officers, he probably would have saved himself a lot of money," Ostler said of David Lindsay Ryan, 18, of 959 Balmoral.

Ryan pleaded guilty Oct. 16 to a Victoria charge dated Oct. 15 of taking a car without the owner's consent, driving with a breath-analysis reading above .08 per cent and driving without a licence. He was remanded for a pre-sentence report by a probation officer but said Thursday that "I was working and I forgot."

Ostler debated a remand in custody pending a report and said it might recommend probation but finally decided to impose fines totalling $275 and a six-month driving ban.

□

Three persons were fined by Ostler after pleading guilty to separate Saanich shoplifting charges of theft involving less than $200.

Mrs. Florence Mary Jessie Grafton, 33, of 4823 Townsend, was fined $250 after she admitted taking several items worth a total of $23.78 Oct. 12 from Woolco.

Mrs. Marie Nagy, 34, of Kemp Lake Road, was fined $250 after she admitted taking a number of items worth a total of $3.85 Oct. 17 from Woolco.

Raymond Ungarian, 19, of 1716 Ashdale, was fined $200 after he admitted taking two items worth a total of $13.64 Oct. 12 from the K Mart store.

Suspended sentences and six-month probationary terms were imposed against two persons in separate cases.

Terry Lee Emery, 17, of 232 Old Island Highway, pleaded guilty Oct. 18 to a Colwood RCMP charge of theft involving less than $200. She used a fictitious credit card number Oct. 1 to make a 14-minute $9.10 phone call to a young man in Montreal from a phone booth on the Island Highway.

Robert John Gouinlock, 22, of Don Mills, Ont., pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of a narcotic — a small amount of marijuana found when police checked him Wednesday night in the 500 block Johnson.

□

The noise of jackhammers made hearing difficult during the morning sittings of both court sections but no one complained. H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd., the low bidders, were starting work that will lead to a third courtroom in late February and ease the backlog of trials which already has extended into that month.

□

In traffic court, Judge Harold Alder set a $350 fine for Garnet Samuel White, 20, of 3066 Tillicum, who pleaded guilty to a cahrge of impaired driving Sept. 2 in Saanich.

Honey Tab Rockets To Double

A shortage of honey has doubled the price paid B.C. honey producers. Dennis McGinnis, head of the B.C. Commercial Beekeepers' Association, said in Kelowna Wednesday the current price of 30 cents a pound, compared with 15 cents last year, stems from a world-wide shortage, especially in the U.S. and Argentina.

Police on Prowl For More Apples

Victoria police are looking for exactly 40 apples given Tuesday night to Halloween trick-or-treaters in the central part of the city — and they emphasized Thursday the apples do not necessarily have to have pins in them.

Mrs. George Turner, 929 Empress, discovered Wednesday when she began to make an apple pie that six apples given to her three children during their rounds had sharp, straight sewing pins embedded head first and so deeply the tips were under the peel.

Police said Thursday two more of the apples have been recovered from another child and indicated they had learned where the apples came from but not the pins.

They said it was believed 48 apples were given out in all and asked anyone living in the area bounded by Bay, Quadra, Cook and Pembroke to check remaining Halloween goodies collected by their children.

Police are looking for the 40 remaining apples, whether there are pins in them or not. Officers said two apples were placed in each of 24 small brown paper bags with some candies, peanuts or both and the bags were then stapled at the top.

The apples are said to be of the Delicious brand and are two inches across or less. Police indicated the source was found after officers went along with the Turner children to retrace their Halloween route.

Information should be given to the Victoria police detective division at 384-4111.

Two special views offer exciting COLOR TV

RCA 22" Console Color TV

One of the best names in the technical world of television incorporates all the latest engineering advances for brilliant realism. For example: AccuMatic (ACM) RCA's remarkable color/tint control keeps the color on target. Automatic Fine Tuning (A.F.T.) pinpoints the correct signal electronically far more accurately than manual fine tuning. Automatic Chroma Control prevents color from coming in either too strong or too weak. Tone control for treble-to-bass emphasis. RCA solid copper circuits replace hand wiring in a majority of potential chassis trouble spots. Cabinet in a walnut grain finish.

Admiral 22" "Olympian" Color TV

The "Olympian" housed in the attractive Spanish style, is another version to view the excitement of color television. Exceptionally fine features include: Super rectangular 22" Black Matrix Solar Picture Tube. Instant Play. Push/Pull, On/off switch. Tint-a-matic, pre-set tint control. All-new Slider controls for color, tint and volume. All-new "Color-matic" auto colors. Solid state automatic frequency control (A.F.C.). Pre-set Tuner. 5"x3" Speaker.

Peace Talk Jars Arms Planners

Colonist - Los Angeles Times

SAIGON — The prospect of a sudden cease-fire in South Vietnam has prompted an almost clandestine American airlift of high priority arms shipments. At the same time, military planners face cancellation of one program involving 90 million dollars worth of jet aircraft.

All of this, and far more, is a result of the sudden revelation by Dr. Henry Kissinger Oct. 26 that a cease-fire was near — and with it a freeze on the introduction of new weapons by either side. Only a one-for-one replacement of existing stocks would be permitted under the proposed agreement.

Because the details of the peace negotiations had been held in tightest secrecy, the nearness of the cease-fire and the terms of the agreement caught the hardware and personnel planners by surprise.

The planners at Pentagon East, called the Military Assistance Command Vietnam (MACV), had been working on a loose schedule generally stretched over the next 18 months. Now they are trying — with Washington holding them back — to cram everything into a few days.

For political reasons, according to some authorities in Saigon, the Nixon administration does not want a highly visible arms buildup. This would only further upset Hanoi's negotiators who are already accusing the Americans of foot-dragging or worse.

The military command, however, is pressing for priority use of whatever time may be left before a cease-fire becomes effective.

KING FISHERMAN

Victoria Area Hot for Finale

Victoria waters produced well for anglers seeking last minute King Fisherman Contest entries last weekend.

Both coho and chinooks were taken and some lucky anglers caught them by casting off the breakwater and Ogden Point docks.

King Fisherman entries for the 18th edition of the King Fisherman Contest, which ended Sunday, are now trickling in to the Colonist office. As soon as all entries are received, or a closing date for receiving them is established, the big draw for a CP Air all-expense-paid trip to Hong Kong will be made.

Restoration Interrupted

ROME (AP) — The Central Institute of Art Restoration, considered the world's best in its class, has closed because of lack of funds to repair its 600-year-old headquarters. The director, Prof. Pasquale Rotondi, said Thursday parliament had not passed a bill granting the $85,000 necessary to repair the building.

WE HAD A LOT TO CONSIDER WHEN WE BUILT CORTINA

Potholes, ruts, rust, rain, ice, snow, wet roads, dry roads, unexpected stops, parking lot bumps, sudden curves, and anything else an economy import might come up against in Canada.

We did our best to make Cortina tough enough to handle any hardships Canada could dish out. And come out ahead.

To handle the roughest roads, Cortina has a Short and Long Arm front suspension, designed for a quieter ride and improved handling. The traditional rear leaf springs are replaced by a 4-bar link system. It controls the location of the rear axle during cornering, virtually eliminating any tendency to "axle hop".

To handle high-speed highway driving, Cortina has a 2-litre Overhead Camshaft engine. It has plenty of torque for quick acceleration and effortless freeway cruising, without sacrificing economy. And in the city, where driving is often stop-and-go, Cortina's power front disc brakes give straight, fast stops.

There's a new energy-absorbing bumper system. In the front it consists of a heavy steel bumper, a full-width steel reinforcement behind the bumper, large mounting brackets and two Ford Motor Company designed impact-absorbing devices mounted to the front of the frame.

And to resist the salt-soaked slush that causes rust Cortina's body has a special rust resisting electro-coated phosphate undercoating.

Those are just some of the features built into every Cortina to handle the rigorous driving conditions it might come up against in Canada.

On the inside, we had a different set of priorities. Comfort and convenience.

The fully reclining front bucket seats were scientifically designed to give increased lumbar and lateral support.

The fitted loop-pile carpeting, not only adds a luxury touch to Cortina, but also acts as a sound insulation against road noise.

The convenient front and rear grab handles were designed to assist entry and exit.

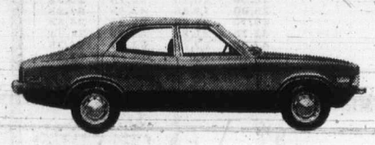

And there's an electric rear window defroster, to keep the frost off on cold winter mornings.

In short, we built everything into Cortina that would make it a tough and durable little car, with all the comfort you want.

And with nearly everything already standard, the list of options is very short. There's the silk-smooth 3-speed automatic transmission and the dealer installed radio. And that's all.

Test drive the 2- or 4-door sedans or the sporty 2-door GT. You'll find we considered a lot when we built Cortina, and it all adds up to a better car for you.

Cortina. Consider it.

Liquidation Deadline To Be Met

Kaiser Bows to U.S. Court Order

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Kaiser Steel Corp. and its Canadian subsidiary Kaiser Resources Ltd. Thursday consented to a federal court order barring further offers or sales of stock in the Canadian firm unless these are registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

The SEC said 36 American officers, directors and employees of Kaiser Steel may have profited from inside knowledge in public offerings of Kaiser Resources stock in Canada in 1969.

A Canadian company called KRL Investments Ltd. was formed to buy Kaiser Resources shares at the 1969 public offering price on behalf of the 36 Americans, including Edgar Kaiser, chairman of Kaiser Industries.

KRL Investments purchased 63,200 shares of Kaiser Resources in 1969 and sold 39,600 shares through Canadian stock exchanges in 1970. At that time, Kaiser Resources encountered serious difficulties in starting operations of its new coal mining facilities in southeastern B.C.

A Kaiser statement said that some of the stock sales resulted in profits for the Americans, and others resulted in losses.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles Renfrew signed the injunction order on the same day that the SEC filed its complaint against the two Kaiser companies.

The order requires liquidation of KRL Investments within four months: The Kaiser firms pledged to meet that deadline.

Kaiser said that officers and directors of the Kaiser firms who realized any profit from the stock sales had complied with a recommendation to voluntarily return those gains.

The statement also said that Kaiser companies are implementing certain unspecified changes in policy on stock transactions by company personnel.

TWA Choice

Planes for Pawn Offered Airline

NEW YORK (AP) — A $145-million court judgment against recluse billionaire Howard Hughes and his Hughes Tool Co. became a pawn Thursday in an unusual game of corporate chess.

John E. Morgan, head of a Las Vegas-based aircraft and housing-development holding company said he had offered to provide 22 jetliners to Trans World Airlines in return for the Hughes judgment.

Morgan said he would buy 22 Lockheed L-1011 passenger jets which TWA was planning to purchase and lease them to the airline for 15 years, with the first two years free.

In return, J. E. Morgan Industries would be assigned the $145-million judgment won by TWA from Hughes.

The award is contested in a suit pending before the U.S. Supreme Court. In previous lower-court decisions, the airlines damage claim against Hughes and the tool company was upheld on the grounds that Hughes deliberately failed to buy big jets for TWA during the 1950s when his interests owned a controlling share of the airlines.

A TWA spokesman said Thursday that Morgan "contacted us recently, but I don't think we have any interest at all in his proposal."

Morgan said between collection of the Hughes judgment and the 13 paying years of the lease, he expected his company would make a profit of some $225 million.

But, he said, TWA would save $200 million by having free use of the jets for two years.

Morgan denied that he or his company were related to or had any contract with Hughes interests.

Germans Ponder Freeze

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

FRANKFURT — The West German central bank raised the discount rate Thursday and held out the spectre of a wage-price freeze to stop galloping inflation.

The Central Bank council acted immediately after the failure of the Common Market finance ministers to enact tough measures through the expanded nine-nation community in their meeting in Luxembourg Wednesday. In doing so, the governors were taking a calculated risk that raising interest rates would not lead to another unsettling flood of hot money into the country.

The discount rate was raised from 3½ to 4 per cent. A similar increase in the rate a month ago was not satisfactory, federal bank President Karl Klasen said after the meeting.

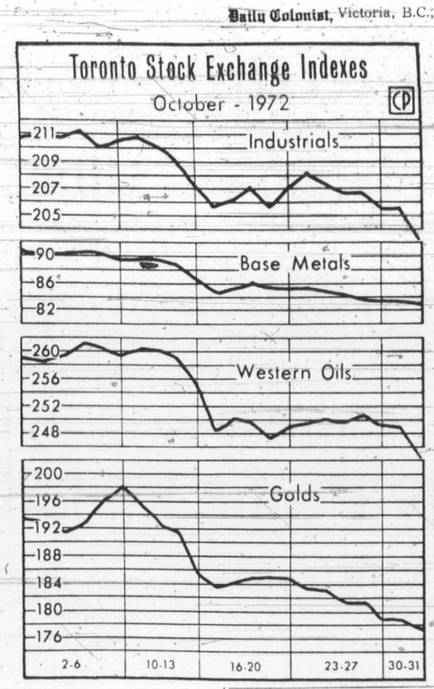

Inflationary pressures were "stronger than some of us thought," he added.

At Luxembourg, the Germans had pressed for an immediate lowering by 15 per cent of Common Market tariffs with the outside world to encourage imports and dampen inflationary tendencies, now running at the unacceptable rate of 6.2 per cent here. They ran into a brick wall of French resistance.

The only real result achieved at Luxembourg was an agreement that the inflation rate in the European community should be reduced to 5.5 per cent in 1973 through a limiting of money in circulation and strict budgetary controls. But even here they could not agree on practical measures, and they made exceptions for countries with high unemployment rates like Great Britain and Italy.

Klasen said there was no immediate danger of a wage-price freeze in West Germany, such as Britain is now considering. But he made it clear this could not be excluded.

"One should never say never," he warned.

Three Agree

VANCOUVER (CP) — The forced-choice method of arbitration, where an arbitrator decides that one party is right and the other is wrong, would be the best method of settling labor-management contract disputes three management leaders agreed Wednesday at a panel discussion.

Gordon Shrum, B.C. Hydro Chairman; Keith Bennett, manager of Forest Industrial Relations Ltd.; and Ed Stang, president of the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association also agreed that unions would probably not accept this method.

The Mercedes-Benz 280SE 4.5

A different definition of comfort

Most expensive cars are designed to remove the feel of the road from the driver. The Mercedes-Benz 280SE 4.5 defines comfort in a different way.

It gives you the comfort that comes with control. Control that eases tensions that build during a long drive. The fully independent suspension holds the road without wallowing or wandering. But road-holding alone isn't enough to satisfy our concept of comfort.

The orthopedically contoured seats are designed for extended stays. Seat springs are tuned to virtually eliminate those tiny vibrations that can contribute to fatigue. And, of course, the steering column has its own shock absorber.

You can only really appreciate this satisfying concept of comfort during a long test drive. We invite you to take one. And when you do, we believe you'll want to make this the year you will finally own a Mercedes-Benz.

Victorians Open Door to Ugandan Arrivals

Gifts, Advice Offered Refugees

Victoria is extending a warm and friendly welcome to refugees arriving in this city from Uganda.

John Appleby, senior counsellor at Canada Manpower, said Thursday the capital region had "responded magnificently" in receiving the 45 Asians from Uganda who have already arrived here.

One more, a single girl, was to have come in Thursday but will come later. It is expected that more of the 700 to 800 who have already reached Vancouver will come to Greater Victoria.

This week 37 arrived here, including nine families and three single people, Appleby said, adding "We haven't had to ask for help twice anywhere."

The search for housing for the refugees is being conducted by the Greater Victoria Citizenship Council and the Victoria West Neighborhood Centre, and so far one family has been placed in a house.

"The housing problem is not an easy one," Appleby said.

Acting for Manpower in accepting gifts of furniture and clothing — the refugees were forced to leave Uganda with just what they could carry and almost no money — is the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Many East Indians of this community have offered help and are visiting the newcomers.

Luckily, language is no problem. For the newcomers, their business and basic tongue has always been English, with the Swahili of Uganda as a second language. Not too many are at home in the dialects of India, for they have lived in Africa for some generations.

Women of the citizenship council, said Appleby, are offering further help by serving coffee and chatting with the women and children as if they'd known them for years.

Manpower is trying to find work for the husbands, with one placed so far and two or three tentative jobs in sight.

'Some Substantiation'

Cruelty Probe Ends

Charges of cruelty by orderlies at the Vancouver General Hospital annex appear to have "some substantiation," Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Thursday, adding he expects a complete report next week.

"There seems to be some substantiation of the charges and we are proceeding with the investigation," he said.

On Wednesday, William Lyle, deputy health minister, government investigator Peter Breel, private investigator William Mason and Mason's client held a three-hour meeting.

Mason brought the charges of alleged cruelty to the government's attention last week when his client, a hospital orderly, came to him and said his complaints to his supediors went unheeded.

Lyle said Thursday the meeting "certainly helped to give us a more complete picture," but added he is concerned about the publicity the charges have received since last week, and the damage it might do to staff morale and that of the patients' relatives.

The charges alleged that some orderlies physically abused the 97 sick, aged and crippled patients in the annex, and mistreated many of them.

Mason also said a spokesman for the Hospital Employees' Union, Local 180, threatened to sue him and his client.

Project May End

Unless the federal government's Local Initiative Program is carried on beyond the scheduled closing date of Nov. 30, the Provincial Museum may lose 35 people, most under the age of 30.

Museum director Bristol Foster hopes the program will go on. The Liberal government had aid, prior to Monday's election, that it would be continued.

"It would be tragic to lay off these people," said Foster.

Crown Appeal Path Clear

The way was cleared Tuesday by a three-judge panel of the B.C. Appeal Court in Vancouver for the crown to proceed with an appeal in the case of Victoria businessman David Hummel.

The unanimous ruling of the judges grew out of a two-day hearing in late September in Victoria, which started from the dismissal by Victoria Provincial Court Judge E. F. N. Robinson late in 1970 of five counts of income tax evasion against Hummel.

The crown wants to appeal that dismissal through a legal procedure called a stated case. One of the rules if that method is used that Hummel must have been served with notice of appeal within 15 days.

The crown couldn't find Hummel so it obtained an order from B.C. Supreme Court Justice P. D. Seaton for substituted service on representatives of Hummel. Later, however, Seaton ruled he did not have jurisdiction to make such an order.

Still later, Justice R. A. Wootton ruled he could not hear the stated-case appeal because service was not proper.

It was the Seaton and Wootton decisions that the crown took to the appeal court, which said in effect that procedural rules are wide enough to allow for an order for substituted service in such cases.

Hummel can still appeal the ruling to the Supreme Court of Canada. If the stated-case appeal takes place, it won't begin until possibly next spring and appeals from the resulting rulings could go through two more courts.

Should the crown win all the way, the case would go back to Robinson for rehearing. Legal sources said all this might take more than a year.

Boxing Inquiry Says:

Medical Supervision Should Be Tightened

WINNIPEG (CP) — Tightened medical supervision has been recommended by an inquiry commission into boxing.

The recommendation was made in the report of the commisssion investigating a boxing card which resulted in the death of one fighter and allegations that two other bouts were fixed.

It proposes, along with numerous recommendations involving promotional and administration aspects of the Manitoba Boxing and Wrestling Act, a central registry for ring records of all fighters.

The report of the one-member commission of County Judge Benjamin Hewak was released Thursday by recreation Minister Larry Desjardins.

Judge Hewak was appointed to inquire into a Feb. 21 card at Winnipeg Arena in which Stewart Gray of Toronto was knocked out by the Canadian light heavyweight champion, Al Sparks of Winnipeg. Gray died the next day in hospital.

While recommending closer medical supervision and detailed reports on fighters' medical records, Judge Hewak said there was no evidence to indicate a previous injury to Gray which could have been disclosed by pre-fight examination.

Death was caused by a hemorrhage secondary traumatic injury to the brain.

"Simply put, it would appear that Mr. Gray died as a result of injuries sustained to his brain due to blows delivered by Mr. Sparks during the course of the boxing contest."

"Clearly there appeared to be no culpability on the part of Mr. Sparks or no the part of the doctors or medical staff."

On another controversial aspect of the card, a claim by Detroit heavyweight Jim Christopher that his life was threatened unless he threw his fight with Canadian champion George Chuvalo of Toronto, Judge Hewak said he was unable to come to a conclusion.

"There was no evidence to establish the allegations made by Mr. Christopher independent of his testimony, just as there was no evidence to support the position that he deliberately fabricated the story."

Christopher made his allegation three days after the bout. He said the threat was made by an unknown man, but he did not believe Chuvalo, who had a match pending with former world champion Muhammad Ali, was involved in it.

Judge Hewak said the evidence led him to speculate "that what might have occurred is that some person suggested to Mr. Christopher — rather than threatened — that he fight in a style that would minimize the risk of possible injury to Mr. Chuvalo. Assuming this was the case, then it may account for Mr. Christopher choosing not to continue past the second round."

Christopher was counted in the second round.

The commissioner expressed no such doubt, however, about two other bouts in which knockouts were registered by Muhammad Ali Amaric over Jesse jfagan and by Narfis Ahmat over Sam Poe.

"It is my opinion, based on the evidence before me, that Mr. Poe and Mr. Fagan deliberately failed to rise and continue fighting after their knockdown and did in fact, to use the terminology of the boxing world, take a dive."

Two qualified medical doctors should be appointed by the commission to conduct pre-fight medical examinations of fighters and to attend at ringside during the boxing matches, rendering such medical assistance as is necessary.

The inquiry recommended that doctors conducting pre-fight medical examination require the fighters to produce a medical certificate indicating completion of neurological, psychiatric and electroencephalographic tests which proved to be normal and satisfactory. If the boxer is not able to produce such information, the medical doctor appointed by the commission should arrange to have these tests conducted before approving the fighter for a licence.

A complete physical examination including a neurological examination should be conducted in the day of the fight, at about noon, and then repeated just prior to the start of the bout.

Notts Picks Manager

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuter) — Dave MacKay, one of the outstanding figures in British soccer during the last decade, has been appointed manager of English League Second Division club, Nottingham Forest.

MacKay, 37, who resigned as manager of Swindon Town Wednesday, will seek to help Forest regain the First Division status it lost last season.

Hockey Vikings Off to Tournament

After weeks of preparation against local league teams, the University of Victoria hockey Vikings are ready to face the cruel world outside.

Vikings open their Canada West University Athletic Association schedule against University of Calgary at Memorial Arena Sunday, Nov. 12.

But first, there is a tough test this weekend when they take part in the western section of the national Hockey Canada tournament in Vancouver.

Vikings meet Calgary in their tourney opener tonight and coach Ron Maxwell feels his squad is ready.

Calgary coach George Kingston, who lost several players to the pro leagues in the off season, says his team is "not as strong this year."

Calgary has a 3-3-2 won-lost-drawn record in eight exhibition games this year and is 1-2-2 in five meetings with CWUAA teams.

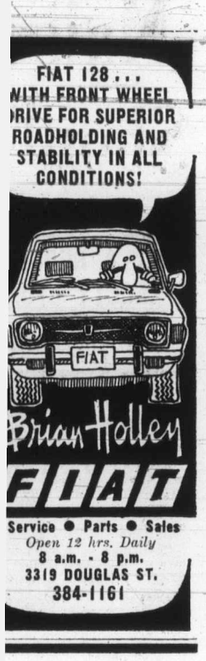

Last weekend, Calgary split a two-game series with University of Winnipeg, losing 3-4 and then winning 5-3. They tied, 2-2, with University of Manitoba.

Other universities in the weekend tourney are from Lakehead, Alberta (Edmonton) and British Columbia.

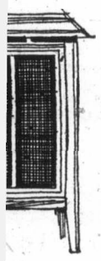

The winning team from each of the eight torunaments throughout the country advances to the Hockey Canada final in Hamilton in December.

If 'King' Buys Als He May Play Quarterback

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — "I never play an adequate football game," says quarterback Jim "King" Corcoran. "I'm either great, or I'm a bum."

Add another chapter to the saga of the King, who feels he's the savior of the Seaboard Professional League. Several weeks ago, he signed a contract to play for Chambersburg Cardinals of the seven-team circuit, the top minor league on the U.S. East Coast.

He went to Chambersburg after leaving Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League following a rather unimpressive showing during the pre-season schedule.

Although he boasts his name makes the Seaboard League "the top minor league in the country," his big ambition is to own the Alouettes.

He said Wednesday he plans to return to Montreal as head of a group which he says will make an offer to purchase the floundering franchise.

"I have partnerships with two millionaires and they're interested in buying a football team. I'd love to be an owner," he said.

In the meantime, he tells of his accomplishments in helping the Seaboard League.

"I think you're going to see more and more big name players come into the Seaboard League during the next couple of years. I've broken the ice."

The King gained a lot of his fame as quarterback at the University of Maryland:

"I still hold the record for being kicked off that team three times."

Then he went to Denver Broncos, New York Jets and Boston Patriots of the old American Football League before getting a tryout with Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

"I told this guy to get me some dry balls because the balls I was throwing were wet," he said of the Eagle camp run by coach Jerry Williams.

"Jerry thought I was yelling for him to get me the balls, so he came over and said. 'Who do you think you are telling me to get you some dry balls?' I got cut the next day."

Williams is now head coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the CFL.

On to Pottstown for Corcoran where he played with Pottstown Firebirds of the Atlantic Coast Football League. He starred in a nationally-televised special—Pro Football: Pottstown, Pa.—preceding the 1972 Super Bowl. He also quarterbacked the Firebirds to three consecutive league championships.

He was signed by the Alouettes before the current season and went to Montreal hoping to become the No. 1 quarterback. But, he says, Fred Wallner, former coach of Hartford Knights in the Atlantic Coast League and now an Alouette assistant, had other ideas.

"He hated the King," Corcoran said ruefully. "I was the No. 1 quarterback until the opening game. I was made No. 2 quarterback, but the King never plays No. 2 anywhere."

Some of his best times occurred in the pro ranks. When he roomed with Joe Namath of the Jets, Namath needled: "Hey, I hear you call yourself the King."

"That's right, Joe Willie," Corcoran replied, "I am the King. You are the Lord."

The King plans to write a book named what Howard Cosell once called him. "King Corcoran: The Glamorous Failure." He also plans to be in a movie called "Marine" this winter.

But he's not giving up football. He says if he purchases the Alouettes, he will even give some thought to coming back as a CFL quarterback.

West Race Tightens

Bruins Edge Tigers

Only four points separate the top five clubs in the Western Division of the Western Canada Hockey League following Thursday's play.

New Westminster Bruins edged travel-weary Medicine Hat, 4-3, to move into third place, two points behind the front-running Tigers. Edmonton Oil Kings also took advantage to get into a point of Medicine Hat by defeating Winnipeg Jets, 5-4. In the only other WCHL game Thursday, Brandon Wheat Kings moved four points ahead of second-place Saskatoon Blades by beating Flin Flon Bombers, 4-1.

Ron Greshner's 35-foot slapshot in the final period gave the Bruins the victory over the Tigers, who were playing their fifth game in six nights.

In Edmonton, the Oil Kings scored five goals in the first two periods and then survived a Winnipeg spurt early in the final period. Oil Kings led, 5-2, entering the third period but goals by Cam Connors, at 30 seconds, and Randy Knight, at 1:15, narrowed the margin to one goal.

Wheat Kings snapped a 1-1 tie with two second-period goals and put the game out of Bombers' reach with the only goal of the final period. Brandon's Jim. Rankin turned aside 39 shots, 17 in the last period.

Quebec Nordiques moved into second place in the Eastern Division of the World Hockey Association with a win Thursday night.

Nordiques downed Philadelphia Blazers, 6-3, before 6283 hometown fans to get within two points of leading Cleveland Crusaders.

Michel Archambault and Robert Guindon scored two goals each for Quebec. Blazers missed penalty-killing specialist Derek Sanderson who was injured Wednesday in a game against Cleveland, giving up two goals on power plays. They were the 13th and 14th goals scored with a manpower advantage by the Nordiques, who have a total of 38 goals.

New York Raiders climbed into a share of third place in the Eastern Division with New England Whalers by beating Minnesota Fighting aiSnts, 4-2, before 3047 fans in St. Paul.

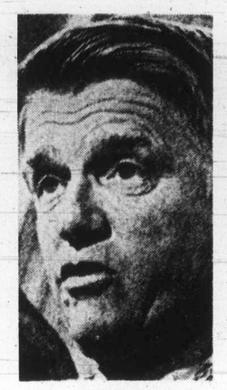

Overtime failed to break a 1-1 tie between Los Angeles Sharks and Ottawa Nationals before 2448 fans in Canada's capital. Gary Veneruzzo put Sharks ahead at 10:58 of the third period but Steve King's power-play effort with two minutes and four seconds left forced the extra time. George Gardiner was superb in the Sharks' nets, blocking 30 shots including breakaways by Wayne Cashman and Ron Climie.

Scorers:

QUEBEC (6) — Michel Archambault 2, Robert Guindon 2, Reiean Giroux, J. C. Tremblay; PHILADELPHIA (3) — Don O'Donoghue 2, Bryan Campbell.

Kings Demolish Bruins For Sixth Straight Win

They all look alike to Los Angeles Kings these days.

Off to a 1-6 start after playing their first six games away from home, the Kings have managed an amazing form reversal and Thursday night slapped down Boston Bruins, 5-2, and jumped into the lead in the National Hockey League's West Division.

It was the sixth straight win, all on home ice, in a streak in which the Kings have allowed only seven goals while scoring 25. They complete their home stand on Saturday against New York Islanders, then head off on a five-game road trip.

Thursday's victory left the Kings 2-0 against the Bruins this season. The first came in Boston, by 4-2, on Oct. 8 and was followed by a five-game losing streak. Kings ended the skid by bouncing Chicago Black Hawks, 3-1.

Ralph Backstrom, a 35-year-old speedster who spent his first 12 NHL seasons with Montreal Canadiens, and Wayne Cashman, a quarrelsome Boston winger, played startlingly different roles in the game.

Obviously not affected by the move which has him at left-wing instead of centre, Backstrom scored goals six seconds apart in the third period. They were his sixth and seventh scoring shots and 15th and 16th points of the season.

His goals came in an amazing five-minute stretch with Cashman viewing proceedings from the penalty box.

It was a 1-1 game when Cashman got into a scuffle with rookie Don Kozak. The latter, who either didn't get the chance to retaliate or was smart enough not to, drew only two minutes while Cashman got a major penalty.

It wasn't long after play resumed that Backstrom struck for his goals, and Dallas Smith got the Bruins to 2-3 while both clubs played shorthanded. But the Kings got power-play goals from Bob Berry and Real Lemieux before Cashman returned.

Defeat, their sixth in 12 games and leaving them below .500, dropped the Bruins 11 points behind the rampaging Canadiens.

The East Division leaders, stretching their unbeaten streak to 13 games with an easy ninth victory, gave 12,280 Atlanta fans some of the facts of expansion life by dousing the Flames, 6-1.

The first-year Atlanta club arrived home in third place and only two points out of the West Division lead after a fine road trip on which they won four out of six games. But they were simply outmatched by a club which is looking increasingly powerful.

Marc Tardif, who appears to be reaching for the stardom predicted for him when he was a junior star, scored his ninth and 10th goals.

Boxers Top Hoop Rivals

London Boxing Club crushed Restoration Services, 79-34, Thursday night in the first game for each club in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League.

Jim McKay and Duff McCaghey, with 14 points each, topped the scoring for the Boxers, who led, 37-17, at half time. Ed Steele, with 11 points, was the only Restoration Services player to reach double figures.

LONDON BOXING CLUB (79) — Rich Connolly 8, Bill Hingley 6, Jim McKay 14, Loris Corletto 8, Alfred Hass 7, Duff McCaghey 14, Sid Chow 8, Dan Ireland 2, John Speller 4, Mike Squires 8.

RESTORATION SERVICES (34) — Jim Hale 3, Ed Steele 11, Dave Price, Bill Nelson, Glen Lorimer 5, Rod Couveller, Al Martyn 6.

Some Suspensions Lifted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twenty-six senior players have had their suspensions lifted by the B.C. Soccer Commission.

They were among players who took part in games in the B.C. Premier Soccer League since it was banned by the commission Oct. 6. The 26 had either written or appeared before a special committee to seek clearance.

Other clearances are expected to follow, particularly for members of the Victoria Regals, who withdrew from the Premier League playoffs.

Wilf Sadler, the commission's Vancouver Island representative, is on holiday and the commission believes letters of appeal from Victoria players may have been mailed to his home.

"Our main goal is to get as many players as possible back playing," said Bill Stirling, a member of the special committee.

But Stirling said players who took part in the Premier League playoffs would have to sit out a full year suspension.

Columbus beat Croatia in the playoff semi-final and Spartans, who won by default over Regals, play Columbus in the final Sunday.

Molsons Can Expect Tough Test Saturday

Gorge Molsons will take the field at Royal Athletic Park at 2 p.m. Saturday in a bid for their third straight Pacific Coast Soccer League shutout.

Molsons, one of two rookie clubs in the league last year, hold an early lead after blanking Inter-Italia, 2-0, and North Shore United, 1-0.

But they may find the opposition a little tougher Saturday.

Visitors are Westminster Blues, who during the summer carried off the Canadian amateur club soccer championship.

Last weekend, Blues were unable to use several of their players pending announcements by the B.C. Soccer Commission on suspensions of players who turned out with the rebel B.C. Premier League since it was suspended.

The understrength Blues, who started with eight players and had nine in the second half, were trounced, 5-1, by Paul's Canadians.

It will be a different story Saturday after the B.C. commission lifted suspensions of 26 Premier League players and ruled they could take part in this weekend's Coast League games.

This ruling made available about eight New Westminster players, including former Victorian Tom Westwater and Blues expect to field a strong team.

Molsons, have not heard from the commission regarding the status of goalkeeper Graham Lee, who played for Victoria Regals in the Premier League.

Unless clearance for Lee comes through in time, coach Larry DeCosta, who came out of a seven-year retirement to record the two shutouts, will again be in goal.

The Gorge back four will be Brad Clarke, Doug Bisson, Doug Marshall and Darryl Hooker, linkmen will be Dan Henry and Randy Cronk and forwards will be Marvin Diercks, George Hyne, Garnet Moen and Joe Poulton. Reserves are Kurt Clarke, Dennis Somner and Dunc McCaig.

The Gorge-Westminster game is Saturday's only match. On Sunday, Victoria West-United, champions last season. meet Inter-Italia at Empire Stadium and North Shore plays Paul's at Kinsmen Park.

Morgan Closer To Tourney Card

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Vic Regalado of Tijuana, Mexico, fired a one-under-par 71 and regained a share of the fourth-round lead with Larry Stubblefield of Hawaii Thursday in the PGA qualifying school at Silverado Country Club.

Regalado and Stubblefield each finished the day with four-round totals of 285. Stubblefield carded a 72 after a 65 Wednesday.

Closest to the two leaders was Pat Fitzsimons of Salem, Ore., who shot 71 Thursday for a total of 289.

John Morgan of Victoria, was tied with four other players for eighth place at 297 after Thursday's round. Bob Panasuik of Windsor, was in a four-way tie for 12th place with 301.

Morgan carded a 72 Thursday while Panasuik had a 74.

Club Professional Leads Par-Shattering Field

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Longshot Bobby Loy forged a seven-under-par 65 for the surprise first-round lead Thursday in the $125,000 Texas Open golf tournament.

The 32-year-old Loy, a club pro at Burlington, N.C., held a one-stroke lead over veteran Dan Sikes, who took a 66 at the 7011-yard Woodlake Golf Club course.

Orville Moody, Mike Hill and rookies Larry White and Tom Watson were next at 67 as the touring pros took advantage of the near-ideal playing conditions to make a mockery of par.

Lee Trevino, the British Open champion, had to rally to salvage a 71.

The PGA Player of the Year, Jack Nicklaus, and Arnold Palmer are not competing.

A hot putter helped Loy make his best pro start. He needed only 28 putts on the tough, undulating greens.

Ben Kern of Toronto was in a group of 10 at 69.

Ken Fulton of Montreal carded a 73 while Gary Bowerman of Toronto and Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver were both at 74.

Northcott Replaces Evergreen Champ

VANCOUVER — George Fink of Calgary is unexpectedly unable to defend his title in the Evergreen Tournament of Champions, which opens this morning at the Vancouver Curling Club.

Winner in 1970 and 1971, Fink has been replaced on the teehead by Ron Northcott, three-time world champion who played third rocks for Fink last year in this event. Lloyd Woolley will be the vice-skip for Northcott.

Thirty-two rinks, most of them with the lineups planned for future playdown competition, will take part in the $5,600 competition. They will play through three events in a draw which doesn't bring elimination from the eight-rink final until a third loss. The semi-finalists in "A" event and the finalists in "B" and "C" events qualify for the playoff final.

First draw for each rink:

8:00 a.m. — Matt Baldwin, Edmonton vs Jack Aenet, Vancouver; Bob McCubbin, Richmond vs Keith Heuchert, New Westminster; Aubrey Neff, Vancouver vs Jim Kilburn, Squamish; Lynn Mason, Burnaby vs Lyall Dagg, Kelowna; Ken Hamilton, Grande Prairie vs Gordon Walker, Victoria.

10:30 a.m. — Art Winstanley, Trail vs Glen Harper, Duncan; Kevin Smale, Prince George vs Ray Guertin, Seattle; Glen Pierce, Vancouver vs Gene Kraus, Vancouver; Sam Cope, Vancouver vs Pete Sherba, Prince George; Mo Hill, Victoria vs Buzz McGibney, Trail.

1 p.m — Bernie Sparkes, Vancouver vs Brent Giles, Vancouver; Jack Tucker, Richmond vs Ted Moffatt, Prince George; Keith Dagg, Victoria vs Herb Van Grootel, Prince George.

3:30 p.m. — Ron Northcott, Calgary; vs Trev Fisher, New Westminster; Ed Risling, Seattle vs Fred Duncan, Duncan; Jake Block, Abbotsford vs Gary Leibel, Victoria.

Hugs and Cusses

DERBY, England (AP) — Derbyshire is searching for women referees to look after women's soccer games. They're too hot for men to handle, says the county's Football Association.

Male members of the Derby Referees Society complain they have been shocked by the girls, language; embarrassed by being cuddled by well-built centre forwards seeking favors for their teams; and flummoxed when a penalized player uses her ultimate weapon — a gush of tears.

"As soon as they put on football boots these young girls lose all their inhibitions," said secretary Frank Harwood, 34.

"The language can be as tough as in a game between coalminers. The technique of some well-known referees is to answer like with like but, being gentlemen, they can hardly do that in a women's match.

"And several members have reported they just don't know what to do when girl players put their arms around them. You can't very well book them for that."

Mrs. Anita Mozley, secretary of the district's girl soccer league, said she felt the men were getting all het up about nothing.

"Frankly," she said, "I think male referees are not manly enough. If they gave a strict pep-talk before the kickoff our players would know what to expect.

"Anyhow," she added, "we've only had one girl sent off. But that was for fighting as well."

Best Team May Miss Cup Final

Tyees Lose Another Committee-Room Decision

By MAX LOW

It now seems quite likely that the strongest high school soccer team on Vancouver Island and perhaps in B.C. won't make the Colonist Cup final.

Although by far the highest-scoring team in the Victoria High School Soccer League, Victoria Tyees are being outscored this season by off-the-field decisions.

And coach Ash Valdal is more than a little "fed up."

The latest decision was announced following a meeting of the Greater Victoria Sports Council Wednesday night, and it seems certain to keep the Tyees out of the league's playoff final for the Colonist Cup Nov. 10 and also out of the B.C. high school championships in Victoria Nov. 16-18.

It all started early in the season when Tyees, defending Colonist Cup and B.C. champions, and Mount View Hornets, runners-up last year, were both penalized for using over-age players.

Both were docked points and Joe Bekkers' Hornets never recovered.

Tyees, however, made a great comeback, and although just failing to catch the champion Oak Bay Bays, they are tied for second with Belmont Braves.

Really, much depends on today's final league game when Tyees play Reynolds Roadrunners and Braves meet Esquimalt.

Both should win and if they do, Belmont will collect both the Colonist Cup berth and a spot in the B.C. tourney.

Before Wednesday night's meeting, those rewards would have gone to Tyees.

The constitution states that if teams finish with the same number of points, then the team with the best record against the other gets the nod. The first Belmont-Victoria game was 0-0 and Tyees won the second, 5-1.

But the schools had forgotten one thing — that first game was one in which Victoria used an over-age player and Belmont took it by default.

That made it level again and the next step is to consider the team with the fewer losses. Both had lost four games, so it was back to square I.

The next yardstick would have been goal average and Tyees, with 53 goals for to only 14 against compared with a 24-24 record for Belmont, would have romped in.

But the soccer league had previously awarded no points — nor declared any winner or loser — in a match Sept. 22 when both Tyees and Hornets used ineligible players.

Wednesday night, the sports council declared both schools losers in that game, leaving Victoria with five losses to four for Belmont.

Valdal stormed from the meeting early and declared: "I'm fed up. It's almost become a farce!"

"There was nothing in the sports council's constitution to cover two teams defaulting," Valdal said. "I feel you can't possibly have two losers, but they (the sports council) virtually voted into the constitution that there can, in fact, be two losers. It's like putting a nail in the coffin."

But Bekkers, who is chairman of the soccer league coaches, said Thursday the constitution stipulates ANY team using ineligible players shall lose by default.

"There is nothing new in that," Bekkers said, "and after all you have to live by a set of rules."

A suggestion from another school that, if Victoria and Belmont are still tied after today's last matches, they meet in a special playoff game was defeated by one vote, Valdal said.

"I'm a little upset," said Valdal, who was a member of Victoria Regals in the ill-fated B.C. Premier Soccer League in the summer.

"It seems soccer isn't going my way at all this year . . ."

Esquimalt Dockers could be the ones to change Valdal's luck by beating Belmont tonight at 7 at Royal Athletic Park.

Alec Merriman

This is the time of year the salmon fishing pattern changes and anglers go out to get those still-growing immature chinooks, commonly referred to as winter spring salmon. They are different from the mature chinooks heading for the spawning rivers in that they still have immature roe and eggs and have another year to spend in saltwater.

Anglers in the past few days have been taking them by spinning or strip casting from the outer fringes of the Ogden Point docks and the Breakwater, using Buzz Bombs, Krippled K spoons and Minnow Teasers.

Some have been taking limits that way and one angler picked up 12, 14 and 21-pounders from Ogden Point. He was too high above the water to land the big one, but an angler in a passing boat obliged him by netting it for him.

The anchovies are in Esquimalt Harbor and spilling over along with herring into Victoria Harbor waters.

A good run of the chinooks has hit Becher Bay waters and anglers are taking them right along the log booms by Frazer Island. Five boats out Thursday morning all got fish in the 10 to 15-pound class. There are also still some big coho to be taken in Becher Bay area.

Oak Bay, Constance Banks and Piers Island waters have all been producing some good chinook fishing and so has Sansum Narrows.

Saanich Inlet is giving up some fair grilse fishing, but mingling with the keepers are plenty of undersized grilse (under 12 inches) that must be carefully released and returned to the water.

The chinooks are also being take in good numbers in Campbell River waters, all along the waterfront from the forestry station to Duncan Bay. Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Bob Gordon and John Ebert fished Duncan Bay waters for two hours and landed five chinooks in the 12 to 15-pound class.

★ ★ ★

Freshwater anglers are meeting with some success and fishing should get better as more wet weather comes and the rivers get a few freshets. First rains should see steelhead in the Gold. This is the time for a run of steelhead to the Quinsam, but it is still quite low. Lakes in the Nanaimo area are producing good catches of trout on fly and lures and Wild Deer Lake has been producing well.

★ ★ ★

Antlerless deer season opens on Vancouver Island Saturday and continues until Nov. 19, and hunters are reminded of the buck-only areas in watershed of the south fork of the Nanaimo River, watershed of the Chemainus River, Gordon River watershed and White River watershed.

Game officials will have game checks in operation during the doe season and hunters are reminded they are obligated to stop at the checkpoints.

Biologists want the jaw bones of the animals so they can learn and record the age in order to provide information that will help to manage the deer populations for the benefit of deer and hunters.

★ ★ ★

There will be some confusion about the closing of public access to logging areas over the Remembrance Day weekend because some loggers will take the Friday off and others the Monday off. There will be public access on the days loggers don't work.

In the Cowichan-Port Renfrew areas all logging operations will close on Monday, Nov. 12, which means that will be a public access day.

MacMillan Bloedel operations which will be closed and provide public access on the Monday include Menzies Bay, Chemainus and Shawnigan divisions.

Areas that will be closed on the Friday, when public access will be available, include Eve River, Kelsey Bay, Sproat Lake and all Alberni Valley, Port Hardy, and Northwest Bay divisions.

The Alberni Valley includes the Nitinat-Franklin River areas, and that means Monday access could be a bit of schemozzle with the Cowichan end providing no access Friday, but access on Monday, and the MB area access on the Friday and no access on the Monday.

★ ★ ★

Island Mountain Ramblers will hold their fall meeting in Nanaimo Sunday at the Bowen Park Complex, starting at 1 p.m. with a mountaineering movie, followed by a 15-minute business session, then color slides taken by members during outings this year. In the morning members will hike around Newcastle Island, meeting at 10 a.m. at the boat launching ramp, near the B.C. Ferry depot.

★ ★ ★

A bouquet to Highways Minister Robert Strachan for his refusal to close public access on the Glinz Lake and Youngs Lake Roads, as requested by the YMCA and Boy Scouts who operate camps in those areas. It was encouraging to hear it will be his policy "to open up more recreation areas to the public."

Swim Meet On Today

Five schools will attempt to knock off perennial-champion Oak Bay today in the annual Victoria senior high school swim meet at Colwood's Centennial Pool, Mt. Douglas, Belmont, Mount View, Claremont and Esquimalt will try to take the title held by the Bays the last 20 years.

The 22-event meet will be an open affair this year instead of being divided into club and novice divisions. Eliminations get under way at 1:30 and heat finals start at 7 p.m.

Reynolds Girls Top Volleyball

Reynolds carried off the main prize when the Lower Vancouver Island high school girls' volleyball championships ended Wednesday night.

Finishing the two-day tourney with a 13-1 win-loss record, Reynolds topped the eight schools competing and earned the first of three berths in the Island championships at Reynolds Nov. 11.

The other two berths went to the Belmont "A" squad, second with a 12-2 record, and Mt. Douglas.

Mt. Doug finished in a third-place tie with Belmont "B" — both had 8-6 records — but Mt. Doug took third because of a better record against Belmont.

The top three schools in the Island tourney go on to the B.C. championship in Kitimat Nov. 23, 24 and 25.

Other placings Wednesday were Esquimalt, the host school, with 7-7, Mount View with 4-10 and Claremont and Victoria, both with 2-12.

Reynolds placed four players — Diana McDonald, Di Pendray, Lucy Gutowski and Charlene Hunter — on the all-star squad.

Others named were Denise Montgomery of Belmont and Debbie Knowles of Esquimalt.

Saanich Rallies To Edge Rivals

Saanich Block Brothers moved into a share of third place in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League — but not without a struggle Thursday night.

Saanich, now tied with Juan de Fuca Gulls, needed three goals in the final period to score a come-from-behind, 5-4 victory over winless Esquimalt A and W at Esquimalt Sport Centre.

Brent Paterson scored twice for Saanich, including what proved to be the winner. Tom Davies, Cam Kring and Russ Stubbs were the other Saanich scorers. John Entzminger, with two goals, Dave Scott and Don Quaife scored for Esquimalt. After the clubs fought to a 1-1 tie in the opening period, Esquimalt took a 3-2 lead into the third period.

Fuller Lake Flyers hopped back into first place Wednesday with a 15-5 win over Racquet Club Kings at Fuller Lake Arena in Chemainus. Paul Livingston, with four goals, and Brian Smith and Clint Eccles, with three goals each, led the Flyers' attack.

Historic Victory

should not be given another chance."

Signs saying, "What about Watergate?" and, "Government by the corrupt, for the corrupt" were there to remind Nixon of that growing, and largely unanswered, list of accusations about political spying, secret campaign funds, big-business favoritism and other irregularities imputed to his administration and his campaign organizers.

The slogans were similar to those the president has seen everywhere in his limited campaign travels. Usually outnumbered by forests of printed signs saying, "Four more years" and, "Re-elect the president," the dissenting signs emphasize the real mystery behind the predictions of a Nixon victory.

Few political observers, however bold, have pretended to understand why so many voters say they will support Nixon.

Undoubtedly part of Nixon's backing will come from people whose main motivation is distaste for Senator McGovern.

The Democratic challenger has had trouble establishing himself as a viable alternative to Nixon, thanks to some allegedly radical policy stands, developments in Vietnam, organizational troubles and the demolition work of Republican campaigners.

Another important part of the Nixon vote is predicted to come from the homeless conservative supporters of Alabama Gov. George Wallace, who won 16 per cent of the total vote for president in 1968 but was forced out of the 1972 running in May by a would-be assassin's bullets.

However, such projections leave much unexplained, especially in light of what has been made public about voter opinions.

In-depth surveys indicate that the president is still not much loved. He has not convinced a majority that he is a great leader. He is not regarded as particularly capable in dealing with pocketbook issues, and he is still identified uncomfortably with the privileged and big business.

Yet the same surveys imply that he could end up with more vote support than did Lyndon Johnson, Dwight Eisenhower, Franklin D. Roosevelt or almost any notable vote-getting president back to George Washington.

It is a truism of American politics that foreign policy doesn't win votes. Yet the Nixon trips to Peking and Moscow are constantly cited by voters as one of their main reasons for supporting the president.

It has been a vain exercise for his opponents to remind voters that Richard Nixon himself, as congressman and senator and vice-president, was in the forefront of those Cold Warriors and "Commie" hunters who had helped make it politically suicidal for earlier presidents to improve relations with China or the Soviet Union.

Apart from foreign policy, such issues as the war in Vietnam, the fight against crime and narcotics, school busing, economy in government and above all national pride appear to have been pre-empted by Nixon.

Elected president when the United States seemed exhausted by race riots and antiwar discord, Nixon now presides over a country that looks as calm as a mill pond by comparison.

His conservative Supreme Court appointments, his insistence on law and order as opposed to "permissiveness," and his expanded federal anti-crime budgets appear to have answered a widespread public concern about mushrooming crime statistics and the spread of addiction.

Although American lives continued to be lost in Vietnam and American bombs continued to lay waste that wretched country, Nixon's highly visible peace negotiations through adviser Henry Kissinger seem to have convinced many that the president is ending the war.

And his pledge of "peace with honor" — which his opponents regard as a mockery of the language — nevertheless has an appeal for the many Americans who hold patriotism as a vivid and unquenchable necessity.

On the emotional issues of school busing and amnesty for draft evaders, the president also has struck a seemingly responsive chord with vigorous opposition to both.

The combination of his record as president and his stand on the issues has thrust Richard Nixon, two months away from his 60th birthday, to a political height that few could have foreseen.

Elected to the federal House of Representatives after the war from his native California, Nixon became known as an occasionally ruthless campaigner, an aggressive legislator and a relentless anti-communist.

He moved into a Senate seat in 1950 and two years later was picked by Gen. Eisenhower as vice-presidential running mate. Despite a vigorous move to oust him from the 1956 election, Nixon retained Eisenhower's support and was thus the leading candidate for the Republican against John F. Kennedy in 1960.

After his hair-line loss to Kennedy, Nixon returned to California and two years later lost a race for governor It was then that he snapped to the press.

You won't have Nixon to kick around any more."

From that low point, he moved to a New York law practice and slowly repaired his political prospects. By 1968, he could easily out distance Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York for the Republican nomination again.

The loser image got sustenance, however, when Nixon barely squeaked past Hubert Humphrey for the presidency after holding a large early lead, and again in 1970 when his attempt to dislodge the Democrats from Congress in mid-term elections was nearly a total bust.

Nixon's popularity at that time was at an ebb and he seemed virtually certain to lose to anyone the Democrats cared to name, his stewardship since then, and disorganizaion in the Democratic ranks, have reversed the tide.

The security apparatus which surrounds Nixon, and the largely faceless staff which advises him, have served to make the president an unknown personality. Although family and staff describe him as warm, thoughtful and self confident, he gives an impression in public of awkwardness and machine-like dedication.

The demands of security are almost overwhelming.

Although he shook hundreds of hands on his recent motorcade in suburban New York, for example, and plunged several times into a jostling crowd, the president was in fact protected by an army of security men who had previously sealed manhole covers along the route, forbidden residents to lean out their windows and watched the crowds with unflagging suspicion.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Author Mickey Spillane, creator of detective Mike Hammer, said his book The Erection Set was removed from the shelves of the Jacksonville public library for political reasons. The novel, which features a nude cover picture of Mrs. Spillane, was taken from the shelves after an "anti-smut" committee, headed by a write-in legislative candidate, charged that it was hard-core pornography. Spillane said he doesn't write pornography "because it doesn't sell."

Cash-flow. It's Toronto Dominion's modern way to borrow. Here's how it works.

You're probably basing many of your major expenditures on a cash-flow system right now. For example, you figure how much money you'll have coming in over a period of a year, and how much you plan to spend during the same period.

This difference between income and expenditure is your guide to the amount you may comfortably borrow.

Cash-flow is the realistic way to borrow because it's based mainly on what you earn, not what you own. If you feel you'd like to get to know Sir John A. a little better, (he's on Canada's new tens) drop in and see your Toronto Dominion Bank Manager, he'll introduce you—the Cash-flow way.

Anti-Soviet Actions

Reds, Allies Boycott Chinese Trip

PEKING (UPI) — The Soviet Union and most East European ambassadors have boycotted a trip to northwest China arranged by the Chinese foreign ministry, according to Peking informants.

The boycott is related to what are considered anti-Soviet actions by Chinese authorities.

Most of the other heads of mission in Peking left today for Chungking in Szechuan province for a boat trip up the Yangtse River to Wuhan, in central China.

Before the trip, according to the Peking informants, the Soviet Union pointed out to Chinese authorities the trip was too close to the 35th anniversary of the October Revolution that overthrew the Czars of old Russia and established the Soviet Union.

The Chinese assured the Russians the diplomats would be back in Peking Nov. 6. To be sure the diplomats would be in town, however, the Soviet Union changed the date of the reception to Nov. 8.

The Soviet decision to boycott the trip was reinforced Wednesday night when the Russian ambassador walked out of a reception at the Algerian Embassy. The Soviet walkout from the Algerian reception was regarded by informants as an indication that relations between the Chinese and Russians were becoming more strained.

The informants said there had been a tacit understanding between Moscow and Peking that Chinese criticism of "the two superpowers" would be acceptable so long as the Soviet Union or "social imperialism" was not mentioned by name.

Elusive Controls

Prices, Demands Snag Heath Plan

LONDON (UPI) — New price increases and labor demands Thursday hampered Prime Minister Edward Heath's effort to end inflationary pressures until he can win agreement on his wage-price restraints package.

Company announcements jumped the cost of some cars and trucks, continental train trips and domestic plane rides while the union representing the U.K. Coast Guard threatened a slowdown and the country's power workers renewed negotiations on their call for a 37-per-cent pay increase.

The moves came as the cabinet met to discuss Heath's strategy in his next meeting with union and industry leaders.

The three sides met again Thursday evening. None of the union members would commit himself even to say whether the talks were at a make-or-break stage.

Heath called the meeting after the unions sidestepped his demand that they either agree to voluntary restraints or accept mandatory ones in a nine-hour session Wednesday.

Labor sources said the unions avoided the showdown by shifting discussion away from the basic wage-price issue to other items in the package, such as rents, pensions and investment dividends.

This left the three sides with the union leaders' demand that price controls be legally enforced while wage restraints remain voluntary, still unresolved.

The extension of the talks coincided with announcements during the night of a 5-per-cent price increase on all cars and trucks made by Chrysler Corp. and in the cost of all domestic air flights. British Rail said it was adding a 4-per-cent surcharge to all train trips to the Continent.

Japanese Spots Second Comet

Unions Want B.C. Probe Of Bankrupts

The Vancouver Island Building Trades Council, claiming construction workers are being short-changed to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars, has asked B.C. Attorney-General Alex Macdonald to undertake a study of the whole area of business failures.

In a letter sent Thursday to Macdonald, council secretary John Schibli of Victoria requests that a study include: the "deplorable" rate of bankruptcies; the effect on the economy; the "practice of the repeaters who use the present laws to escape their responsibilities by going out of business one day and merely surface under another legal entity the very next day."

The letter follows by one day Schibli's report to the Victoria Labor Council that B.C. construction workers had lost an estimated $200,000 over the last two years in wages and fringe benefits.

He said at the time the trades council would ask for legislation to protect construction workers from suffering such financial losses to the large number of contracting companies that "go belly up."

In his letter to Macdonald, he said in part: "The hardship and suffering that thousands of workers' families endure as a result of these often irresponsibly contrived failures cannot, of course, be neatly catalogued in statistical terms, but are a stark reality that cries out for remedies."

The letter informs Macdonald that the council and its affiliated unions can supply his department with "ample evidence of the abuses" and, that the council has active files on five such business failures in Victoria alone.

The construction industry, according to Schibli, is among the hardest hit areas of the business world where failures are concerned.

Hot and Cold

October was one of those crazy months.

On some days, summer clothes were just fine. On others, heavy parkas barely kept out the cold.

Weather officials at the Gonzales Observatory regional climate data centre said maximum temperature of 66.7 degrees for the month on Oct. 15 shattered the previous record for that date in 1929 by two degrees.

And, the weatherman said, the 35.5-degree minimum on Oct. 30 was the lowest, other than the 1970 and 1971 lows, since 1961 and the eighth lowest on record.

Officials at Gonzales Observatory and Victoria International Airport agreed October was generally cooler, drier, sunnier and less windy than normal.

'Spate of Protests' Discussed

Arboreal Villains Menace Oak Bay by Night

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Those trees out there in quiet Oak Bay are getting to be pretty aggressive.

In the day time, they look quiet and innocent, but at night when no one is looking they go about their evil work.

They trespass on people's property, ruin their lawns, dirty their windows, and lay shadowy traps for unwary pedestrians.

That was the story put to Oak Bay's parks and recreatio committee meeting Thursday night, during the course of which committee members got some free legal advice on the rights of trees from Ald. John Goult.

It is not possible for a tree limb — or the owners of that limb — to be charged with trespass on another's property, even if it does encroach, he said.

If the limb is sound then the owners of that limb cannot be made to cut it off.

There's a little kicker in there, however.

If, to be neighborly, the owners of that limb give permission for it to be lopped off, and in the process it damages the neighbor's property, then they may be liable to a damage suit.

And so ended the legal lesson.

It was prompted by a spate of written protests, all concerning trees.

One tree on Dalhousie Street is sending up shoots all over the lawn, and within two feet of the house.

"Will you please have this tree taken out and the roots killed at your earliest convenience," was the request tabled by the committee, from the beleaguered householders.

Some enormous trees on Sutherland Road are also terrifying the neighbors.

The roots are pushing up the turf on lawn and boulevard and taking the goodness out of the lawn, while the leaves rain pitch on residents, visitors, cars and house windows, complained Mr. and Mrs. R. Bentley of 2109 Sutherland.

Arborist Michael Gye reported that branches are trespassing onto the Bentley property, but Goult objected to that concept.

It was decided to recommend that council remove one tree, prune another and plant another.

Another tree, which had been wounded in a previous battle (it was pruned by B.C. Hydro men) had rebounded to spread in all directions, ruining a small inoffensive holly tree in the process.

Actually, reported Gye, the tree, a London plane at 2548 Lincoln Road is in a sorry state. He recommended pruning again and council will be asked to approve that course of action.

There are some more aggressive trees out there on Beach Drive.

They have grown so that they cover street lights in that area, creating shadows where an unwary pedestrian could be hidden and run down by passing motorists. They will be investigated.

One tree, a flowering plum on Larkdowne Road was given a reprieve. It had grown much bigger than its neighboring trees and was obscuring part of the view for John and Ellen Martin at 3062 Larkdowne Road. The committee felt the tree should be left alone.

Many other requests for action were tabled until committee members could view the scene of alleged crimes and in other cases it was decided to recommend that the trees be pruned, removed or left alone.

The committee also spent some time on a list of suggested projects for submission for winter works program grants.

Most of the items to be recommended to council are concerned with recreation, since Mayor Frances Elford had told them they would probably receive first priority approval from the federal government.

It was also decided to recommend to council that the Uplands garbage collection route should be the first to have a newspaper pickup for recycling.

The committee was told that the scheme could go into effect two weeks from now, with papers being picked up by a special truck on the regular garbage collection day and sold directly in Victoria.

Studies May Provide First Crack at Corpse in Sky

Two Victorians Have Stars in Their Eyes

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

Somewhere out there 6,000 lightyears from Earth (don't bother looking — you'll never find them), two heavenly bodies, one believed to be a neutron and the other a star with the most fantastic temperature variation ever discovered, rotate around each other, divulging a world first in information to two Greater Victoria men of science.

The observations of Dr. David Crampton and interpretation of Dr. John Hutchings at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain concerning what Crampton calls a "double star," will be published in December in the Astrophysical Journal of the American Institute of Physics.

Hopefully, according to Crampton, their studies will eventually provide the world with its first real knowledge of the neutron star (the corpse of a star) and some kind of an insight into the life cycle of an ordinary star.

HZ Hercules

Crampton, who sat drawing diagrams in the living room of his Gordon Head home Thursday night for the benefit of a bewildered reporter, said the regular star was discovered in 1940 and given the name HZ Hercules.

Early this year the American satellite UHURU discovered there was a source of x-rays coming from the star's area. It also provided the fascinating information that every 36 days there would be a nine-day period of much more intense x-ray activity allowing for better observation.

A Flickering

That's where Crampton and Hutchings come into the picture.

With the use of the observatory's 72-inch telescope and refined calculations, they got an image of one faint star, but discovered the motions of rotation and the fact there were really two.

This was broken down to show the rotation takes 1.7 days.

"Superimposed on all of this," said Crampton, "is a flickering every one-and-a-quarter seconds."

The accepted theory is that these come from rapidly rotating neutron stars.

While he hasn't definite proof yet, Crampton is almost certain one of the objects of his attention is a neutron.

Only one other neutron was ever observed optically, he said. That was one observed in the Crab Nebula by the Chinese in 1054 AD. There was no chance then to make the study that is being made today.

The neutron is described by Crampton as the corpse of a star that has probably existed 10 billion years. It is the collapsed core of the star, minus atoms and electrons and so dense that a piece the size of a sugar cube would weigh 100 million tons.

In Rotation

The other star involved in the rotation turned out to have a temperature ranging from 6,000 degrees Centigrade on one side to 15,000 degrees Centigrade on the other.

"We have never discovered a star that has done this before to such a fantastic degree," Crampton said.

"This is being caused by the suspected neutron, which he says has a surface temperature of 10 million degrees Centigrade. The sun's surface temperature is almost cool by comparison — 6,000 degrees.

"The particular interest in a neutron star in a system like this is that you can determine some of the dimensions and its properties," Crampton said.

Until Spring

Further observations can't be made until the spring because the stars are too close to the sun at the moment, he said.

From observations so far it is felt the mass of the suspected neutron (weight) is slightly more than that of the sun.

"This is consistent with what we expect from a neutron," he said.

Some very interesting questions remain to be answered by the two men, or others around the world continuing the study.

With Interest

"For instance, there is no good interpretation for the 36-day period," Crampton said. "Why does it take on the more intense X-ray system every 36 days? We don't know the answer to that."

He is looking forward with interest to one other possible finding.

"Out of this may come some theory of how a star does, in fact, evolve."

A neutron star doesn't really come into existence without the assistance of one of the galaxy's most spectacular shows, according to Crampton. This is the super nova — a large explosion.

Over a period of millions of years hydrogen is converted into helium in the core of the star. The core grows and the star swells. In the end it collapses suddenly and there is an explosion blasting away the surface portion of the star.

By the way, this usually happens somewhere every 50 years or so and Crampton says our galaxy is "overdue" for just such a show.

Heynsbroek
. . . aldermanic bid

First One In Race

A Victoria woman who has been a strong opponent of highrise development on the city's waterfront is the first person to file her papers as a candidate for alderman in Victoria in the Dec. 9 municipal election.

Joyce Heynsbroek, 44, of 1448 Vining, is a registered nurse who first sought civic election a year ago. She filed her papers Thursday with city clerk Morran Waller.

The Victoria voters' list for Saturday, Dec. 9, says Waller, this year includes 17,757 property owners, 3,432 resident-electors and 198 tenant-electors, for a total eligible of 21,387.

There is no mayoralty contest this year. Voters will elect four Victoria aldermen, while five trustees will be elected to the school board from the school district at large.

Family Out During Fire

A fire swept through the Albert Sayers residence at 677 Sevenoaks while nobody was home Thursday afternoon and left extensive damage inside the house in its wake, Saanich fire department officials reported.

Officials said the fire originated in a front bedroom and speculated it may have been caused by an article left on top of a table lamp.

The blaze was discovered by one of the Sayers' six children — a boy about 15 years old — and the fire department received the report about 3:20 p.m.

Venomous Spider Could Be Lurking in B.C.

By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Reporter

One of North America's most dangerous spiders may be lurking undetected in B.C. basements, closets, and storerooms.

The highly venomous Brown Recluse or Fiddleback spider, normally found from Kansas to the Mexico Gulf coast and from Tennessee to Oklahoma has been blamed recently for several severe illnesses in northwestern U.S.A.

Dr. Albert Turnbull, pestologist at Burnaby's Simon Fraser University told the Colonist Thursday there was no record of this spider being in the province.

"But if they have been reported in the Northwestern States they could be in B.C." Turnbull said.

He described the species as an "ordinary-looking brown spider with a leg and body span a little smaller than a dime."

It has a violin-shaped dark marking on its back.

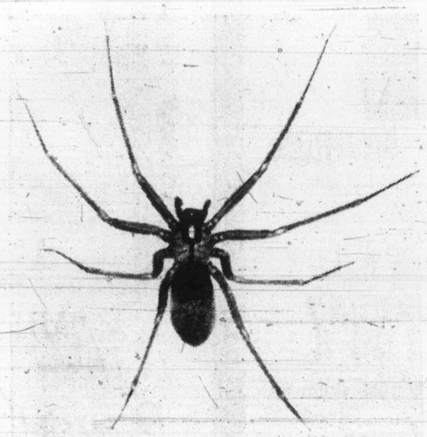

"It's a pretty nasty little spider and a person bitten may not realize it for some time. The skin and flesh around the bite starts to break down and in severe cases the area affected can reach about two-and-one-half inches in diameter," he said.

He also stressed there is no known cure for the spiders' poison.

Turnbull is one of Canada's leading authorities in the study of spiders.

An Oregon woman told doctors she believed she was bitten on the hand by a fiddleback while on a camping trip last summer in Utah.

The doctors worked all summer to save her hand. A skin graft was needed to cover the back of her hand where tendon and other tissues were destroyed. She has regained partial use of the hand after months of painful therapy.

COMMON BROWN, with dark brown violin-shaped spot on its head and about the size of a dime, the Fiddleback spider is potentially more dangerous than Black Widow.

Turnbull said the Fiddleback is not an aggressive spider but will bite if handled or trapped in clothing.

He emphasized the spider's habit of living undetected in basements of buildings.

"One time a large infestation of them was discovered in the basement of one of the buildings at Harvard University, although the spider was not known to be in Massachusetes," Turnbull said.

He also added that the building where the spiders were found had been used for the study of spiders for years.

Turnbull said the Fiddleback could be destroyed by the use of ordinary pesticides.

"The Black Widow spider is also found in B.C. and is, of course, known to be poisonous but the results of its bite are entirely different from that of the Fiddleback," Turnbull explained.

He said the Black Widow leg and body span is about the size of a quarter. Its body is shiny black and has a red-hour-glass shape on its abdomen. He also said sometimes only two red dots appear on the spider's abdomen instead of the hour-glass.

A Black Widow's bite can be lethal to young babies and also to persons in ill health.

For most persons in good health, a bite from a Black Widow can cause severe stomach cramps and high body temperature.

Like the Fiddleback, the Black Widow is a shy spider and is not aggressive.

"They only attack for food and in no way do they recognize a human as a source of food," Turnbull said.

Pope on British Poster

Birth Control Pitch Shocks Catholics

By CHRIS ANDREWS
Colonist-Gemini Services

LONDON — The Pope is once again being attacked in birth control propaganda calling on Roman Catholics to take a more positive line in limiting the sizes of their families.

A large poster now being circulated in British schools and colleges shows a picture of the Pope in prayer with the caption: "With world population at crisis point it's a pity he doesn't preach what he practices."

If it is offensive, as it will be to many Catholics, then the object of the exercise will be almost half accomplished, for at least it will get Catholics talking about the subject.

So says Mrs. Rosamund McDougall, 24-year-old director of Population Stabilization (P.S.), who freely admits that the poster is a bit of shock progaganda.

Shocking or unorthodox tactics are very much the main theme of the way P.S. tries to get its message about birth control across. For instance, last summer in the London borough of Southwark a parade was staged with supporters dressed as pregnant schoolgirls to draw attention to the high figures for teenage abortions in the area. As a result, free birth control, which is being provided by neighboring Westminster Council, is being called for in Southwark.

The initial response to the papal poster from Catholics has been a predictable one. A spokesman for the Catholic church in England and Wales, Father George Leonard, said olics maintain the region only makes up for nearly eight per cent of world population.

P.S. points out it is only in London that "the Pope is once again being dragged into this distasteful kind of propaganda."

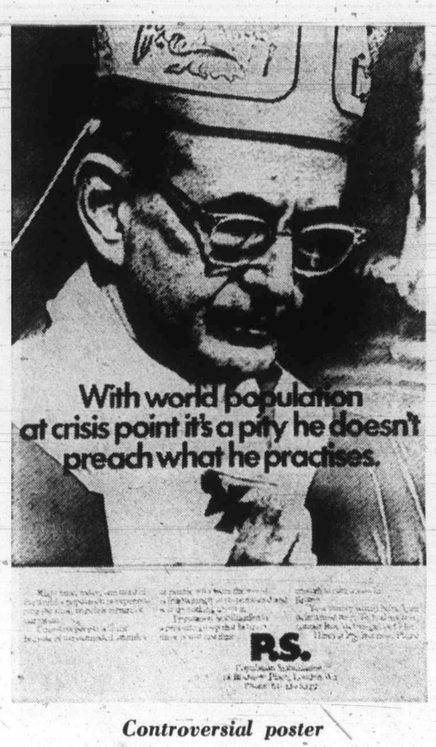

He added: "The implication from the caption is that the Pope must tell parents to stop having children. In any case it is not at all clear because if it is calling for celibacy to be advocated among Catholics, this must imply absolute purity for all."

He said the church maintains there should be "responsible parenthood," and no outside agencies or indeed devices should be used to interfere with natural life, love and emotions.

Natural rhythm, he said, was the only admissible form of contraception. He thought this method adequate for "responsible parenthood."

Another pro-Catholic argument is that the facts show that the over-populated areas of the world are predominantly non-Christian.

Mrs. McDougall and her colleagues are not disputing this. Their concern is that in the Catholic Latin American region the annual population growth rate is nearly three per cent—the fastest-growing rate in the world. Some Cath-concerned with stemming the fast growth rate and if Catholics do not want to employ more effective birth control methods, then contrary to what Father George claims, they are being irresponsible parents not only to their children but to the world.

Controversial poster

United Nations estimates suggest that in 35 years time, at the present growth rate of 1.99 per cent annually, the world population will have doubled to seven thousand million. The worry of bodies like P.S. is that the subsistence level will be far below population needs.

Britain's population is estimated to reach the 66 million mark by the year 2,000, or an addition of 650 people each day.

Britain's Catholic population is nearly five million and on average their family sizes are slightly bigger than the national average of 2.5 children.

P.S., whose slogan is Stop at Two, says the replacement size family needed to achieve a permanent stablization of population is 2.1 children, but a recent survey in Britain showed that the ideal family size in terms of what couples would like to have is 3.5 children.

Mrs. McDougall says that it is everybody's business including Catholics, to help stem the growth rate.

She said the poster on the Pope was not intended to be anti-Catholic, just a graphic way of drawing attention to the population explosion. She was sure many Catholics would sympathize with what they were striving for.

P.S., which is a voluntary body, has also submitted a comprehensive report on population to the British government. The report highlights the problems of over-population, not only in Britain but in the world in general, and makes recommendations as to what could be done.

With 20 branches throughout Britain, the body is pressing local authorities to offer free contraceptives as well as abortions where necessary.

For her part, Mrs. McDougall tends to practise what she preaches. Although she is childless at the moment, she hopes to limit her family to two.

It seeks to educate the people about over-population and hopes to persuade the government to recognize the need for a stable population. Membership of P.S., which has only been going since the beginning of the year, is now 1,000.

Best Man

LONDON (AP) — David Shimeld was best man when his former wife remarried.

Hot Potatoes

MOSCOW (AP) — A worker at a radio plant in Siberia sent 695 pounds of potatoes to a friend at another plant in central Russia, marked them "equipment" and billed the factory for the shipping charge, the newspaper Pravda reported. Officials were angry, the friend embarrassed and the potatoes ended up in the plant cafeteria.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I lost my husband to another man. Before you jump to conclusions, let me explain. We are both 52. Arthur and I had a good marriage until a few years ago. Our children are grown and on their own. Arthur is what you might call peculiar, but he is not queer. The "other man" is his bachelor brother.

The minute Arthur gets up in the morning he telephones Brother to ask if he had a good night's sleep. Then they plan what they're going to do that evening.

The two of them act like teen-agers. I am not included in any of their activities. Brother has dinner with us every night, unless he and Arthur decide to eat out. Brother rarely speaks to me and have given up trying to be friendly. I consider him an arch-rival who has taken my husband away.

Please give me some advice before I crack up. Or have I cracked up already? — Impossible Situation

Dear I.P.: Your signature describes your dilemma. What you fail to understand is that no one can be taken over unless he wants to be. Your husband is a willing partner in this grossly immature involvement.

Would your life be better or worse without him? This is the question you must ask yourself. A woman of 52 is too young to dry up and blow away. Base your decision on what is best for YOU. Arthur has already decided what is best for him.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a word of encouragment for Hooked who will soon be a teen-ager and is still sucking her thumb.

When I was six years old my folks tried everything to get me to stop. Nothing worked. The doctor told Mom to leave me alone.

I am 18 now and will be married in October. I quit sucking my thumb three months ago when I announced my engagement. It happened almost overnight. I don't know if it was my pride, love, being loved, or a combination of all three. If I could kick the habit anyone can. Please tell Hooked I'm rooting for her, Ann. — Unhooked

Dear Unhooked: Nothing helps like having someone say, "I did it, you can, too." Thanks for the encouragement.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for that broad who thinks people are stingy if they don't take passengers along "as a favor" since they were "going anyway." Listen lady the average autumobile depreciates at the rate of seven cents a mile. You didn't say how far it was and I can imagine what you meant by "a few personal belongings." Maybe a small sewing machine, a hair dryer, a couple of wig boxes, and a bird cage.

When I was in high school my dad gave me orders. If I carried passengers to games or barn dances, they had to chip in for the gas and oil. If a tire blew, they had to kick in for that; too. In other words, no freeloading. These are darned good rules to live by.—Fair.

Dear Fair: I suspect you're about my vintage. In those days (antiluvian, of course) a buck was a lot harder to come by and a car was a big deal. I agree that a person who travels several hundred miles as a passenger should offer to share the cost of the gas and oil but short trips should be favors.

Childproof Containers Lacking

WASHINGTON (AP) — A shortage of childproof containers has prompted the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to delay the deadline for safety packaging of aspirin, dangerous drugs and certain liniaments.

The notice, published in the Federal Register a week ago, gives 55,000 retail pharmacists in the United States until Jan. 22, 1973, to comply.

The original deadlines, based on a two-year-old law, had been Aug. 14 for aspirin, Sept. 21 for methyl salicylate or wintergreen oil, and Oct. 24 for 4,300 types of such controlled drugs as amphetamines, barbiturates and narcotics.

"We just learned of the shortage recently," said Henry Verhuist, director of the chemical-hazards division in the FDA's Bureau of Product Safety. "Packaging producers just have not kept up with the demand."

The delay now affects only retail druggists, and covers more than one billion prescriptions they fill annually.

Leonard Sisk, an FDA pharmacist, said the shortage was compounded by pharmacists deciding to put all prescriptions in child-resistant containers.

The law requires that the containers foil efforts of 60 of 200 young children, yet may be opened by 90 of a group of 100 adults.

Sisters Reunited After 61 Years

An Esquimalt woman, Mrs. Agnes McMillan of 1180 Colville Road, is game for a family reunion overseas even at age 87.

She joined five sisters and one brother in her birthplace, Campbeltown, Scotland, at their first reunion in 61 years.

Mrs. McMillan was the oldest of the group, the youngest was 69.

She enjoyed every minute of the six-weeks trip, her daughter Mrs. Molly Cameron of Victoria, says. Although she had revisited Scotland previously, it was the first time in 61 years she had seen her sisters from Australia.

A widow, Mrs. McMillan came to Canada in 1913 and has lived here for many years. She is an avid bingo player and goes out to games three nights a week.

Her other children are sons Alex and James in Victoria and daughters, Mrs. Nancy Pollock in Victoria and Mrs. Ina Laxton in Langley.

Amish Reject State Funds

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — The Amish of Lancaster and Lebanon counties say they will return $260,000 in state aid for private schools because it is their custom to support their own schools. Andrew Kinsinger, superintendent of Amish schools in Pennsylvania, wrote to Dr. Loyd Ruoss, executive director of schools for the two counties and told him his people will not need the aid.

For Jubilee

Bazaar Brings $7,000

After an absence of a year, the annual bazaar of Royal Jubilee Hospital Auxiliary bounced back Wednesday and raised approximately $7,000.

General convener Mrs. D. M. Fraser, her assistant Mrs. Florence Joyce and other auxiliary members were happy with the results.

Guests were welcomed by Mrs. G. B. MacKay, president, and stalls decorated in red and white, held a variety of gifts and novelties made by members. Candy and home-cooking stalls, jewelry counter and white elephant department did a brisk trade.

Top prize, a reproduction of a Victorian chair donated by F. W. Bartholomew of the Gallery, went to Mrs. Mary Butler.

In Rights Tussle Best Women Win

By KATHRYN HAZEL
Colonist Reporter

If women want to have rights, they'll have to fight for them, says Chris Waddell of the labor department's women's division in Vancouver. And that's not easy.

But it's very necessary, as she found when she first came to B.C., she told an audience of about 25 Thursday at the fourth in a series of noon-hour talks sponsored by Victoria Status of Women Action Group.

She was working in a restaurant, and one of the employees started a union which management strongly opposed. One by one the union members were fired, but she kept on despite attempts by management to make her quit.

"It wasn't an easy feeling," she said. Eventually she went to work for the union herself, and when she did, management protested, saying that the union was "taking away our best girl."

"And of course, I was—you have to be the best if you're trying not to be fired."

She learned then that she had to assert her rights if she wanted to keep them. This is something more women are beginning to relize, she said.

"There are a lot of unhappy women, but a lot of women are getting happier. Why is it when women want to do something they're pictured as a bunch of radicals? We're not radicals—we just want what are our rights."

Governments are always open to suggestions, she said.

Women should test laws against discrimination already on the books, and apply for jobs in management or in traditionally male fields.

Chris Waddell
. . . learned hard way

"To me the important thing is that the girl who is a secretary today should be able to move up. We not only don't have women at the top, we don't even have any in the middle."

Employers who flatly refuse to hire women aren't the only obstacle to women's progress, she said. There's also an unconscious bias against women in such professions as law and medicine.

Males have now moved into the traditionally female jobs of teaching and welfare work, she pointed out, so why shouldn't women move into traditionally male jobs?

She said one unfortunate aspect of women's liberation is that the women who have chosen to stay at home "are getting the impression that we think they're dumb for staying home.

"We should be careful not to hurt those women. Work is not the be-all and end-all. I would hate to see everybody going out to work for wages. The woman should have a choice as to what she wants to do."

However, she said, working women must be careful that they aren't exploited. Under the law a woman is entitled to four hours' minimum pay, even if she does not work the full four hours.

If you aren't getting your fair share, you should file a complaint, she said, because if you don't, you're hurting yourself and other women, as well as the fair employer who obeys the law.

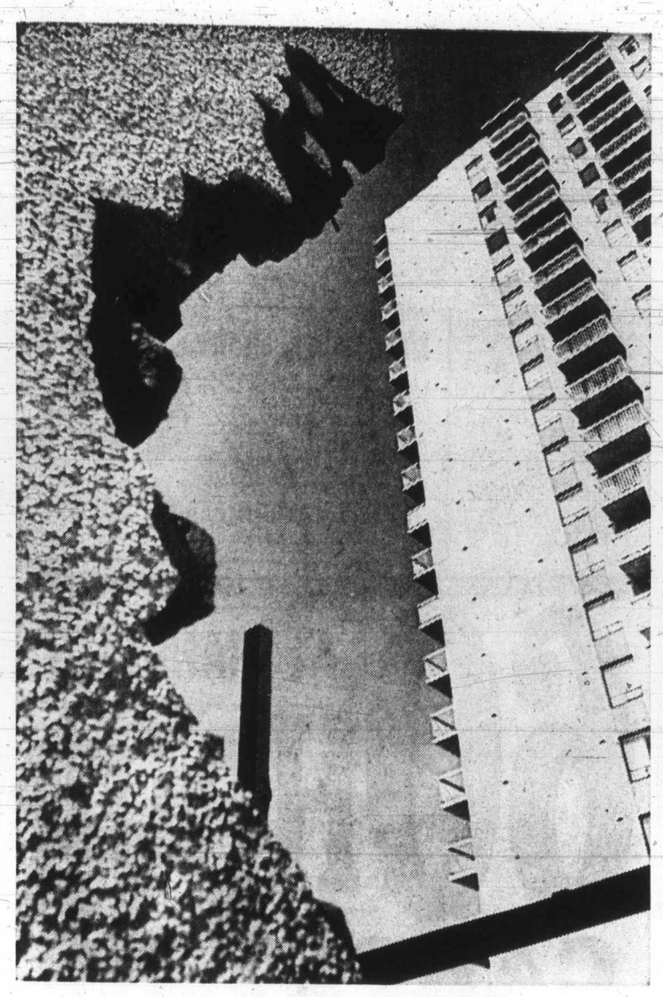

If you do have a complaint, call the labor department, and they'll send someone around to do a routine inspection.

There's no need to worry about being fired as a result, she said, because the department has a policy of not requiring people to give their names when they call, and you can make complaints anonymously.

If you are fired after making a complaint, she said, the best action if to contact John Sherlock, head of the Human Rights Commission in Vancouver.

When a male questioner asked if she wasn't worried that by encouraging women to work many males would be pushed out of their jobs, she said: "I don't see anything wrong with a man staying at home and the woman working.

"i don't think there is anything sacred about who does the work. Half of the male university students are out there on campus only because their wives are working to put them through." Men must be educated too to accept women's new roles, she said, and the best place to start was in the home, where young children can see their parents sharing the chores.

Diplomatic Turtle Can Take Pride

By KATHRYN HAZEL
Colonist Reporter

Canada was a late-comer to diplomacy but it has now more than made up for its slow start in the field of international affairs, says retired diplomat Bert Butler.

Speaking at a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club Wednesday afternoon, Butler outlined his experiences as a Canadian diplomat in Indonesia, the United States, France, England and the Netherlands during his 39 years of service.

When he joined external affairs in 1929 as one of eight successful candidates among 800 applicants, the diplomatic service was in "a pretty embryonic stage," he said. Canada only had four posts—in London, Paris, Washington and Tokyo.

Only after the First World War did Canadian diplomacy begin, he explained, before that British diplomats handled Canada's international relations.

In 1929 the department had only about 40 people, compared with its present staff of 3,000, with representatives in 30 countries and in the United Nations and its agencies.

For his first post he asked for any Spanish-speaking country, as he had studied the language for the last six years, "and I thought I was pretty good at it." He was sent instead to Indonesia, where he had to learn Dutch and Indonesian, and, he said, never in his almost 40 years of service did he get near a Spanish-speaking country.

As trade commissioner his main task was to promote Canadian products in Indonesia and he had a great deal of success.

"This was specially satisfying to me because during the depression you knew that every product you manged to sell overseas meant jobs for Canadians back home."

He had a lot of territory to cover and not much money to visit it with, he said. His annual travel allowance of $150 was supposed to finance his trips to the main islands of Indonesia, the Borneo states, the Malay states, Burma, Thailand and Indochina.

"Most of the travelling you did at your own expense because you were keen and interested in the job—and I was a bachelor then."

He married in 1933 and was then transferred to Singapore. There he realized that the wives of diplomats are the unsung heroines of the foreign service, he said.

The husband just goes to another office, and usually has an experienced staff to help him, but the wife has to find a house, get it ready for entertaining, arrange schooling for the children, shop, and do all the other chores of keeping a household in order, "usually in another language," he added.

For many years he was the only Canadian official in the region. Now, however, there are four embassies with about 50 Canadians, and another 50 staff members on the Canadian payroll.

Butler
. . . Canada caught up

While in Singapore he gave a series of six broadcasts on Canada, one of which was on Vancouver Island as the ideal place to retire. He was flooded with letters from expatriates looking for such a place, and was able to find out a little about prices of available real estate on the Island in answer to their queries.

They must have taken his advice to heart, he said, because when he himself came to Victoria to retire in 1968 he was delighted to find many of his old Singapore friends settled here and in Duncan, Ladysmith and other Island centres.

He later went to Los Angeles, Detroit, New York, The Hague and the British Isles.

After his London posting he was thinking of retiring — he had been 36 years in the foreign service — but he was persuaded to continue and returned to the part of the world where he had first served, based in Kuala Lumpur.

He had been away 27 years, and the changes were tremendous. The biggest one was the increased influence of religion in the lives of the peoples of Southeast Asia, and in Kuala Lumpur in particular, the influence of the Moslem religion.

Social stratification had been removed and the different races now mixed together. "This is good," he said. "It makes life much more natural and interesting."

In his career he saw Canada's foreign service change and grow, with Canadians such as Lester Pearson, former prime minister and UN diplomat, and Maurice Strong, chairman of the recent international conference on the environment, establishing Canada's diplomatic reputation.

"For a dozen years after the Second World War we as Canadians could take pride in the role Canadians played in world affairs, in NATO, NORAD, in the Congo, the Middle East, Cyprus, and the Commonwealth," he said.

Although now Canada had a less vital role to play in this age of super-powers, Canada is still playing a large part in international organizations such as the UN, the World Health Organization, the World Bank, and UNICEF.

Canada also has a massive aid program for developing countries, contributing about $400 million a year.

The Rajmata of Jaipur

Maharani's Story —Riches to Rags

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — Though the Maharani of Jaipur is still young and beautiful, she is already writing her memoirs for Sir George Weidenfeld, the London publisher.

She can type like a pro and at breakfast her husband used to say, "Ayesha, take down the morning news in shorthand," but she will still have the help of a ghostwriter. All that worries her is the importance everyone seems to give to her life as one of the international party-goers.

"Of course I loved every minute of that part of my life, and I used to be the last to go home from a party," she says. "Now I prefer something cozier, like going to the movies and the theatre or sitting around talking to friends."

"If the book ever comes out, I feel like calling it From Riches to Rags, she goes on. The daughter of a wealthy family in Cooch Behar, in northern Bengal, she was christened Gayatritiva, but her mother had been reading Rider Haggard's She and called her Ayesha. So does everyone else.

She met her husband when she was five and he was some 25 years older and she kept on seeing him whenever he came there to play polo. In the Indian fashion he had had other wives, "but ours was a love match," she says.

After his death in a polo match two years ago, and because of changing times in India, her life has become quite different. As a widow, her title is no longer actually the Maharani but Rajmata of Jaipur, and her days are full of more projects than she can cope with. She has run for Parliament three times and is an articulate member of the Opposition. She is involved with one museum, at least three schools, tour planning and some hotel and motels converted from properties that belonged to the Jaipur family.

She and her stepson, who inherited his father's title, are partners in Amber, named for the old capital of Jaipur. "It's not quite a travel agency because we don't sell tickets, and the tours are not like If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Brussels, either. We want people to see what life in India is really like," she says. The first tour of 30 will go to the Pushkar Fair with its handicrafts and camel races some time this month. Since the new maharajah is a lieutenant colonel in the Indian Army, many of the details fall on her shoulders.

She started her arts and crafts school years ago. It takes only 30 students who are learning how to carry on the traditional blue pottery, painting and brass inlay. More than 600 are enrolled in her regular girls' school. Athird is set up for girls who don't want to go to college but want to be wives or secretaries.

She herself went to school in England, India and Switzerland and finally to The Monkey Club, a finishing school in London. When she first came to Jaipur, their women were still in seclusion and her husband asked her to help them get out of it. She has done everything she could.

In 1958 her husband turned a shooting lodge in the country where she came as a bride into the Rambagh Palace Hotel. Now she and her stepson are converting the huge old garage into a motel. "We'll have 36 double bedrooms. We're hardly changing anything. It has a court in the middle. We'll build on the roof it if's successful."

The project she cares about most, though, is the museum into which the city palace of the Jaipur family has been converted. It will hold all the material history of the Jaipur family, possessions that include old tents used in the battlefield, armor, carriages, important documents, musical instruments, toys, glass, ceramics and one of the world's finest carpet collections. "We have given it back to the nation, but it must be kept in its entirety," she says.

While she is here she has been hunting for a new museum director and for an American publisher for Gourmet's Gateway, a collection of her own and a few of her friends' recipes.

"I have sold some of my jewelry, but some of it has been in the family a long time. I feel it should be kept and go eventually to the museum," she says. "Sometimes I'm sad about the change in India and things like the movie signs in the pink city Jaipur. But when I talked about it to my 23-year-old son, Jagat Singh, he answered, 'We used to be aloof. Now we can mix with more people and I like it better.' Maybe he's right."

Survey Conclusion:

Women Biased Against Own Sex

Colonist-Copley Services

Biased judgment against women — by women — has been disclosed by a psychological study funded by the National Science Foundation in the United States.

A foolproof way to test the female mind was devised by three psychologists at Connecticut College in New London.

The experiment consisted of asking 120 college women to evaluate artists who had painted a series of abstract paintings.

The volunteers were given background profiles of each artist, along with the paintings. In some of these profiles the artists were identified with female names and in others with male names.

When the women were told the paintings had won prizes, they evaluated equally the technical competence and probable future success of each artist, regardless of the artist's presumed sex.

When told that the paintings were still-unjudged entries in a contest, however, the women ranked male artists "significantly higher" than female artists, despite the merits of the pictures.

Dr. Sara Kiesler, one of the investigators, said the experiment results indicate that women are biased when they judge other women "until those women prove themselves by award, trophy or other obvious success."

Dr. Kiesler noted that the experiment was part of a larger study to determine how people react to others who violate group norms or accepted rules of behavior. This study showed that people usually have a greater liking for those who conform to behavior norm.

Thus, Dr. Kiesler explained, she expected women to devaluate the efforts of other women striving for career success because such women are "norm violators" of the woman's traditional role as wife and mother.

"However, total rejection of career women was not the case," she explained.

"They were evaluated equally to men when their success was known. The women in the study seemed to be taking an actuarial approach. They know that fewer women than men are successful and technically competent in our society, so the best guess for artists with paintings not yet judged was that women would be less successful or skilled."

Oshawa Warning

Health Rules Being Bent At Bake Sales

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — If health regulations were applied stricly, most bake sales and bazaars would have to be closed, says Dr. J. E. Watt, director of environmental health services for Oshawa-Ontario County district health unit.

"Food is kept at room temperature for long hours. When you add all the food served through this type of thing, it's a tremendous volume.

"We've been lenient in not enforcing regulations. What we have done is insist on a minimum standard in church kitchens and ethnic halls, but they don't necessarily have the facilities to produce all the food in that kitchen, so food is prepared at home and brought to the event.

"Any food wholly or partially perishable, particularly meat or milk products, must be prepared in sanitary premises. Also, if it is a cold food it must be kept under 40 degrees and if hot,over 140.

"If you hold cabbage rolls at room temperature, any bacteria present multiply most rapidly. And if they're the right bacteria, you get food infection or poisoning.

"We also want it prepared under sanitary conditions. It could be prepared in a home with children who have communicable disease. The woman packs it in the trunk of a car where it's warm and the place where it's sold is warm. Bacteria multiply.

"Meat pie is a definite hazard. Fruit pie isn't such a hazard from the bacterial point of view, but they have the habit of putting food in used boxes and keeping it in the open where people are sneezing.

"It's estimated that in Canada 200,000 cases of foodborne illness occur annually."

Dr. Watt says he knows there would be opposition to any move to enforce regulations strictly and close bake sales.

"They're donating time and effort to charitable purposes. There seems to be a feeling that they should have free reign.

"We're not going out of our way to pick on these groups. It's just part of the general food control program.

"If you apply the regulations entirely, we'd only allow sales of food prepared on inspected premises and handled according to the requirements after it's prepared.

"It really would take the co-operation of these groups. They've got to realize what they're doing is hazardous."

'Organic Foods Likely Higher in Toxicity'

VANCOUVER (CP) — So-called "health foods" are neither safer nor more nutritious than any other food, says the president of the Canadian Institute of Food Science and Technology.

Dr. James F. Richards, an associate professor of food science at the University of British Columbia, said in an interview Tuesday that too often people are scared away from the ordinary food on market shelves by misinformation spread by food faddists.

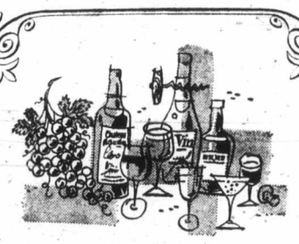

"If people want to eat organic food, that's fine," said Richards. "But I'm against those who delude others into believing organic food is either safer or nutritionally superior to the food you buy at your local store. It is not the case. My personal view is that the toxicity of organic health foods is probably higher and therefore less safe."

Richards said the time has come for professionals in the food sciences to give the facts on a regular basis. He said "there's a tremendous pool of information" among such organizations as his own institute, and the Canadian nutritionists, dieticians, and health science bodies, as well as those in agriculture.

He said the lack of general knowledge that any food can create a health risk has caused many consumers "to over-react" when confronted of health food arguments.

"Some people like to make statements that additives in commercial food are poisonous. Well, flourides are poison. Most chemicals are if used wrongly. Unfortunately, the consumer is rarely in a position to get into the (scientific) details of this. So the only thing we can do is lay the facts on the line."

Richards said the amount of additives in foods is being continually reviewed in Canada by the health protection branch of the department of health and welfare. "They don't permit any additives unless they have some significant advantage to the consumer."

New Chile Cabinet

Allende Dips Into Military

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Marxist President Salvador Allende Thursday night named a new cabinet that includes three high military officers in an effort to restore public confidence in his "road to socialism" government.

The nation's key law enforcement post, that of interior minister, was handed over to army Gen. Carlos Prats Gonzalez, 57, who as army commandant has turned a deaf ear to rightist extremist persuasions for a military coup.

The military has a long apolitical tradition in Chile.

It was hoped the new cabinet would help restore public confidence in Allende's Marxist government at a time when protest strikes have all but paralysed parts of the country.

Some 150,000 shopkeepers, 50,000 truck owner-drivers, and undetermined numbers of doctors, nurses, bank clerks, students, engineers and other professionals have been striking for up to 23 days in protest against the Allende socialist policies.

Allende has nationalized American copper and other interests in Chile. He has refused to pay for the acquisitions claiming they had been making "excessive profits" for years.

Prats has been credited with keeping the heated political situation — with the leftist government being outvoted in parliament by opposition right wing parties — from becoming violent. He has kept the Chilean tradition that the military is apolitical.

Also in the new cabinet are high ranking officers from the air force and navy, two union leaders, and a printer Four ministers from the old cabinet retained their portfolios.

Police Bullets Fell Suspects

WINNIPEG (CP) — Four robbery suspects were in hospital with gunshot wounds following a gun battle in a downtown Winnipeg alley after an attempt Thursday to rob a credit union office.

Three of the men were listed in critical condition. No bystanders or policemen were injured.

Insp. Allan Biggs of Winnipeg police said policemen had staked out the credit union building following information of a holdup attempt.

He said three masked men emerged from the rear of the building at 171 Donald Street and ran toward a getaway car in which the fourth man was waiting. When police identified themselves, "the lead man turned and fired and the other men pointed their weapons."

He said "an exchange of shooting" followed. One suspect was shot before he reached the getaway car, while the other two men were picked up by the driver of the car, which then careened down the ice-coated alley before smashing into the rear of another building.

Insp. Biggs, who said he did not know for certain how many policemen were involved in the stakeout, said police were armed with revolvers, shotguns and submachine guns, while the would-be robbers were armed with revolvers. He said "a large amount" of money was recovered.

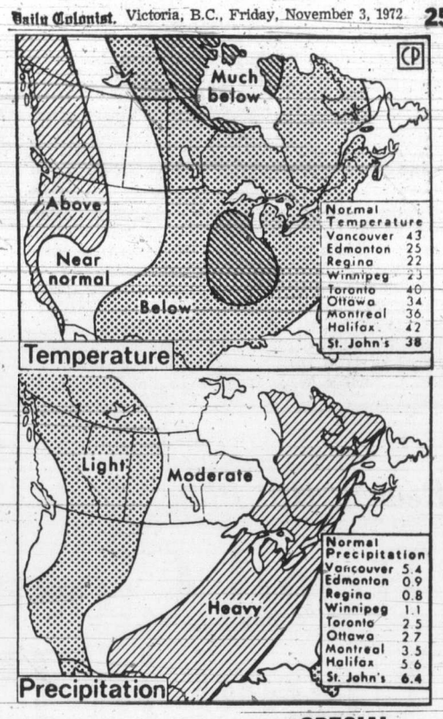

Police had been informed of the planned holdup about 12 hours before it occurred at 11 a.m. Thursday, he said.

Nina Wakshinski, a travel agent whose office on the second floor of the building overlooking the scene of the shooting, said, "I was almost killed."

She said she looked out her window when she heard the shooting thinking it was construction noises. "The shots came flying through the glass right in front of me, and I screamed and ran around the desk."

Ballard Health Forces Move

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, 69, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, who was sentenced Oct. 20 to two concurrent three-year terms in Kingston penitentiary, will be moved to a minimum-security prison for health reasons, the director of the penitentiary's reception unit said Thursday.

Social Researchers:

Working or Retired, Aged Face Poverty

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The aged in Canada are destined to be poor whether they work or not, say two social researchers who have looked into the economics of aging.

Ronald Crowley, a researcher for the urban affairs department, and David Ross, of the Canadian Council on Social Development, maintain that for the average Canadian over 65 the decision to leave the labor force is merely a decision to accept a different "lifestyle" on the same subsistence income.

In a paper presented before the Comparative Committee on Urban Economics here Thursday, the two researchers claimed the only choice open to most Canadians over 65 is to work for about $3,000 a year or retire on $2,500 a year.

They derived their figures from an analysis of various government studies.

"A roughly interpreted conclusion, therefore, is that whether you work or not you are destined to obtain a minimum, subsistence income."

One consequence is that fewer aged persons are staying in the labor force, say the researchers. They provide figures to show that whereas in 1951 nearly five out of every 10 Canadians over 65 was still in the work force the figure in 1971 was two of 10.

'Oppressed, Suppressed'

Nothing Changed —Indian Leader

CALGARY (CP) — Federal funding of Indian organizations has squashed "red power," president George Manuel of the National Indian Brotherhood said Wednesday.

Indian organizations became more aggressive in the late 1960s, partly in opposition to the white paper on native people, and that was when federal funding was started "to suppress the red power movement."

Manuel told a University of Calgary audience that in spite of the funding, nothing has really changed.

"As Indian people, we have been tormented in many ways; we have been oppressed, surprised and discriminated against.

"The government hasn't got the good will to see that change takes place among Indian people."

Manuel said the civil service is responsible for the situation more than the politicians.

"The civil service runs the politics of this country regardless of what party is in power."

Indian Coup Followed By Fighting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protesting Indians took over parts of the bureau of Indian affairs building at dusk Thursday and fighting erupted within the building.

Ambulances were called. Glass windows were being shattered No estimate of injuries or damage could be determined, however.

The bureau press office said policemen had come to the building, apparently to attempt to oust the Indiands, who had talked of staying there all night rather than move to other accommodations in scattered churches.

Several hundred protestors were inside. They were part of the Trail of Broken Treaties caravan in town to dramatize what they called their fight for survival in white America.

Lousy House —Grit

Political reaction in B.C. to Prime Minister Trudeau's decision to remain in office followed party lines Thursday.

Provincial Liberal leader David Anderson said the decision was the only one Trudeau could have made since the Liberals had the greatest percentage of the popular vote.

However, Anderson predicted that when Parliament meets "it will not be a productive House, it will be a crummy House."

B.C. Conservative leader Derril Warren said Trudeau should resign because he was the major reason voters rejected the Liberals. He added the Liberal party can't claim to be representative of "the various and diverse regions of Canada."

Beacon Hill Plan

Road Closures Urged in Park

Permanent closure of two roads in Beacon Hill Park was recommended Thursday by Victoria Parks committee.

The two roads are Lover's Lane between the two picnic areas at the park's east and west ends, and Parkway from Circle to Bridgeway.

Both roads have been closed on a trial basis for the past four months and, according to parks director Cliff Bate, there has been no problem in regulating traffic.

If city council approves committee's recommendation, the roads will be made into grassed areas.

Whether more roads will be closed in the future is uncertain at this time.

According to the results of a questionnaire circulated by the city's traffic department, the majority of Victorians would prefer further road closures in Beacon Hill Park, but to a varying degree.

Of 200 persons interviewed by the department, 33 per cent were in favor of complete closure of roads; 30 per cent favored partial closure; 26 per cent would like to see all but the main road closed to traffic, while only 11 per cent were opposed to closures of any kind.

The question of whether all of the park's roads should eventually be closed, has created some controversy in the past.

It is believed that rather than attempt immediate closure of all roads, the city will carry out a gradual program of phasing out existing roads.

RCMP Recover Stolen Dynamite

LAKE COWICHAN —RCMP recently recovered three cases of dynamite after receiving a tip from an anonymous phone caller.

The dynamite was stolen from B.C. Forest Products Caycuse division two weeks ago, along with caps, fuses, and magazine records. The company had estimated 15 cases of dynamite had been stolen, but because the records were taken also, could not be certain of the amount.

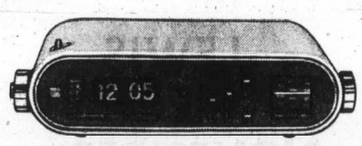

Lake Cowichan police recovered the explosives near Cottonwood Creek on the North Shore Road, outside Lake Cowichan. Police said the dynamite was in very dangerous condition when it was located, as it had been weeping, which indicates a breakdown of the nitroglycerin. In this state, dynamite is extremely unstable.

The explosive was recovered Oct. 24 near the site of an earlier blast, which was set off with dynamite stolen from BCFP at the beginning of the month. Police have made no arrests following the thefts, but are still investigating.

Zest for Living Peggy's Key

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The more you are interested in living, the more life gives you," Peggy Lee said softly, summing up the secret of her zest for performing after 30 years on the road.

In a profession known for draining resources and consuming talent, the lady known as the queen of U.S. pop music is a study in survival.

At 51, Peggy Lee is in her prime.

Personal disappointments and sieges of illness have not deflated her.

"I'm enjoying singing for audiences now more than I ever did," she says. "When I started, I was so shy, I was just afraid of people.

"I find it easier to communicate with audiences now."

Miss Lee outlined her rigorous schedule for coming months. There will be a TV guest spot on the Dinah Shore show, a new Las Vegas act with Alan King, a country-wide tour with composer Michel Legrand, a New Year's Eve show in Dallas, plus recording, writing and keeping an eye on her many business ventures.

Illness has plagued her out not slowed her pace. She suffered severe lung damage about eight years ago from a bout with double-pneumonia, and pneumonia struck her again last November. She will have to use a mechanical respirator periodically for the rest of her life, she notes.

Although the name Peggy Lee is already engraved in musical history, she has no thoughts of stopping.

"I would like to be somehow more involved with film whether as an actress or in the production field," she says. "I think it's very important for people to have goals, to keep their minds active."

Stage Restaurant In Line for Job

MAHONE BAY, N.S. (CP) — Actor-director Darren McGavin has suggested a restaurant set used in filming scenes for a forthcoming movie be left in this Nova Scotia community and perhaps used as the real thing.

McGavin told a reception for the movie company earlier this week that when scenes were being shot in the restaurant set it called for employment of about 40 people.

But there were times around the noon hour when the group would swell to 100.

People, he said, were actually walking in looking for something to eat.

The movie, titled Mothers Day, stars Academy Award winner Patricia Neal and Cloris Leachman, Roy Appegate, Bobby Darin and Miss Neal's 15-year-old daughter, Tessa Dahl.

BUTCHART GARDENS, AUTUMN! Just about the most beautiful, most colorful time of the year in these famous gardens. Should it shower, don't worry, there's free use of umbrellas for everybody. Usually warmer out here, too! Open every day 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Plan now for one of your happiest outings!

BUTCHART GARDENS. Developed from an abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago. Known throughout the world for their incredible beauty! Embracing over 30 acres, they're actually six gardens in one—fabulous Sunken Garden, Lake Garden featuring the majestic Ross Fountains, English Rose, quaint Japanese, stately Italian, and the Stage Show Garden.

BUTCHART GARDENS. Snack and Coffee Bar is always open. Serving hot drinks, sandwiches, pies and snacks.

THE WIG & DICKIE CABARET at The Wilson Motor Inn, 850 Blanshard St., is the place where Music, Fun and Laughter start but never end. If you haven't seen George McDowall and The Lads then you have missed the best entertainment in Victoria. It's just like an English Inn where young and old gather in the evenings to join in the singing, have some chuckles and a good time. See it for yourself. For reservations call The Wig & Dickie at 385-6787. Open Tues.-Sat., from 8:30 p.m.

The Old Bailey Beefeater is THE PLACE for those who like to sink their teeth into a succulent thick slice of prime rib smothered in its own natural juices. The complete dinner is a delight including hors d'oeuvres, tossed salad, a small loaf of bread, garlic or regular butter, baked potato and a selection of taste tempting cheeses for dessert. And believe it or not the price is only $4.50 or just $3.75 if you order the English cut. Try this the next time you're going out for dinner. You'll love the English mood of the authentic Old Bailey Beefeater at The Wilson Motor Inn, Blanshard at Courtenay.

LONDON (UPI) — Coronet player Charlie Silcock gave his all in a celebration solo — including his pants.

At a party celebrating his band's victory in the national brass band championship, the 62-year-old musician inhaled deeply to blast out the final note of Bless This House. Down went his pants.

'Weenyboppers' Run Amok

LONDON (AP) — Hundreds of screaming youngsters besieged the hotel of two American pop groups Thursday, fighting with police for a glimpse of the Jackson Five and the Osmond Brothers.

Hotel employees claimed some of the youngsters, dubbed "weenyboppers" by the British press, carried knives and threatened doormen, harassed by four days of strenuous puppy love. A passerby said he saw a boy of about nine brandishing a sledgehammer.

"He rushed up to the rear entrance of the hotel, smashed open the door handle, and the fans surged in," he reported.

Police took eight youngsters, including one girl armed with a knife, home to their parents.

The Jackson Five and the Osmond Brothers arrived at Heathrow Airport Sunday within hours of each other. An estimated 8,000 fans between six and 16 sobbed and screamed as the young performers emerged from their jetliners.

The boy the girls were waiting for was 14-year-old Donny Osmond, whose hit record Puppy Love helped his group sell 10 million records in one year.

Woman Says It Is Flip

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Chicago woman sued entertainer Flip Wilson Wednesday, saying he fathered her child.

Mabel Robinson filed suit asking that Wilson be declared the father of her son Joseph and be required to pay medical expenses and support the child, born in May. A hearing was scheduled for next week.

Buckets of Blood

Murder Staged In Good Cause

TORONTO (CP) — A religious youth group got together Tuesday night and staged a gory axe murder of a girl and grisly butchering of a boy to add fun and profit to Halloween.

The buckets of fake blood that flowed during the double "murder" are earning pots of money for Campus Life, the high school division of Youth for Christ, a United States-based group.

The gory massacre was all part of the fun at the haunted house operated by the group in connection with Halloween.

When it closes to night, more than 6,000 persons will have passed through, earning Campus Life about $1,500.

Members of the religious group worked throughout the summer constructing mazes, trapdoors and other props and installing strobe lights and speakers.

George Williamson, 18, presides in the Operating Room. The burly, bearded youth gives a convincing and fiendish performance as he wields a met cleaver over a body from whose left leg he already has scraped the flesh.

"I have no natural talent," he said. "I just scream and yell a lot. Helps get rid of inhibitions."

TV Star Beaten

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Denise Nicholas, who stars in the television series Room 222, told police Tuesday that she was beaten up in her hotel room by a former boyfriend.

The 28-year-old actress would not press charges or identify her assailant, police said, other than to say he was an entertainer from Los Angeles. She told police he telephoned her, came up to her room, they argued and he beat her. Police said she was treated at Arizona Medical Centre for a bleeding leg, and had been struck on the head and body.

DECISION

Ottawa, October 26, 1972

The following decision was taken by the Commission effective October 26, 1972.

DECISION CRTC 72-301
Victoria, B.C. 7201197

Application by Victoria Cablevision Ltd. to amend its cable television broadcasting licence for Victoria, B.C., to increase the monthly service charge from $4.50 to $5.00.

Decision: DENIED.

The applicant failed to convince the Commission in its application and at the public hearing that an increase in subscriber fees is necessary for the maintenance and improvement of subscriber service. This decision takes into consideration the applicant's current financial position in relation to its estimate of the costs of the improvements proposed and that the applicant has kept subscriber fees constant for 11 years.

The Commission has, in its policy statement on cable television, taken the position that cable systems are part of the overall broadcasting system in Canada and that they should contribute to the development of that system. In this way, the broadcasting system will be strengthened and the broadcasting services available to cable subscribers will thereby be improved.

In this context, the improvement of subscriber service implies not only improvements in the physical plant and equipment of a licence and in local programming, but a contribution to the development and strengthening of the broadcasting system in the licensee's area.

In considering applications for increases in subscriber fees the Commission will be interested in how licensees intend to make provision for the improvement of subscriber service in this wider sense, particularly in cases where substantial levels of profitability have been attained.

MONIQUE COUPAL,
Secretary.

Give 'em Room

Every garden book you pick up stresses the need for alllowing plenty of elbow room between your specimen shrubs when planting them. The evils of overcrowding are many, for shrubs, generally speaking, fail to thrive when overcrowded and never develop their characteristic shape unless given ample room.

All gardening rules have their exceptions, though, and in the case of rhododendrons, I think it is rather foolish to plant out these slow-growing shrubs at their ultimate spacing.

Rhododendrons are very small when you buy them — that is, if your bank account suffers from chronic anaemia, like mine. Little rhodos are within the reach of anybody's pocketbook; big ones are horribly expensive because they take so many years to put on size and occupy valuable space in the plant nursery for such a very long time.

For example, the lovely white Beauty of Littleworth is listed in one of my catalogues at $2 for an eight-inch specimen. The same plant one foot tall will cost $5, and a four-foot bush will set you back no less than $20. So, you and I, we buy the little one.

It would be ridiculous to space out these tiny plants according to their ultimate size and spread. The variety Cynthia, for instance, will make a bush eventually some 10 feet across, and to plant a few 8-inch or 10-inch specimens 15 feet apart would leave them looking a bit lonesome, to say the least.

Fortunately, rhododendrons transplant with the greatest of ease at this season of the year, and even quite large bushes may be taken up and spaced out farther apart when the plantation becomes overcrowded. The thing to do, then, is to space out your baby bushes from 2½ to 5 feet apart now, depending on their present height and spread, then lift and replant them several years hence when their branch tips are nearly touching across the intervening space. In this way, your rhododendron grouping will look reasonably well furnished right from the start.

Transplanting may be done any time through the winter except during periods of hard frost and snow. I think, however, that there is some advantage in getting the job done before the end of November, while there is still a fair amount of warmth in the soil.

On one occasion, when moving house in January, I shifted a collection of five rhododendrons to the new garden when there was a two-inch crust of frost in the soil, simply by skimming off the slabs of frozen soil first. The plants came through the ordeal without mishap, but an earlier move would have been better.

In moving big bushes five feet tall or taller, it is best to dig a trench around the plant to lift it cleanly, but with smaller specimens the job is quickly and easily done by cutting a circle around the roots with a really sharp spade. As a rough guide, the circle should be two feet in diameter for a three or four-foot plant, and 2½ feet in diameter for four to five-foot bushes. With the circle cut to the full depth of the spade, simply lever out the plant and shift it to its new home.

Unlike most plants, you don't have to be in any great hurry to rush your dug-up rhododendrons back into the ground. If you are replanting in the same bed, you can dig up all your rhodos and leave them sitting up on top of the ground from one weekend to the next if you keep some soil mounded up over the roots. This will give you an opportunity to dig over the site and enrich it with peat moss and old rotted manure. The plants will come to no harm from their enforced sojourn above ground.

Commies for Nixon

If Richard Nixon wins the election next week, most of the credit will go to Lu Doc Toy who heads the Communists For Nixon Committee in Hanoi.

Le Doc Toy who, until this election, always voted the straight communist party ticket, decided to support Nixon this year because, he said, "I'm sick and tired of having my kids bussed along the Ho Chi Minh Trail."

Having made the decision, Lu Doc Toy contacted the Committee for the Re-Election of the President in Washington which sent one of their top CIA men to Hanoi to help him in the campaign.

★ ★ ★

Lu Doc Toy told the CIA man," I need bumper stickers, buttons, posters and a secret fund to get the Communists for Nixon off the ground."

The CIA man said, "We've written off North Vietnam as far as electoral votes go, but you could help us tremendously in getting President Nixon re-elected with a small favor."

"What can I do?" Lu Doc asked.

★ ★ ★

"Arrange a peace treaty with the U.S. a week before the elections."

"It's done," Lu Doc Toy said. "My cousin is a member of the Pilitburo and he owes me a favor."

Lu Doc Toy went to see his cousin Ton Son Not in his bomb shelter the next day. During a 15-minute break in the bombing he said, "Ton Son Not, as you know I am the head of the Communists for Nixon and I have a small favor to ask of you."

"You have dishonored your ancestors, Lu Doc Toy," Ton Son Not said. "How can you support a man whose party would bug the Watergate?"

"It was a prank," Lu Doc Toy said. "Everyone does it during an election year. Besides Nixon knew nothing about it."

★ ★ ★

"That's what all the Communists for Nixon say. But we know differently. Besides, how could you work for a man who said he would stop the war in 1968?"

"Exactly," Lu Doc Toy said. "That's what I came to speak to you about. Nixon wants to stop the war again, only this time before the election."

"It's a trick," Ton Son Not said. "What does he want in exchange for it?"

"Nothing we wouldn't have given him in 1968. It's the same deal that was offered to him then."

★ ★ ★

"But why now? I thought the U.S. bombing was working."

"Who knows what goes on with those Americans. But I'm giving it to you straight. If you people say okay Nixon will send what's-his-name to Paris to sign the deal."

"Wait a minute," Ton Son Not said, "if we agree to a peace settlement, that means we'll have four more years of Nixon."

★ ★ ★

"Look, Ton Son Not," Lu Doc Toy said, "we hold the key to the American presidential election in our hands. We have to decide whether we want Nixon for president and a generation of peace, or whether we want the misguided, badly thought out, socialistic programs of George McGovern."

The bombing started again. "WHAT ABOU THIEU? WILL HE GO ALONG WITH IT?" Ton Son Not yelled.

"DON'T WORRY ABOUT THIEU," Lu Doc Toy yelled back. "HE'LL DO ANYTHING NIXON ASKS HIM TO!"

First Things First

JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD — Henry Kissinger on that busy day of announcing the nearness of peace in Vietnam took time out to call Jill St. John. Punchline is that Jill was too busy to take the call. Actually Jill was very much involved in a TV special over at Warners, so much so that she never did show up for a pilot taping of The Gossip Game at NBC-Burbank. Jill, who was to occupy the hot seat, in the new game show starring Vincent Price was due around 7 p.m. At midnight when there was no Jill, the big crew packed up their overtime cheque and went home. Meanwhile, Al Howard who owns the show kept muttering "I don't understand Hollywood actors" and headed for the nearest bar. Howard is from New York and said he intends to stay there forever.

Fortunately, he had budgeted for two pilots — the other with Mickey Rooney who flew in from his home in Fort Lauderdale and was great as usual. Mickey, despite his size, is a giant of showbusiness. Mick also did the Johnny Carson show down the hall. He came onstage and presented Johnny with a neatly wrapped wedding gift. It was a book entitled: Mickey Rooney's Guide to a Happy Marriage. Mickey has been married so many times he has pock marks on his face from thrown rice. He has become very religious. His new wife Caroline, 29, once studied to be a nun. Mickey doesn't smoke, drink or gamble but all told he has nine children. Three out of four isn't bad.

He's got a hilarious idea for a spoof of The Godfather which he could make for about $300,000. It's called The Godmothers. He outlined the script. Mickey, Don Knotts and Marty Allen would play the Mastrosso brothers. Mickey wants Shecky Greene to play Don Palermo and Cass Elliot to play the Mafia don's fat daughter.

Rosa the daughter wants to get married and the only bachelors in the mob are the Mastrosso brothers who are forced to draw pieces of spaghetti. Mickey as Rocco gets the short one and that's when the brothers start hiding out in women's clothes; hence the title. Asked Mickey when he starts shooting. "As soon as I get the money," singing the old Hollywood refrain. He has already submitted the idea to MGM for which Mickey grossed $135 millions in his heyday. He got a turndown because gratitude is a word that doesn't exist in the Hollywood dictionary.

More on Hollywood gratitude. When Mickey, as Andy Hardy, the biggest box-office star in the world, married sultry, sexy Ava Gardner, Louis B. Mayer assigned a studio press agent to accompany Mickey and Ava on the honeymoon. That assignment and others with the studio's biggest money star zoomed the press agent's stock in the company. So much so that he later retired and became a big banker. Years and years of alimony payments later, Mickey went to arrange a loan from his old press agent. He was turned down. By the way, Mickey's definition of alimony: pumping gas into the other guy's car.

Thinking Aloud

In our arrogant ignorance, we ask, "Why did God make the mosquito?", and the purple martin answers us, "Why, for food, you ninny!"

★ ★ ★

It seems to be one of the ironic facts of human life that men generally get better looking as they grow older, while women fade; at 25 a man looks raw and a woman is in full bloom; at 50 he has reached his optimum, while she is in decline. (I refer only to looks, mind you, not to character or anything else.)

★ ★ ★

If we can plan obsolescence into our weaponry, why not into war itself?

★ ★ ★

The only formula that works equally well with all children is for parents to tell them no lies; it is simply amazing how candor and honesty can compensate for a host of other deficiencies as a parent.

★ ★ ★

Listening to the ranting of a bigot, I bethought myself of the anonymous wit who once remarked: "The chief difference between intelligence and stupidity is that intelligence has its limits."

★ ★ ★

I have always had a sneaking sympathy for Cain, since he really didn't know he was committing murder — for nobody had ever died until then.

★ ★ ★

The difference between talent and genius is not a matter of degree; genius does not do what talent finds diffieult, but what it finds impossible.

★ ★ ★

The ultimate computer is one that will stop itself twice a day to take "oil breaks."

★ ★ ★

There are two kinds of "idealists" — those who want to make people live up to some abstract ideal (and they become scolds or tyrants), and those who want people to live up to the best within themselves (and they become sages or saints). This is why so many contradictory things have been said about "idealists."

★ ★ ★

The manuals all insist that sex is more fulfilling when accompanied by love — which is true, except for that large minority of men who find the responsibility of love too heavy a burden to bear, and so can enjoy sex only when it is dissociated from the emotions.

A philosophy of life that "reasonably" fits is as ineffectual as a shoe that is only a size too large or too small; in the end, it will squeeze or rub away all the comfort it is supposed to give.

★ ★ ★

What is called the ordinary modern "successful man" is one who can neither work without being agitated, nor rest without being bored.

★ ★ ★

"Jitters" is the perfect word to describe what it stands for.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ALLISON — In loving memory, Roy Allison who passed away Nov. 3, 1971.
The rolling stream of life rolls on
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of the one who once sat there.
—Always remembered by Joan, Maureen, Gordon, Harvey and Lesley.

BEECH — In loving memory of our dearly loved son John who passed away Nov. 3rd, 1962.
There is someone who misses you sadly
And finds the time long since you went.
There is someone who thinks of you always
And tries to be brave and content.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent the voice we loved to hear;
'Tis sad, but true true, we wonder why,
The best are always the first to die.

CAMERON — In loving memory of Ian Bruce Cameron, who died Nov. 4, 1962, and Robert James Cameron who died Nov. 1968.
The pearly gates were opened
A gentle voice said "Come"
And with farewells unspoken,
They gently entered home.
—All the family.

EDDIE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who entered into eternal rest November 3rd, 1948.
What would we give to clasp his hand
His happy face to see
To hear his voice and see his smile
That meant so much to us
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
—Ever remembered by his loving wife, Elsie, son Jim and daughter Elsie.

21 MALE HELP WANTED

INDUSTRIAL CHEMICAL SALES
We are seeking a factory sales representative for our Vancouver Island territory. Experience in chemical sales is not necessary, although a decided advantage. What is necessary is a background of successful sales work. Experience in a creative field or direct sales such as mutual funds, insurance, books, cookware, etc., would be considered ideal training, although our field is in no way related. Age is no barrier provided you've had sufficient experience. Remuneration is by way of commission, with an attractive incentive type advance arrangement. We are a western Canadian owned and operated manufacturer and intensely proud of it. We are also intensely proud of our present sales force, who find our field a delightful and thoroughly enjoyable form of sales work. If you are interested, write to Bob McDougall, Guardian Chemicals, Fort Saskatchewan, Alberta. Interviews in Victoria will be arranged for the week of November 13.

$600 PER MONTH

For six month training period applicants must:
1. Be over 21 yrs. of age
2. Have late model car
3. Have successfully completed Grade 12, if under 28 years of age
4. Have a desire to earn a better than average income.

BLOCK BROS. REALTY LTD. OFFERS:
1. Prelicencing classes.
2. Excellent sales training program.
3. Good opportunity for advancement.
4. Higher earnings than you have ever enjoyed before.
5. Guaranteed income for training period.

JOIN BLOCK BROS. FANTASTIC TEAM
To enquire phone Irwin Zicker 477-1841 Block Bros. Realty.

TRAVELLING SALES PERSON
To call on stores, office and apartment buildings, restaurants, motels, industries, factories, institutions, churches, schools, banks, hospitals, etc. with our nationally-advertised guaranteed longer-life exclusive lighting products. Another Victoria issue is going before the Canadian Radio-TV Commission at its next hearing, starting Nov. 7 in Toronto.

The agenda shows a licence renewal for Channel 6 will be discussed along with one for Vancouver's Channel 8 as the second item. First will be a licence renewal and other changes for the CTV network.

Licence bids for the Port Renfrew Community TV Association and a similar organization for Ucluelet will go before the CRTC at the same hearing. And a hearing due to start Dec. 5 in Montreal will consider educational programming on Langford-Sooke Cablevision, a cable-TV ownership change at Franklin River and a radio licence renewal for CFHG in Holberg.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's answer — Roaming through the tangles of earlier television, we find the knotty problem of Stoney Burke. He was a rodeo rider played by Jack Lord, who is much more famous for Hawaii 5-O. And speaking of Burke, Billie's famous husband was Flo Ziegfeld, as any nostalgian will know.

Today's question — One more Burke was Amos. Name the actor who played him, identify his "job" and vehicle and identify at least two other series the same actor has starred in. Should be easy; answers Saturday.

"It's 'COOL MILLION' after taxes"

Friday Highlights

C-8:30 p.m.—All in the Family: Mike's inheritance goes to a political candidate—2, 6.

C-8:30—Columbo is back (also on Channel 6 at midnight)—8.

C-9:00—Vanity Fair ends and we lose Susan Hampshire again—9.

CABLE 10—7:00 p.m., Arts Calendar; 7:30, Judy Nyquist and the Community Chest program People Helping People; 8:30, a film of New Westminster's annual parade; 9:30, UN Achievements.

Friday Movies

9:30 a.m.—Something for the Birds (1952 Washington-lobbyists comedy). Edmund Gwenn is fine but Victor Mature and Pat Neal are; I should add this film is for the birds but nine or 10 later in the day are not—4.

12:00 noon—Father Is a Bachelor (supercoy 1950 silliness), William Holden. Imagine: from this to River Kwai in seven years—13.

C-12:45—Up the MacGregors (1966 Italian western). No—6, 8.

C-4:00 p.m.—Reluctant Heroes (1971 war comedy-drama), Ken Berry, Jim Hutton, Warren Oates. This story of an army historian who uses the past to save an unexpected command is one of the best made-for-TV films—5.

C-4:00—Further Perils of Pauline (1967 abomination), Pam Austin, Pat Boone, Terry-Thomas. As bad as most of today's films are good—7.

C-7:30—That Touch of Mink (1962 Doris Day-Cary Grant). Sure it's old Granny Virgin but even she can't ruin Cary Grant—13.

C-9:00—Dirty Dozen (1967 war action, part two), Lee Marvin and his mob. As I said Thursday, popular but rough—7.

● C-9:00—Tom Jones (delightful, delicious 1963 comic romp), Albert Finney, Hugh Griffith, Susannah York, Diane Cilento, Edith Evans and chicken-nibbin' Joyce Redmond. A joy all the way—12.

11:00—Goin' to Town (1935 Mae West hilarity)—11.

● 11:30—Dracula (1931 Lugosi horror classic). It may be corny now but it remains an amusing movie milestone—7.

C-11:35—Rio Conchos (violent, well-acted 1964 western), Richard Boone, Stu Whitman, Tony Franciosa, Edmond O'Brien—12.

11:50—Road to Morocco (1942 Hope and Crosby). The movie that gave us the immortal line, "Like Webster's Dictionary, we're Morocco-bound"—2.

C-12:00—Dinasaurus (1960 monster mess)—8.

12:30 a.m.—Johnny Allegro (ridiculous 1949 George Raftras). I didn't say all the movies today were good—13.

● 1:00 am.—Foreign Correspondent (jolly good 1940 Hitchcock), Joel McCrea vs. Assorted meanies. Seldom seen and one of Hitchcock's most underrated films, this contains many of his best touches—4.

1:00—Frankenstein Meets the Wolfman (1943 Lugosi vs. Chaney). I urge you to see Hitchcock but this is harmless fun if you must—7.

1:35—Horse Feathers (1932 Marx Brothers dandy). The day ends with the all-time best shaft of colleges and their football, and you will also learn the relationship of a corpuscle to a captain—12.

●—Recommended; C—Color; PS—No radio worth noting today.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct-line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

'Something Amiss'

Canada 23rd In Health: UN Statistics

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Canada ranks 23rd among 25 well-developed countries in terms of citizen healthcare, a Queen's University economics professor told a public hearing on the medical profession Wednesday.

Dr. R. D. Fraser said the results were from a recent study be conducted and indicated "something is and has been very much amiss" in Canadian health care during the post-war period.

Kingston is the first of nine cities to be host to hearings sponsored by the Ontario Medical Association and conducted by Edward Pickering, director of the OMA study group which organized them.

Fraser said in a brief that United Nations statistics show Canada ranked 14th among developed nations in infant mortality with a rate of 18.8 deaths per 1,000 live births.

He said Canada's poor health rating is a result of the quality of health care, doctor shortage and inefficiently-organized doctors' practices.

Fraser said a 1963 study showed general practitioners in Ontario scored an average of 57 per cent in interviewing and observation procedures. He said scores declined with increasing age of the doctors.

"This performance clearly justifies an immediate study of the need for a new set of procedures for the licensing and certification of physicians after they have been practising 10 years," said Fraser.

Fraser was among 13 persons who presented briefs and 60 who attended the daylong hearing.

He said the shortage of doctors in Ontario is shown by the difficulty of newly-arrived families in finding a physician in Kingston, which has one doctor per 296 persons, the highest ratio in the province.

'Inadequate'

Doctors Rapped In Drug Field

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Members of the medical profession were criticized Wednesday for inability to help young drug abusers and reluctance to allow others to help.

Mrs. Owen Salsbury told the Ontario Medical Association's hearing into the medical profession that doctors are inadequate and poorly trained to help drug abusers.

Mrs. Salsbury, representing a Kingston group called Parents of Drug Abusers said some doctors view drug abuse as a medical problem, others as a behavioral problem.

The profession must decide which view is correct, she said. If drug abuse is a medical problem, doctors should be better trained to deal with it. If it is a behavioral problem, they should allow others to handle it except in medical emergencies.

Mrs. Salisbury suggested establishment of drug detoxification centres to assist drug abusers, since many doctors feel hospital emergency wards are not the place for drug abuse cases.

Dr. D. C. Symington, a Queen's University professor, told the hearing doctors must become more involved in the social, psychological, vocational and economic consequences of illness and disability.

Rehabilitation of patients, which allows patients to remain in their homes, can save thousands of dollars, he said. Rehabilitation of a car accident victim in her home saved $50,000 in hospital costs over four years.

Princess 'Delighted'

LEEDS, England (AP) — Princess Grace of Monaco went to a ball and met her onetime screen lover, Cary Grant.

"I'm delighted to see you again," the princess, former actress Grace Kelly, told the 68-year-old Grant Thursday night when they met at a Variety Club of Great Britain ball.

During her Hollywood days, the princess and Grant starred in the film To Catch a Thief.

Censor In Man Eased

MANILA (UPI) — The Philippines' martiaal law government Thursday lifted censorship on news dispatches but closed down newspapers and radio and television stations which participated in what the administration called an anti-government Communist conspiracy.

Information secretary Francisco Tatad said all correspondents of international news agencies and foreign publications were no longer required signed clearance for their dispatches from Manila. Censorship was imposed Sept. 23, following President Ferdinand Marcos' proclamation of martial law.

The lifting of censorship was contained in a presidential memorandum.The secretary said his department required copies of dispatches after they are sent. Correspondents are required to follow guidelines which ban seditious, inflammatory, immoral, sensational or other anti-government comments.

The media laws were contained in a new martial law decree. The decree ordered "cancellation of all franchises, permits and authorizations of all mass media facilities that have consciously or unconsciously taken part in the conspiracy against the government. . . ."

Jail Chiefs Unhappy About Guitar Duet

RITZVILLE, Wash. (AP) — Two inmates escaped from the Adams County jail sometime during the night by sawing the bars of their cell with a guitar string, sheriff's deputies said Thursday.

One had been jailed Sept. 18 on a charge of assault during an attempt to free his brother from the jail at gunpoint.

Booths Bug Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — When they talked about bugs in the telephones Thursday at the Alberta legislature, there were no howls of outrage from the members about electronic eavesdropping.

What was discussed, rather, was the possibility that public telephones might be a source of infection because of bacteria deposited by somewhat less-than-healthy users.

"Tests show that pathogenic bacteria can live for days in human saliva ejected onto telephone mouthpieces," said opposition member Roy Wilson, in asking Telephones Minister Len Werry if Alberta Government Telephones has considered mandatory disinfection of all public phones.

"If the subject is as much of a problem as the honorable member for Calgary Bow seems to think it is," replied Werry, "I'll be very happy to look into the matter."

Vaccine For VD Still Tested

OTTAWA (CP)—Preliminary results of trials of a Canadian-developed gonorrhea vaccine are encouraging but not conclusive, Dr. Louis Greenberg said Wednesday.

The trial is being carried out by the federal health department on 62 volunteers at Inuvik, N.W.T.

But Greenberg, who developed the vaccine, said early reports support theories on how the immunity is developed. These theories were also tested last year on students in Ottawa.

None of the 54 students ever had genorrhea but they developed antibodies in the blood that indicated they could probably withstand infections.

The Inuvik trial involves persons infected between one and seven times. Early results show these individuals do not develop the antibldy do not develop the antibody Greenberg said in a telephone interview from Washington, D.C.

However, these results were expected on the basis of the Ottawa study and the next step will be to develop a stronger vaccine, he said.

"The question is not whether there will be an effective vaccine. Sooner or later someone will develop it. The question is only when."

A preliminary report on the Inuvik study is to be released soon by the World Health Organization, he said.

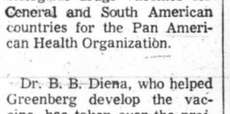

Greenberg, former federal chief of the biologics control laboratories, has just taken over as regional adviser for biological drugs vaccines for General and South American countries for the Pan American Health Organization.

Dr. B. B. Diena, who helped Greenberg develop the vaccine, has taken over the project in Ottawa.

Diena said another trial of the vaccine was scheduled for students at Makerere University in Kampala, Uganda, but has been postponed indefinitely.

McGovern Radiates Confidence, But ...

Historic Victory Seen for Nixon

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Once considered one of the great losers of United States political history, Richard Nixon could be headed for a victory of historic proportions in Tuesday's presidential election.

The most bullish of the president's Republican advisers happily foresee their candidate winning a majority of votes in every one of the 50 states. Their principal fear is that voter apathy and cynicism will keep potential Nixon supporters at home.

Democratic nominee George McGovern, insisting steadfastly that he will beat Nixon, has had few people to share his optimism. A Las Vegas bookie has quoted 1,000-to-1 odds against him. Even his home state of South Dakota seems doubtful.

The polls have said Nixon is likely to attract, voters of almost every stripe, including many who had long been given up as lost to the Republican party — union members and college students, Jews and Roman Catholics, the hungry poor and the limousine liberals, independents and life-long Democrats, the solid South and the industrial North.

And all of this although Nixon has barely budged from the White House to show the colors, and has not allowed McGovern's name to cross his lips.

A typical one-day campaign swing recently to the wealthier suburbs of New York City was nearly a triumphal procession for Nixon.

But only "nearly," because among the 400,000 people who lined the motorcade route and the 7,000 ecstatic Long Island Republicans at an evening pep talk, there were enough dissenters to give the president and his supporters a taste of ashes.

The dissenters were overshadowed by those who had come to cheer the president, but there were always enough of them to warn Nixon that his re-election cannot be assured until the ballots have been counted.

One held up for Nixon to see a sign that said simply, "Remember Dewey" — a reminder of Harry Truman's come-from-behind victory over the excessively confident Thomas Dewey in 1948.

Several protesters had cards spelling out a statement Nixon made in October, 1968, while campaigning for his first term: "Those who have had a chance for four years and could not produce peace

No Deadlines U.S. Tells North Viets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Thursday night that "we are ready to conclude" a Vietnam peace settlement but "we are not going to allow an election deadline or any other kind of deadline to force us into an agreement which would be only a temporary truce and not a lasting peace."

In his first nationally-televised political broadcast of the United States campaign, Nixon said: "We are going to sign the agreement when the agreement is right, not one day before—and when the agreement is right, we are going to sign, without one day's delay."

● Cease-fire talk too sudden for planners. Page 8

"We have reached a substantial agreement on most of the terms of the settlement," Nixon said. "The settlement we are ready to conclude would accomplish the basic objectives" he presented on May 8—a return of all prisoners of war, "a ceasefire throughout Indochina" and the right of the South Vietnamese to determine their own future "without having a Communist government or a coalition government imposed on them against their will," he said.

Without giving details, Nixon said "there are still some issues to be resolved."

In Paris, the North Vietnamese said there will be no further negotiations with United States envoy Henry Kissinger until the United States commits itself to signing the draft Vietnam peace agreement.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong speakers denounced the Nixon administration for what they called "a breach of promises" in not signing the accord by Oct. 31, the deadline set by Hanoi.

The South Vietnamese government warned at the 165th weekly session of the peace conference that it would refuse to recognize any ceasefire agreement concluded against its will.

North Vietnamese forces led by tanks overran a South Vietnamese border camp Thursday in the central highlands of South Vietnam. Hanoi announced it had "no other choice than to step up the fight on all fronts."

Dead Heat

Trudeau Opts To Carry On

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced Thursday night that his Liberal government will attempt to carry on in office despite Monday's federal election dead heat between the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives.

Trudeau said he will ask Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener to call Parliament into session "as soon as possible" so the government can seek a vote of confidence in the House of Commons.

The prime minister declined to predict when the new Parliament will convene, but political observers calculate that it may not be until January.

The announcement put an end, at least for now, to a political impasse resulting from the election count which gave the Conservatives and Liberals 109 seats each in the Commons.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield immediately accused Trudeau's government of displaying an "arrogant desire" to cling to power. Stanfield earlier had called on Trudeau to resign and make way for a Conservative government.

NDP Leader David Lewis pledged support for the government provided it does not introduce legislation his party judges unacceptable.

The NDP would back measures to reduce unemployment and the cost of living and legislation to deal with foreign ownership. It also would fight for an end to "corporate ripoff" — the term Lewis uses for extended tax concessions to large corporations.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette forecast that Trudeau's administration will be able to remain in office at least 1½ years thanks to the support of Lewis.

Until Thursday afternoon, it appeared that the government party would end up with one seat fewer than the Conservatives. But an official count in the Quebec constituency of Drummond took a seat away from Social Credit and gave it to Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin by five votes.

Barrett Backs Liberal Move

Premier Dave Barrett said late Thursday he believes Trudeau made a "constitutionally sound" decision to call parliament into session. But he added it will be up to the House of Commons to make the "ultimate decision" as whether or not it will support his Liberal government.

Barrett repeated his earlier remarks to reporters that he wasn't concerned whether the Liberals or Progressive Conservatives form the next federal government. And he added NDP national leader David Lewis is now in a position of the most important politician in the nation who could become "the Canadian statesman."

"I would expect that (Lewis) would use this position wisely to support legislation which will be for the benefit of all the people of Canada," Barrett said.

The premier added he felt B.C.-Ottawa relations would remain amiable no matter who heads the government and said he was still of the opinion it would be unwise to rush into an early federal election in an effort to resolve the stalemate created by voters last Monday.

Russians Set Off Mighty N-Device

UPPSALA, Sweden (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday exploded underground a nuclear device in the "megaton class" and comparable to the U.S. Amchitka test, the Uppsala Seismological Institute reported.

Prof. Markus Baath, head of the Swedish institute, said the size of the nuclear charge could be between one and five megatons, or possibly even bigger. One megaton is equivalent in explosive force to 1 million tons of TNT.

The explosion in the Semipalatinsk testing area in Siberia was registered at 1:27 a.m. GMT Thursday. It measured 7.1 on the Richter earthquake scale, Baath said.

"It was a very powerful explosion," he said. "Today's test is without doubt in the megaton class and comparable to th Amchitka test a year ago."

Baath said the Soviet test was one of the most powerful, or possibly the most powerful, carried out in Semipalatinsk.

"Only two previous tests have been of comparable size," he said. "They occurred Jan. 15, 1965, and Nov. 30, 1969, both with a magnitude of 7.0 on the Richter scale."

The Soviets have carried out seven major nuclear tests of a military nature previously this year, Baath said. "But there may have been many more minor ones which cannot be detected from the outside," he added.

During all of 1971 the Russians conducted 10 nuclear tests believed to be military.

The Russians are also using nuclear devices in an area north and east of the Caspian Sea from time to time. But scientists believe these explosions are part of a peaceful project using nuclear power for a major water irrigation program.

Separatists Hit French Office

ZARAGOZA, Spain (UPI) — Basque separatists bombed the French consulate Thursday in an apparent act of vengeance for a recent crackdown on Basque extremists living in France.

Police said consul Roger Tour, 62 was critically injured and two members of his staff less seriously wounded. The bombing caused a fire which gravely damaged the downtown building housing the consulate.

NDP Discloses Rules For Tobacco Products

The provincial government Thursday made public new regulations pssed by the NDP cabinet covering labelling, packaging and sale of tobacco products.

The government repealed the tobacco advertising ban at a special session held in the last two weeks of October and passed new legislation to give itself a measure of control over companies distributing and selling tobacco products.

The new regulations state that beginning Dec. 1 all cigarette packages sold in B.C. must carry a warning message.

Three forms of warning have been approved for use in this province:

● Warning: cigarette smoking is harmful to you.

● Warning: The Department of National Health and Welfare advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked.

● Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health.

The choice of warning forms will permit the sale of American cigarettes in this province after the regulations come into effect.

On the same date, Dec. 1 next, cigarette vending machines are also required to display the warning in one of the approved forms and beginning Jan. 1, 1973, all premises where tobacco products are sold will come under the same provision.

The enabling legislation passed at the special session specifically prohibits billboard advertising of tobacco products.

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Experiments are under way to develop a "left-turning" salmon that will avoid British Columbia fishermen as they head to sea from the Strait of Juan de Fuca, turn south and keep Washington fishermen happy.

"Young chinook and coho salmon migrating seaward from Puget Sound are largely behaving as if there is a right-turn only sign posted at Cape Flattery, the state fisheries department says.

"Although this is fine for the large Canadian troll fleet plying the waters off the West Coast of Vancouver Island, it is not so good for the citizens of Washington State.

"Very encouraging" evidence indicating the department may be able to produce south-migrating coho from Puget Sound resulted from fin-marking experiments at the Cowlitz River salmon hatchery, the agency said.

The stocks of coho can be raised at the hatchery — one the Toutle river stock which has been used successfully in Columbia River hatcheries for years, and the other a later-running native coho, the department said.

Several years ago, the agency said, thousands of young coho of these groups were reared, fin-marked and released from the hatchery.

"Some fascinating results came from the ocean catches of the marked coho, the agency said "About two-thirds of the Toutle coho were taken off Oregon and California, whereas two-thirds of the native Cowlitz fish were caught off th the Washington coast. The experiment was repeated, and the same thing happened again."

Since ocean distribution of coho from the Cowlitz hatchery apparently can be influenced by stock selection, "why can't the same be done from Puget Sound?" The department asked.

"We believe there is a very good chance that this can be done and experiments are now under way to discover or develop left-turnng coho salmon from Puget Sound hatcheries.

"South-migrating Puget Sound coho salmon and increased emphasis on north-migrating Columbia River fish should help to insure the quality of our coastal salmon fishing," the agency said.

Romania Explosion Kills 36 Miners

VIENNA (UPI) — A mine explosion in Romania killed 36 persons and injured 12 others Thursday, Agerpres, the official Romanian news agency said.

A gas leakage caused the explosion at the Uricani mining development in Hunedoara County, 300 miles west of Bucharest.

If 'King' Buys Als He May Play Quarterback

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — "I never play an adequate football game," says quarterback Jim "King" Corcoran. "I'm either great, or I'm a bum."

Add another chapter to the saga of the King, who feels he's the savior of the Seaboard Professional League. Several weeks ago, he signed a contract to play for Chambersburg Cardinals of the seven-team circuit, the top minor league on the U.S. East Coast.

He went to Chambersburg after leaving Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League following a rather unimpressive showing during the pre-season schedule.

Although he boasts his name makes the Seaboard League "the top minor league in the country," his big ambition is to own the Alouettes.

He said Wednesday he plans to return to Montreal as head of a group which he says will make an offer to purchase the floundering franchise.

"I have partnerships with two millionaires and they're interested in buying a football team, I'd love to be an owner," he said.

In the meantime, he tells of his accomplishments in helping the Seaboard League.

"I think you're going to see more and more big name players come into the Seaboard League during the next couple of years. I've broken the ice."

The King gained a lot of his fame as quarterback at the University of Maryland:

"I still hold the record for being kicked off that team three times."

Then he went to Denver Broncos, New York Jets and Boston Patriots of the old American Football League before getting a tryout with Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

"I told this guy to get me some dry balls because the balls I was throwing were wet," he said of the Eagle camp run by coach Jerry Williams.

"Jerry thought I was yelling for him to get me the balls, so he came over and said, 'Who do you think you are telling me to get you some dry balls?' I got cut the next day."

Williams is now head coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the CFL.

On to Pottstown for Corcoran where he played with Pottstown Firebirds of the Atlantic Coast Football League. He starred in a nationally-televised special—Pro Football: Pottstown, Pa.—preceding the 1972 Super Bowl. He also quarterbacked the Firebirds to three consecutive league championships.

He was signed by the Alouettes before the current season and went to Montreal hoping to become the No. 1 quarterback. But, he says, Fred Wallner, former coach of Hartford Knights in the Atlantic Coast League and now an Alouette assistant, had other ideas.

"He hated the King," Corcoran said ruefully. "I was the No. 1 quarterback until the opening game. I was made No. 2 quarterback, but the King never plays No. 2 anywhere."

Some of his best times occurred in the pro ranks. When he roomed with Joe Namath of the Jets, Namath needled: "Hey, I hear you call yourself the King."

"That's right, Joe Willie," Corcoran replied, "I am the King. You are the Lord."

The King plans to write a book named what Howard Cosell once called him. "King Corcoran: The Glamorous Failure." He also plans to be in a movie called "Marine" this winter.

But he's not giving up football. He says if he purchases the Alouettes, he will even give some thought to coming back as a CFL quarterback.

West Race Tightens

Bruins Edge Tigers

Only four points separate the top five clubs in the Western Division of the Western Canada Hockey League following Thursday's play.

New Westminster Bruins edged travel-weary Medicine Hat, 4-3, to move into third place, two points behind the front-running Tigers. Edmonton Oil Kings also took advantage to get into a point of Medicine Hat by defeating Winnipeg Jets, 5-4. In the only other WCHL game Thursday, Brandon Wheat Kings moved four points ahead of second-place Saskatoon Blades by beating Flin Flon Bombers, 4-1.

Ron Greshner's 35-foot slapshot in the final period gave the Bruins the victory over the Tigers, who were playing their fifth game in six nights.

In Edmonton, the Oil Kings scored five goals in the first two periods and then survived a Winnipeg spurt early in the final period. Oil Kings led, 5-2, entering the third period but goals by Cam Connors, at 30 seconds, and Randy Knight, at 1:15, narrowed the margin to one goal.

Wheat Kings snapped a 1-1 tie with two second-period goals and put the game out of Bombers' reach with the only goal of the final period. Brandon's Jim Rankin turned aside 39 shots, 17 in the last period.

Kings Demolish Bruins For Sixth Straight Win

They all look alike to Los Angeles Kings these days.

Off to a 1-6 start after playing their first six games away from home, the Kings have managed an amazing form reversal and Thursday night slapped down Boston Bruins, 5-2, and jumped into the lead in the National Hockey League's West Division.

It was the sixth straight win, all on home ice, in a streak in which the Kings have allowed only seven goals while scoring 25. They complete their home stand on Saturday against New York Islanders, then head off on a five-game road trip.

Thursday's victory left the Kings 2-0 against the Bruins this season. The first came in Boston, by 4-2, on Oct. 8 and was followed by a five-game losing streak. Kings ended the skid by bouncing Chicago Black Hawks, 3-1.

Ralph Backstrom, a 35-year-old speedster who spent his first 12 NHL seasons with Montreal Canadiens, and Wayne Cashman, a quarrelsome Boston winger, played startingly different roles in the game.

Obviously not affected by the move which has him at left-wing instead of centre, Backstrom scored goals six seconds apart in the third period. They were his sixth and seventh scoring shots and 15th and 16th points of the season.

His goals came in an amazing five-minute stretch with Cashman viewing proceedings from the penalty box.

It was a 1-1 game when Cashman got into a scuffle with rookie Don Kozak. The latter, who either didn't get the chance to retaliate or was smart enough not to, drew only two minutes while Cashman got a major penalty.

It wasn't long after play resumed that Backstrom struck for his goals, and Dallas Smith got the Bruins to 2-3 while both clubs played shorthanded. But the Kings got power-play goals from Bob Berry and Real Lemieux before Cashman returned.

Defeat, their sixth in 12 games and leaving them below .500, dropped the Bruins 11 points behind the rampaging Canadiens.

The East Division leaders, stretching their unbeaten streak to 13 games with an easy ninth victory, gave 12,280 Atlanta fans some of the facts of expansion life by dousing the Flames, 6-1.

The first-year Atlanta club arrived home in third place and only two points out of the West Division lead after a fine road trip on which they won four out of six games. But they were simply outmatched by a club which is looking increasingly powerful.

Marc Tardif, who appears to be reaching for the stardom predicted for him when he was a junior star, scored his ninth and 10th goals.

Quebec Nordiques moved into second place in the Eastern Division of the World Hockey Association with a win Thursday night.

Nordiques downed Philadelphia Blazers, 6-3, before 6283 hometown fans to get within two points of leading Cleveland Crusaders.

Michel Archambault and Robert Guindon scored two goals each for Quebec. Blazers missed penalty-killing specialist Derek Sanderson who was injured Wednesday in a game against Cleveland, giving up two goals on power plays. They were the 13th and 14th goals scored with a man-power advantage by the Nordiques, who have a total of 38 goals.

New York Raiders climbed into a share of third place in the Eastern Division with New England Whalers by beating Minnesota Fighting aiSnts, 4-2, before 3047 fans in St. Paul.

Overtime failed to break a 1-1 tie between Los Angeles Sharks and Ottawa Nationals before 2448 fans in Canada's capital. Gary Veneruzzo put Sharks ahead at 10:58 of the third period but Steve King's power-play effort with two minutes and four seconds left forced the extra time. George Gardiner was superb in the Sharks' nets, blocking 30 shots including breakaways by Wayne Cashman and Ron Climie.

Boxers Top Hoop Rivals

London Boxing Club crushed Restoration Services, 79-34, Thursday night in the first game for each club in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League.

Jim McKay and Duff McCaghey, with 14 points each, topped the scoring for the Boxers, who led, 37-17, at half time. Ed Steele, with 11 points, was the only Restoration Services player to reach double figures.

LONDON BOXING CLUB (79) — Rich Connolly 8, Bill Hingley 6, Jim McKay 14, Loris Corletto 8, Alfred Hass 7, Duff McCaghey 14, Sid Chow 8, Dan Ireland 2, John Speller 4, Mike Squires 8.

Some Suspensions Lifted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twenty-six senior players have had their suspensions lifted by the B.C. Soccer Commission.

They were among players who took part in games in the B.C. Premier Soccer League since it was banned by the commission Oct. 6. The 26 had either written or appeared before a special committee to seek clearance.

Other clearances are expected to follow, particularly for members of the Victoria Regals, who withdrew from the Premier League playoffs.

Wilf Sadler, the commission's Vancouver Island representative, is on holiday and the commission believes letters of appeal from Victoria players may have been mailed to his home.

"Our main goal is to get as many players as possible back playing," said Bill Stirling, a member of the special committee.

But Stirling said players who took part in the Premier League playoffs would have to sit out a full year suspension.

Columbus beat Croatia in the playoff semi-final and Spartans, who won by default over Regals, play Columbus in the final Sunday.

Molsons Can Expect Tough Test Saturday

Gorge Molsons will take the field at Royal Athletic Park at 2 p.m. Saturday in a bid for their third straight Pacific Coast Soccer League shutout.

Molsons, one of two rookie clubs in the league last year, hold an early lead after blanking Inter-Italia, 2-0, and North Shore United, 1-0.

But they may find the opposition a little tougher Saturday.

Visitors are Westminster Blues, who during the summer carried off the Canadian amateur club soccer championship.

Last weekend, Blues were unable to use several of their players pending announcements by the B.C. Soccer Commission on suspensions of players who turned out with the rebel B.C. Premier League since it was suspended.

The understrength Blues, who started with eight players and had nine in the second half, were trounced, 5-1, by Paul's Canadians.

It will be a different story Saturday after the B.C. commission lifted suspensions of 26 Premier League players and ruled they could take part in this weekend's Coast League games.

This ruling made available about eight New Westminster players, including former Victorian Tom Westwater and Blues expect to field a strong team.

Molsons, have not hard from the commission regarding the status of goalkeeper Graham Lee, who played for Victoria Regals in the Premier League.

Unless clearance for Lee comes through in time, coach Larry DeCosta, who came out of a seven-year retirement to record the two shutouts, will again be in goal.

The Gorge back four will be Brad Clarke, Doug Bisson, Doug Marshall and Darryl Hooker, linkmen will be Dan Henry and Randy Cronk and forwards will be Marvin Diercks, George Hyne, Garnet Moen and Joe Poulton. Reserves are Kurt Clarke, Dennis Somner and Dunc McCaig.

The Gorge-Westminster game is Saturday's only match. On Sunday, Victoria West-United, champions last season, meet Inter-Italia at Empire Stadium and North Shore plays Paul's at Kinsmen Park.

Club Professional Leads Par-Shattering Field

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Longshot Bobby Loy forged a seven-under-par 65 for the surprise first-round lead Thursday in the $125,000 Texas Open golf tournament.

The 32-year-old Loy, a club pro at Burlington, N.C., held a one-stroke lead over veteran Dan Sikes, who took a 66 at the 7011-yard Woodlake Golf Club course.

Orville Moody, Mike Hill and rookies Larry White and Tom Watson were next at 67 as the touring pros took advantage of the near-ideal playing conditions to make a mockery of par.

Lee Trevino, the British Open champion, had to rally to salvage a 71.

The PGA Player of the Year, Jack Nicklaus, and Arnold Palmer are not competing.

A hot putter helped Loy make his best pro start. He needed only 25 putts on the tough, undulating greens.

Ben Kern of Toronto was in a group of 10 at 69.

Ken Fulton of Montreal carded a 73 while Gary Bowerman of Toronto and Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver were both at 74.

Morgan Closer To Tourney Card

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Vic Regalado of Tijuana, Mexico, fired a one-under-par 71 and regained a share of the fourth-round lead with Larry Stubblefield of Hawaii Thursday in the PGA qualifying school at Silverado Country Club.

Regalado and Stubblefield each finished the day with four-round totals of 285. Stubblefield carded a 72 after a 65 Wednesday.

Closest to the two leaders was Pat Fitzsimons of Salem, Ore., who shot 71 Thursday for a total of 289.

John Morgan of Victoria, was tied with four other players for eighth place at 297 after Thursday's round. Bob Panasuik of Windsor, was in a four-way tie for 12th place with 301.

Morgan carded a 72 Thursday while Panasiuk had a 74.

Unanimous Choice

NEW YORK (AP) — To the surprise of absolutely no one, Philadelphia's Steve Carlton has won the Cy Young Award as the best pitcher in the National League.

Carlton was the unanimous choice of the 24-man committee of baseball writers — two from each National League city — for the honor after turning in a remarkable 27-10 record for the last-place Phillies.

Hugs and Cusses

DERBY, England (AP) — Derbyshire is searching for women referees to look after women's soccer games. They're too hot for men to handle, says the county's Football Association.

Male members of the Derby Referees Society complain they have been shocked by the girls, language; embarrassed by being cuddled by well-built centre forwards seeking favors for their teams; and flummoxed when a penalized player uses her ultimate weapon — a gush of tears.

"As soon as they put on football boots these young girls lose all their inhibitions," said secretary Frank Harwood, 34.

"The language can be as tough as in a game between coalminers. The technique of some well-known referees is to answer like with like but, being gentlemen, they can hardly do that in a women's match.

"And several members have reported they just don't know what to do when girl players put their arms around them. You can't very well book them for that."

Mrs. Anita Mozley, secretary of the district's girl soccer league, said she felt the men were getting all het up about nothing.

"Frankly," she said, "I think male referees are not manly enough. If they gave a strict pep-talk before the kickoff our players would know what to expect.

"Anyhow," she added, "we've only had one girl sent off. But that was for fighting as well."

Northcott Replaces Evergreen Champ

VANCOUVER — George Fink of Calgary is unexpectedly unable to defend his title in the Evergreen Tournament of Champions, which opens this morning at the Vancouver Curling Club.

Winner in 1970 and 1971, Fink has been replaced on the teehead by Ron Northcott, three-time world champion who played third rocks for Fink last year in this event. Lloyd Woolley will be the vice-skip for Northcott.

Thirty-two rinks, most of them with the lineups planned for future playdown competition, will take part in the $5,600 competition. They will play through three events in a draw which doesn't bring elimination from the eight-rink final until a third loss. The semi-finalists in "A" event and the finalists in "B" and "C" events qualify for the playoff final.

First draw for each rink:

8:00 a.m. — Matt Baldwin, Edmonton vs Jack Arnet, Vancouver; Bob McCubbin, Richmond vs Keith Heuchert, New Westminster; Aubrey Neff ,Vancouver vs Jim Kilburn, Squamish; Lynn Mason, Burnaby vs Lyall Dagg, Kelowna; Ken Hamilton, Grande Prairie vs Gordon Walker, Victoria.

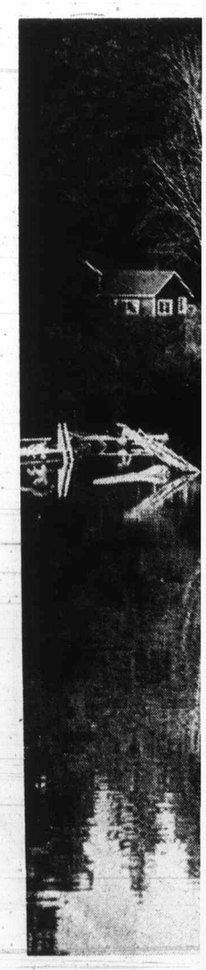

10:30 a.m. — Art Winstanley, Trail vs Glen Harper, Duncan; Kevin Smale, Prince George vs Ray Guertin, Seattle; Glen Pierce, Vancouver vs Gene Kraus, Vancouver; Sam Cope, Vancouver vs Pete Sherba, Prince George; Mo Hill, Victoria vs Buzz McGibney, Trail.

1 p.m — Bernie Sparkes, Vancouver vs Brent Giles, Vancouver; Jack Tucker, Richmond vs Ted Moffatt, Prince George; Keith Dagg, Victoria vs Herb Van Grootel, Prince George.

3:30 p.m. — Ron Northcott, Calgary; vs Trev Fisher, New Westminster; Ed Risling, Seattle vs Fred Duncan, Duncan; Jake Block, Abbotsford vs Gary Leibel, Victoria.

NORTH COWICHAN — The municipality of North Cowichan is anxiously waiting for the announcement of another winter works program to launch action of the proposed $3 million Chemainus River water system.

For more than a decade the municipality has been eyeing Chemainus River as a major water source and more than two years ago a first detailed study was made by John Sensom, then municipal engineer.

Copies of that study were sent to the city of Duncan and the Cowichan Valley Regional Board hoping both would show interest.

This hope, however, was in vain. The city never acknowledged receipt and the regional board merely filed the study.

Need Water

"We hoped that part of the region and the city would come in because Cowichan Bay, Koksilah, and Eagle Heights all need water and the scheme is big enough to supply that area," said Mayor Gerry Smith at a press conference Thursday.

North Cowichan Stalled

Vital Water System Awaits Works Grant

NORTH COWICHAN — The municipality of North Cowichan is anxiously waiting for the announcement of another winter works program to launch action of the proposed $3 million Chemainus River water system.

For more than a decade the municipality has been eyeing Chemainus River as a major water source and more than two years ago a first detailed study was made by John Sensom, then municipal engineer.

Copies of that study were sent to the city of Duncan and the Cowichan Valley Regional Board hoping both would show interest.

This hope, however, was in vain. The city never acknowledged receipt and the regional board merely filed the study.

Need Water

"We hoped that part of the region and the city would come in because Cowichan Bay, Koksilah, and Eagle Heights all need water and the scheme is big enough to supply that area," said Mayor Gerry Smith at a press conference Thursday.

Meanwhile the need for water in the southend has become a pressing issue and council earlier this year decided to ask a Vancouver firm to carry out a more detailed Chemainus River water system study to be ready whenever the federal government announced another winter works program.

Water Source

Relating the facts behind the municipality's urge to develop a dependable water source, the North Cowichan mayor explained that it all started about three years ago.

He said three years ago North Cowichan developed three wells in the south end but the iron content in the water was too high. The Crofton pulp mill came to their aid and within a short time 200,000 gallons per day flowed into the south end from the mill's Cowichan River system.

Mill Helped

Nevertheless even the 200,000 gallons a day proved to be inadequate during the following summer and the pulp mill agreed to raise the amount to 500,000 gallons per day.

Now North Cowichan, with the permission of the Public Utilities Commission, has a two-year agreement with the Crofton mill for 500,000 gallons per day.

Explaining the seriousness of the water problem in the south end of North Cowichan, Smith said, "With the help from the Crofton pulp mill we are pretty safe for two years. However, we cannot wait five years to do the project. We have to do it now and if not for the Crofton mill we would be in dire trouble now.

Nothing Heard

Smith emphasized after nothing was heard from the regional board regarding the proposed water system Dennis Hogan, municipal clerk Adoph Van de Casteyen and he, decided to recommend to council to go ahead with the latest detailed $12,000 study.

The mayor said council for some time has been negotiating with MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. which has water rights on the Chemainus River in the amount of 3,760,000 gallons per day.

The company is willing to give up its water rights there if the municipality can guarantee adequate water for the Chemainus sawmill.

Small Amount

With the exception of a negligible amount of water used for the company's Copper Canyon camp, the 3,760,000 gallons per day are not used because the mill's present demand of 18 million or 19 million gallons of water per month is drawn from the Chemainus water system which the mill helped to build.

The Chemainus water system is fed from Holy Oak Lake and besides developing the Chemainus River water source the municipality plans to improve the existing Chemainus water system which will be adequate for about 20 years. Now North Cowichan has applied to the water rights branch at Victoria for the water rights on the Chemainus River for 3,950,000 gallons per day for domestic and industrial use.

Intake Dam

Smith said the first phase of the proposed Chemainus River water system will include an intake dam, 31,000 feet of supply mains and 8,000 feet of distribution feeder mains. Storage capacity would be 300,000,000 gallons of water and by the year 2,000 with an estimated population of 50,000, the storage capacity would have to be increased to about 940,000,000 gallons.

"If at any time the regional district wants to come in, they will be welcome. They would be welcomed right now. We are not trying to control the water in the Chemainus River, but we need that water urgently. If we don't carry out this development nobody will. We just cannot wait. The future is now," Smith stressed.

Youthful Joy

One happy boy is 14-year-old Roddie Thorne of Duncan as he holds big salmon he speared in Cowichan River. Indians are only people allowed to catch fish in this manner. Roddie's smile may have something to do with fact that fish will go far in family food supply, but is more likely from pure youthful enjoment at having landed a big one.

Soviet Boats Take Herring

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fisheries service said Thursday it has strong evidence that Soviet fishing vessels are catching herring off the lower west coast of Vancouver Island. A spokesman said attempts are being made to discuss this with the commander of the Soviet fleet, since herring restrictions have been in force for B.C. fishermen since 1967.

Courtenay Man

Captives' Release Sought In Laos

COURTENAY — The father of a missionary captured by the Pathet Lao in Laos, said Thursday that negotiations are going on to obtain the release of his son, Lloyd Oppel, and a companion, Sam Mattix of Centralia, Wash.

Magnus Oppel said that he had no idea if his son was being held for ransom or as a hostage in possible ceasefire moves. He also said he had no idea of the location of the village where the negotiations were taking place.

He said he had heard of the capture from the New York head office of the Christian Missions of Many Lands, the organization for which his son works.

Heads of the mission, Mr. and Mrs. Les Chopard, escaped capture and officials said that Chopard was one of those conducting the talks.

Lloyd is a graduate of G. P. Vanier senior high school and attended University of British Columbia before leaving as a missionary.

He was recommended to the mission group by Courtenay gospel hall members.

Lloyd was well known in school circles where he participated in many activities as well as community activities.

He also has a sister serving as a nurse in foreign mission.

Banks' Shooting Trial

Inmate Gives Eye-Witness Account

NANAIMO—A B.C. Supreme Court jury was told here Thursday that Michael Darwin of Lasqueti Island, shot Roger Henry Banks three times with a rifle.

Max Baillie, who is serving five years in prison for armed robbery, said he was with Darwin and Banks as they drove to a cabin on Lasqueti Island Sept. 16, 1971.

He said on arrival, Banks got out of the truck, went to the cabin and was returning to the truck then he was shot.

"I was rolling a cigarette when I heard the report of a rifle and saw the flash. The boy (Banks) put his hands up. Then I saw another flash — the shot hit the boy and he jerked. Darwin then walked in front of the lights of the truck. The boy fell down. I saw Darwin crank another shot into the body on the ground," Baillie told the court.

He was testifying before a jury of five women and seven men in the supreme court trial of Darwin on a charge of non-capital murder.

He is charged in connection with the death of Banks. The victim's body has never been found.

Before leaving the witness stand, Baillie admitted to a criminal record dating back to 1951 and involving weapons charges, armed robbery, threatening, mailing obscene material and theft.

Although the shooting is believed to have occurred on Sept. 16, police were not brought in to the matter until March of this year.

Constable Randall Epp of the North Vancouver detachment, RCMP, told the court that as a result of a letter he received, signed by Baillie an investigation was undertaken, the results of which led to the charge against Darwin.

From information received, Epp said, he and other police officers went to Lasqueti Island and found several pieces of evidence, including a spent bullet which Epp found in a clearing pointed out to him by Baillie.

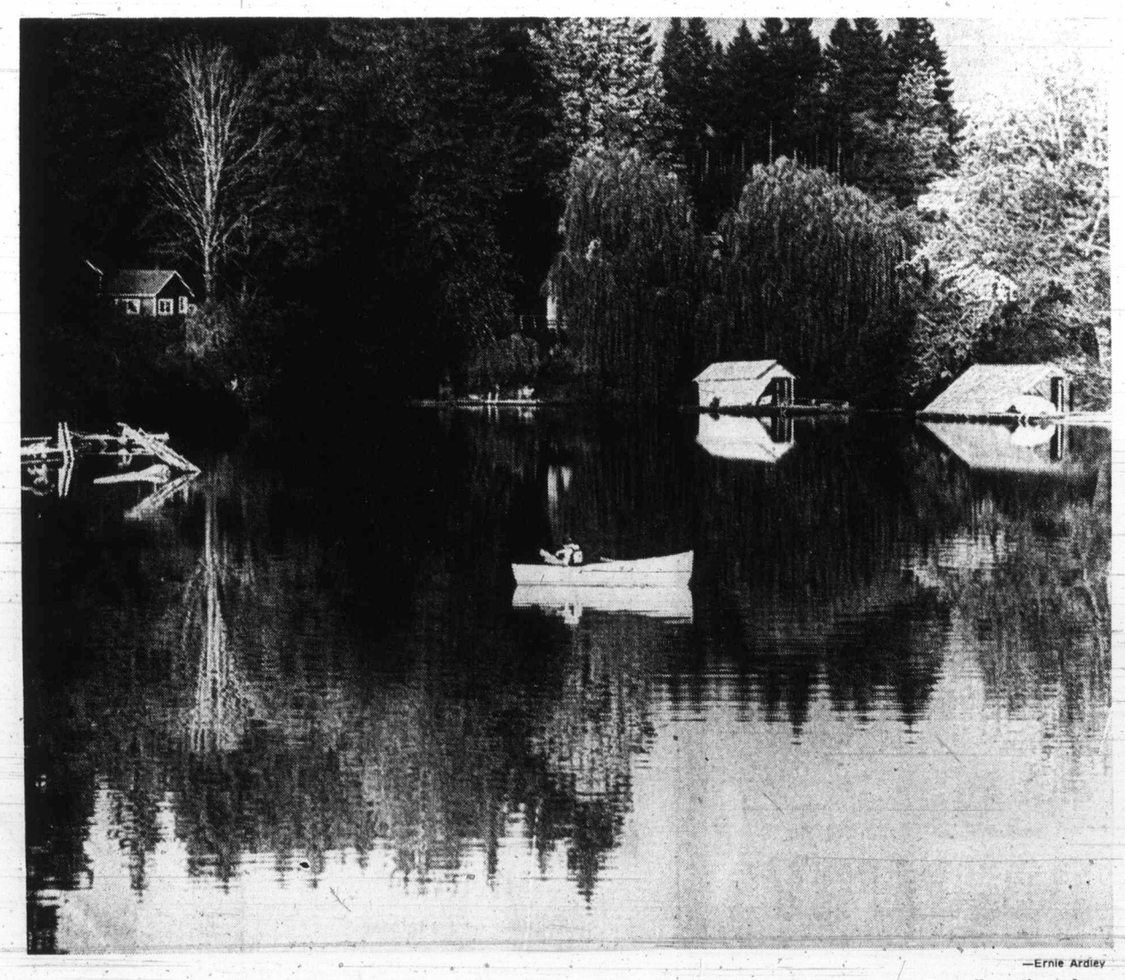

At this point, the constable testified, he had not yet heard of Banks. His first contact with the name came on April 5.

Epp said he first met Baillie on May 1, 1971, when he and three other police officers forced their way into a suite in a Vancouver home and arrested him at gun point.

The Quiet Life

It may be nearly winter and joys of summer living on the water just about over. But on a warm, sunny fall day there is still much to do in Vancouver Island's beauty spots. One such location, caught on a bright, calm day is a small section along Cowichan River. Graceful foliage and boathouses are reflected on smooth waters as lone fisherman enjoys quiet outing.

Shots During Robbery Cost Merchant $3,693

LAKE COWICHAN — A Vancouver Island furniture store operator and his firm have been ordered by British Collmbia Supreme Court to pay $3,693 to the widow and son of a man fatally shot when he fled the store following a break-in April 9, 1970.

Mr. Justice P. D. Seaton was told that Tony Bigcharles died when Helmut Berthold Merkel fired a shot through the window through which Bigcharles and four others escaped when Merkel surprised them in the store. The shot struck Bigcharles in the shoulder.

The judge said that Merkel, whose living quarters form part of the store bulding, was aroused by a noise in the store, ordered the men to halt and when they escaped out the window fired a shot through the same window "into the night."

Mr. Justice Seaton held that Merkel's firing into the dark in the area of fleeing men constituted negligence but held also that Bigcharles was 75 per cent to blame for what happened.

In the supreme court damage action brought on behalf of Welda Sharon Bigcharles, Mr. Justice Seaton ruled that damages to her and her son would total $14,773 but held that since Merkel's responsibility for the death of her husband was 25 per cent, he and Merkel's Furniture Ltd. must pay $3,693.

Condition Fair

Marlene Andres, 21, of 2925 Qu'Appelle, Saanich, was in satisfactory condition early today in Victoria General Hospital with a broken left leg received Tuesday in a traffic mishap, hospital authorities reported. Saanich police said a motorcycle the woman was operating was in collision with a car driven by Keith Hunter, 35, of 254 Obed, at Obed and Tillicum.

A car driven by Judith Dixon of 1150 Summit was in collision with a car driven by Milan Radeti of 2120 Ridge at Bay and Quadra Wednesday, Victoria police reported. Police said the two persons, who received minor injuries, declined hospital treatment.

RCMP Recover Stolen Dynamite

LAKE COWICHAN —RCMP recently recovered three cases of dynamite after receiving a tip from an anonymous phone caller.

The dynamite was stolen from B.C. Forest Products Caycuse division two weeks ago, along with caps, fuses, and magazine records. The company had estimated 15 cases of dynamite had been stolen, but because the records were taken also, could not be certain of the amount.

Lake Cowichan police recovered the explosives near Cottonwood Creek on the North Shore Road, outside Lake Cowichan. Police said the dynamite was in very dangerous condition when it was located, as it had been weeping, which indicates a breakdown of the nitroglycerin. In this state, dynamite is extremely unstable.

The explosive was recovered Oct. 24 near the site of an earlier blast, which was set off with dynamite stolen from BCFP at the beginning of the month. Police have made no arrests following the thefts, but are still investigating.

The Rajmata of Jaipur

Maharani's Story —Riches to Rags

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — Though the Maharani of Jaipur is still young and beautiful, she is already writing her memoirs for Sir George Weidenfeld, the London publisher.

She can type like a pro and at breakfast her husband used to say, "Ayesha, take down the morning news in shorthand," but she will still have the help of a ghostwriter. All that worries her is the importance everyone seems to give to her life as one of the international party-goers.

"Of course I loved every minute of that part of my life, and I used to be the last to go home from a party," she says. "Now I prefer something cozier, like going to the movies and the theatre or sitting around talking to friends."

"If the book ever comes out, I feel like calling it From Riches to Rags, she goes on. The daughter of a wealthy family in Cooch Behar, in northern Bengal, she was christened Gayatritiva, but her mother had been reading Rider Haggard's She and called her Ayesha. So does everyone else.

She met her husband when she was five and he was some 25 years older and she kept on seeing him whenever he came there to play polo. In the Indian fashion he had had other wives, "but ours was a love match," she says.

After his death in a polo match two years ago, and because of changing times in India, her life has become quite different. As a widow, her title is no longer actually the Maharani but Rajmata of Jaipur, and her days are full of more projects than she can cope with. She has run for Parliament three times and is an articulate member of the Opposition. She is involved with one museum, at least three schools, tour planning and some hotel and motels converted from properties that belonged to the Jaipur family.

She and her stepson, who inherited his father's title, are partners in Amber, named for the old capital of Jaipur. "It's not quite a travel agency because we don't sell tickets, and the tours are not like If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Brussels, either. We want people to see what life in India is really like," she says. The first tour of 30 will go to the Pushkar Fair with its handicrafts and camel races some time this month. Since the new maharajah is a lieutenant colonel in the Indian Army, many of the details fall on her shoulders.

She started her arts and crafts school years ago. It takes only 30 students who are learning how to carry on the traditional blue pottery, painting and brass inlay. More than 600 are enrolled in her regular girls' school. Athird is set up for girls who don't want to go to college but want to be wives or secretaries.

She herself went to school in England, India and Switzerland and finally to The Monkey Club, a finishing school in London. When she first came to Jaipur, their women were still in seclusion and her husband asked her to help them get out of it. She has done everything she could.

In 1958 her husband turned a shooting lodge in the country where she came as a bride into the Rambagh Palace Hotel. Now she and her stepson are converting the huge old garage into a motel. "We'll have 36 double bedrooms. We're hardly changing anything. It has a court in the middle. We'll build on the roof it if's successful."

The project she cares about most, though, is the museum into which the city palace of the Jaipur family has been converted. It will hold all the material history of the Jaipur family, possessions that include old tents used in the battlefield, armor, carriages, important documents, musical instruments, toys, glass, ceramics and one of the world's finest carpet collections. "We have given it back to the nation, but it must be kept in its entirety," she says.

While she is here she has been hunting for a new museum director and for an American publisher for Gourmet's Gateway, a collection of her own and a few of her friends' recipes.

"I have sold some of my jewelry, but some of it has been in the family a long time. I feel it should be kept and go eventually to the museum," she says. "Sometimes I'm sad about the change in India and things like the movie signs in the pink city Jaipur. But when I talked about it to my 23-year-old son, Jagat Singh, he answered, 'We used to be aloof. Now we can mix with more people and I like it better.' Maybe he's right."

Survey Conclusion:

Women Biased Against Own Sex

Colonist-Copley Services

Biased judgment against women — by women — has been disclosed by a psychological study funded by the National Science Foundation in the United States.

A foolproof way to test the female mind was devised by three psychologists at Connecticut College in New London.

The experiment consisted of asking 120 college women to evaluate artists who had painted a series of abstract paintings.

The volunteers were given background profiles of each artist, along with the paintings. In some of these profiles the artists were identified with female names and in others with male names.

When the women were told the paintings had won prizes, they evaluated equally the technical competence and probable future success of each artist, regardless of the artist's presumed sex.

When told that the paintings were still-unjudged entries in a contest, however, the women ranked male artists "significantly higher" than female artists, despite the merits of the pictures.

Dr. Sara Kiesler, one of the investigators, said the experiment results indicate that women are biased when they judge other women "until those women prove themselves by award, trophy or other obvious success."

Dr. Kiesler noted that the experiment was part of a larger study to determine how people react to others who violate group norms or accepted rules of behavior. This study showed that people usually have a greater liking for those who conform to behavior norm.

Thus, Dr. Kiesler explained, she expected women to devaluate the efforts of other women striving for career success because such women are "norm violators" of the woman's traditional role as wife and mother.

"However, total rejection of career women was not the case," she explained.

"They were evaluated equally to men when their success was known. The women in the study seemed to be taking an actuarial approach. They know that fewer women than men are successful and technically competent in our society, so the best guess for artists with paintings not yet judged was that women would be less successful or skilled."

Oshawa Warning

Health Rules Being Bent At Bake Sales

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — If health regulations were applied stricly, most bake sales and bazaars would have to be closed, says Dr. J. E. Watt, director of environmental health services for Oshawa-Ontario County district health unit.

"Food is kept at room temperature for long hours. When you add all the food served through this type of thing, it's a tremendous volume.

"We've been lenient in not enforcing regulations. What we have done is insist on a minimum standard in church kitchens and ethnic halls, but they don't necessarily have the facilities to produce all the food in that kitchen, so food is prepared at home and brought to the event.

"Any food wholly or partially perishable, particularly meat or milk products, must be prepared in sanitary premises. Also, if it is a cold food it must be kept under 40 degrees and if hot,over 140.

"If you hold cabbage rolls at room temperature, any bacteria present multiply most rapidly. And if they're the right bacteria, you get food infection or poisoning.

"We also want it prepared under sanitary conditions. It could be prepared in a home with children who have communicable disease. The woman packs it in the trunk of a car where it's warm and the place where it's sold is warm. Bacteria multiply.

"Meat pie is a definite hazard. Fruit pie isn't such a hazard from the bacterial point of view, but they have the habit of putting food in used boxes and keeping it in the open where people are sneezing.

"It's estimated that in Canada 200,000 cases of foodborne illness occur annually."

Dr. Watt says he knows there would be opposition to any move to enforce regulations strictly and close bake sales.

"They're donating time and effort to charitable purposes. There seems to be a feeling that they should have free reign.

"We're not going out of our way to pick on these groups. It's just part of the general food control program.

"If you apply the regulations entirely, we'd only allow sales of food prepared on inspected premises and handled according to the requirements after it's prepared.

"It really would take the cooperation of these groups. They've got to realize what they're doing is hazardous."

'Organic Foods Likely Higher in Toxicity'

VANCOUVER (CP) — So-called "health foods" are neither safer nor more nutritious than any other food, says the president of the Canadian Institute of Food Science and Technology.

Dr. James F. Richards, an associate professor of food science at the University of British Columbia, said in an interview Tuesday that too often people are scared away from the ordinary food on market shelves by misinformation spread by food faddists.

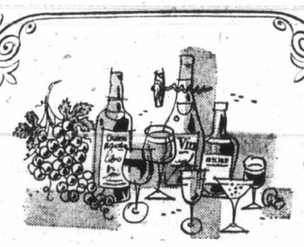

"If people want to eat organic food, that's fine," said Richards. "But I'm against those who delude others into believing organic food is either safer or nutritionally superior to the food you buy at your local store. It is not the case. My personal view is that the toxicity of organic health foods is probably higher and therefore less safe."

Richards said the time has come for professionals in the food sciences to give the facts on a regular basis. He said "there's a tremendous pool of information" among such organizations as his own institute, and the Canadian nutritionists, dieticians, and health science bodies, as well as those in agriculture.

He said the lack of general knowledge that any food can create a health risk has caused many consumers "to over-react" when confronted of health food arguments.

"Some people like to make statements that additives in commercial food are poisonous. Well, flourides are poison. Most chemicals are if used wrongly. Unfortunately, the consumer is rarely in a position to get into the (scientific(details of this. So the only thing we can do is lay the facts on the line."

Richards said the amount of additives in foods is being continually reviewed in Canada by the health protection branch of the department of health and welfare. "They don't permit any additives unless they have some significant advantage to the consumer."

COURTENAY — Voters in Courtenay school district may be asked to approve a $941,000 school construction referendum this December.

At a special meeting of Courtenay school trustees, the necessary resolution calling for a referendum was adopted.

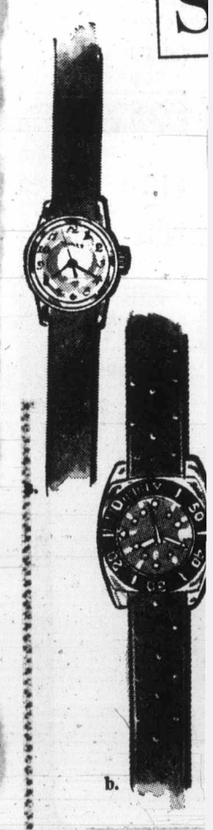

It is hoped that the necessary approval will be obtained from Minister of Education Eileen Dailly, in time to put the question to the voter at the same time as municipal elections, Dec. 9.

The proposed building program is largely at the secondary school level.

At Comox junior high school, where the largest growth rate is occurring, the provision is for full sized gymnasium; conversion of the present small gymnasium into a library-resources centre conversion of the present small library into teaching area and some expansion o the administrative area. An annex classroom will also b converted into a specialized area for art.

Brant Appeal Tops Quota

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — The United Community Fund of Brantford and Brant County has become the first United Appeal in Canada t reach its objective, a spokesman for the Community Funds and Councils of Canad said Thursday. Campaig workers reported that $375,30 or 100.1 per cent of th $375,090 target had bee raised.

Municipal Elections

Comox Valley Slates Shaping for Dec. 9

COURTENAY — Municipal elections appear to be slated for at least two of the three Comox Valley municipalities Dec. 9.

In addition to voting for council vacancies, there will be regional board and school board elections and at least one money referendum.

In Courtenay three council seats will become vacant. George Cochrane completes a one-year term and Sandy Strachan and Dan Woodrow also end regular two-year terms.

Both Strachan and Cochrane will seek re-election while Woodrow will not seek another term.

Vying for the council seats are two women, Mrs. Mary former alderman and unsuccessful candidate, and Mrs. Bebe Cleverly, a newcomer to the local political scene. Also in the running is former alerrman and unsuccessful mayorality contestant, Harry Harris.

In the town of Comox another former mayor, R. D. Ellis, defeated last year by incumbent Mayor Dick Merrick, is expected to seek an aldermanic seat. Also looking for council seats are Brian Hemingway and Wilf Moores. Moores is a newcomer while Hemingway has been unsuccessful in past tries for council. Ald. Vern Benedictson, whose term is also up, says he is still undecided about his future actions. Ald. Ron Black will not seek re-election.

The Village of Cumberland will see Mayor Bill Moncrief seek another term as will Ald. Andrew (Red) Harvie and Peter Cameron.

On the school trustee scene, board chairman Doug Sankey will retire after five years, three of which were as chairman. He is one of two trustees representing the City of Courtenay.

Mrs. Ruth McKellar representing the Village of Cumberland, will seek another term. She has served four years on the board.

Two rural school board seats will be open with incumbents William Bailey and Mrs. Edith McNish seeking re-election for a second term.

The school district will ask voter approval for a $941,000 construction bylaw.

Referendum Planned In Courtenay Area

COURTENAY — Voters in Courtenay school district may be asked to approve a $941,000 school construction referendum this December.

At a special meeting of Courtenay school trustees, the necessary resolution calling for a referendum was adopted.

It is hoped that the necessary approval will be obtained from Minister of Education Eileen Dailly, in time to put the question to the voter at the same time as municipal elections, Dec. 9.

The proposed building program is largely at the secondary school level.

At Comox junior high school, where the largest growth rate is occurring, the provision is for full sized gymnasium; conversion of the present small gymnasium into a library-resources centre; conversion of the present small library into teaching area and some expansion of the administrative area. An annex classroom will also be converted into a specialized area for art.

A significant feature at Comox junior high is that 23 per cent of the cost will be borne by the federal government because 23 per cent of the students are resident on federal property at Canadian Forces Base Comox.

At Georges P. Vanier senior high, a band room will be constructed together with a library and three classrooms. The present small library will be converted into a teaching area. As at Comox, there are federal dependents at Vanier, and it is expected that an agreement will shortly be concluded with the national defence department providing a 5.3 per cent share of the cost to be borne federally.

At Lake Trail junior high, the need is for an additional industrial education shop to handle the electricity and draughting program.

Cumberland junior high is scheduled to acquire a band room by conversion of the elementary school activity room. The science room is to be increased in size by absorbing the small art room adjacent, and a new art room of adequate size will be constructed.

Courtenay junior high will have substantial renovations and improvements made to the gymnasium-shower room-bleacher area.

At the elementary school level the prime need is not for extra classrooms, except at Comox, but for better facilities in some schools.

Royston and Arden elementary schools both require additions to the activity room area, and at Comox two classrooms will be required either at Village Park or at Brooklyn.

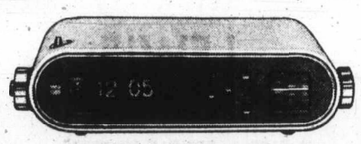

Total cost of the program is $1.25 million, but the availability of the federal funds for some of the work drops this to $941,000 to be requested in the referendum.

McGovern Radiates Confidence, But ...

Historic Victory Seen for Nixon

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Once considered one of the great losers of United States political history, Richard Nixon could be headed for a victory of historic proportions in Tuesday's presidential election.

The most bullish of the president's Republican advisers happily foresee their candidate winning a majority of votes in every one of the 50 states. Their principal fear is that voter apathy and cynicism will keep potential Nixon supporters at home.

Democratic nominee George McGovern, insisting steadfastly that he will beat Nixon, has had few people to share his optimism. A Las Vegas bookie has quoted 1,000-to-1 odds against him. Even his home state of South Dakota seems doubtful.

The polls have said Nixon is likely to attract voters of almost every stripe, including many who had long been given up as lost to the Republican party — union members and college students, Jews and Roman Catholics, the hungry poor and the limousine liberals, independents and lifelong Democrats, the solid South and the industrial North.

And all of this although Nixon has barely budged from the White House to show the colors, and has not allowed McGovern's name to cross his lips.

A typical one-day campaign swing recently to the wealthier suburbs of New York City was nearly a triumphal procession for Nixon.

But only "nearly," because among the 400,000 people who lined the motorcade route and the 7,000 ecstatic Long Island Republicans at an evening pep talk, there were enough dissenters to give the president and his supporters a taste of ashes.

The dissenters were overshadowed by those who had come to cheer the president, but there were always enough of them to warn Nixon that his re-election cannot be assured until the ballots have been counted.

One held up for Nixon to see a sign that said simply, "Remember Dewey" a reminder of Harry Truman's come-from-behind victory over the excessively confident Thomas Dewey in 1948.

Several protesters had cards spelling out a statement Nixon made in October, 1968, while campaigning for his first term: "Those who have had a chance for four years and could not produce peace

No Deadlines U.S. Tells North Viets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Thursday night that "we are ready to conclude" a Vietnam peace settlement but "we are not going to allow an election deadline or any other kind of deadline to force us into an agreement which would be only a temporary truce and not a lasting peace."

In his first nationally-televised political broadcast of the United States campaign, Nixon said: "We are going to sign the agreement when the agreement is right, not one day before—and when the agreement is right, we are going to sign, without one day's delay.

● Ceasefire talk too sudden for planners. Page 8

"We have reached a substantial agreement on most of the terms of the settlement," Nixon said. "The settlement we are ready to conclude would accomplish the basic objectives" he presented on May 8—a return of all prisoners of war, "a ceasefire throughout Indochina" and the right of the South Vietnamese to determine their own future "without having a Communist government or a coalition government imposed on them against their will," he said.

Without giving details, Nixon said "there are still some issues to be resolved."

In Paris, the North Vietnamese said there will be no further negotiations with United States envoy Henry Kissinger until the United States commits itself to signing the draft Vietnam peace agreement.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong speakers denounced the Nixon administration for what they called "a breach of promises" in not signing the accord by Oct. 31, the deadline set by Hanoi.

The South Vietnamese government warned at the 165th weekly session of the peace conference that it would refuse to recognize any ceasefire agreement concluded against its will.

North Vietnamese forces led by tanks overran a South Vietnamese border camp Thursday in the central highlands of South Vietnam. Hanoi announced it had "no other choice than to step up the fight on all fronts."

Trudeau Opts To Carry On

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced Thursday night that his Liberal government will attempt to carry on in office despite Monday's federal election dead heat between the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives.

Trudeau said he will ask Governor-General Roland Michener to call Parliament into session "as soon as possible" so the government can seek a vote of confidence in the House of Commons.

The prime minister declined to predict when the new Parliament will convene, but political observers calculate that it may not be until January.

The announcement put an end, at least for now, to a political impasse resulting from the election count which gave the Conservatives and Liberals 109 seats each in the Commons.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield immediately accused Trudeau's government of displaying an "arrogant desire" to cling to power. Stanfield earlier had called on Trudeau to resign and make way for a Conservative government.

NDP leader David Lewis pledged support for the government provided it does not introduce legislation his party judges unacceptable.

The NDP would back measures to reduce unemployment and the cost of living and legislation to deal with foreign ownership. It also would fight for an end to "corporate ripoff" — the term Lewis uses for extended tax concessions to large corporations.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette forecast that Trudeau's administration will be able to remain in office at least 1½ years thanks to the support of Lewis.

Until Thursday afternoon, it appeared that the government party would end up with one seat fewer than the Conservatives. But an official count in the Quebec constituency of Drummond took a seat away from Social Credit and gave it to Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin by five votes.

A judicial recount, required

Barrett Backs Liberal Move

Premier Dave Barrett said late Thursday he believes Trudeau made a "constitutionally sound" decision to call Parliament into session. But he added it will be up to the House of Commons to make the "ultimate decision" as whether or not it will support his Liberal government.

Barrett repeated his earlier remarks to reporters that he wasn't concerned whether the Liberals or Progressive Conservatives form the next federal government. And he added NDP national leader David Lewis is now in a position of the most important politician in the nation who could become "the Canadian statesman."

"I would expect that (Lewis) would use this position wisely to support legislation which will be for the benefit of all the people of Canada," Barrett said.

The premier added he felt B.C.-Ottawa relations would remain amiable no matter who heads the government and said he was still of the opinion it would be unwise to rush into an early federal election in an effort to resolve the stalemate created by voters last Monday.

Russians Set Off Mighty N-Device

UPPSALA, Sweden (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday exploded underground a nuclear device in the "megaton class" and comparable to the U.S. Amchitka test, the Uppsala Seismological Institute reported.

Prof. Markus Baath, head of the Swedish institute, said the size of the nuclear charge could be between one and five megatons, or possibly even bigger. One megaton is equivalent in explosive force to one million tons of TNT.

The explosion in the Semipalatinsk testing area in Siberia was registered at 1:27 a.m. GMT Thursday. It measured 7.1 on the Richter earthquake scale, Baath said.

"It was a very powerful explosion," he said. "Today's test is without doubt in the megaton class and comparable to the Amchitka test a year ago."

Baath said the Soviet test was one of the most powerful, or possibly the most powerful, carried out in Semipalatinsk.

"Only two previous tests have been of comparable size," he said. "They occurred Jan. 15, 1965, and Nov. 30, 1969, both with a magnitude of 7.0 on the Richter scale."

The Soviets have carried out seven major nuclear tests of a military nature previously this year, Baath said. "But there may have been many more minor ones which cannot be detected from the outside," he added.

During all of 1971 the Russians conducted 10 nuclear tests believed to be military.

The Russians are also using nuclear devices in an area north and east of the Caspian Sea from time to time. But scientists believe these explosions are part of a peaceful project using nuclear power for a major water irrigation program.

Separatists Hit French Office

ZARAGOZA, Spain (UPI) — Basque separatists bombed the French consulate Thursday in an apparent act of vengeance for a recent crackdown on Basque extremists living in France.

Police said consul Roger Tour, 62, was critically injured and two members of his staff less seriously wounded. The bombing caused a fire which gravely damaged the downtown building housing the consulate.

German Talks In Difficulties

BERLIN — East and West German negotiations on a treaty of reconciliation ran into new difficulties Thursday, the West German negotiator said. "We truly are in real trouble," West German State Secretary Egon Bahr said as he left the East German cabinet office building in East Berlin.

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — United States space agency officials gave the go-ahead Thursday for Apollo 17 preparations to proceed on schedule toward a Dec 6 launching to the moon.

NDP Discloses Rules For Tobacco Products

The provincial government Thursday made public new regulations passed by the NDP cabinet covering labelling, packaging and sale of tobacco products.

The government repealed the tobacco advertising ban at a special session held in the last two weeks of October and passed new legislation to give itself a measure of control over companies distributing and selling tobacco products.

The new regulations state that beginning Dec. 1 all cigarette packages sold in B.C. must carry a warning message.

Three forms of warning have been approved for use in this province:

● Warning: Cigarette smoking is harmful to you.

● Warning: The Department of National Health and Welfare advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked.

● Warning: The Surgeon-General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health.

The choice of warning forms will permit the sale of American cigarettes in this province after the regulations come into effect.

On the same date, Dec. 1 next, cigarette vending machines are also required to display the warning in one of the approved forms and beginning Jan. 1, 1973, all premises where tobacco products are sold will come under the same provision.

The enabling legislation passed at the special session specifically prohibits billboard advertising of tobacco products.

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Experiments are under way to develop a "left-turning" salmon that will avoid British Columbia fishermen as they head to sea from the Strait of Juan de Fuca, turn south and keep Washington fishermen happy.

"Young chinook and coho salmon migrating seaward from Puget Sound are largely behaving as if there is a right-turn only sign posted at Cape Flattery," the state fisheries department says.

"Although this is fine for the large Canadian troll fleet plying the waters off the west coast of Vancouver Island, it is not so good for the citizens of Washington state.

"Very encouraging" evidence indicating the department may be able to produce south-migrating coho from Puget Sound resulted from fin-marking experiments at the Cowlitz River salmon hatchery, the agency said.

The stocks of coho can be raised at the hatchery — one the Toutle River stock which has been used successfully in Columbia River hatcheries for years, and the other a later-running native coho, the department said.

Several years ago, the agency said, thousands of young coho of these groups were reared, fin-marked and released from the hatchery.

"Some fascinating results came from the ocean catches of the marked coho," the agency said. "About two-thirds of the Toutle coho were taken off Oregon and California, whereas two-thirds of the native Cowlitz fish were caught off the Washington coast. The experiment was repeated, and the same thing happened again."

Since ocean distribution of coho from the Cowlitz hatchery apparently can be influenced by stock selection, "why can't the same be done from Puget Sound?" the department asked.

"We believe there is a very good chance that this can be done and experiments are now under way to discover or develop left-turnng coho salmon from Puget Sound hatcheries.

"South-migrating Puget Sound coho salmon and increased emphasis on north-migrating Columbia River fish should help to insure the quality of our coastal salmon fishing," the agency said.

Romania Explosion Kills 36 Miners

VIENNA (UPI) — A mine explosion in Romania killed 36 persons and injured 12 others Thursday, Agerpres, the official Romanian news agency said.

A gas leakage caused the explosion at the Uricani mining development in Hunedoara County, 300 miles west of Bucharest.

Unions Want B.C. Probe Of Bankrupts

The Vancouver Island Building Trades Council, claiming construction workers are being short-changed to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars, has asked B.C. Attorney-General Alex Macdonald to undertake a study of the whole area of business failures.

In a letter sent Thursday to Macdonald, council secretary John Schibli of Victoria requests that a study include: the "deplorable" rate of bankruptcies; the effect on the economy; the "practice of the repeaters who use the present laws to escape their responsibilities by going out of business one day and merely surface under another legal entity the very next day."

The letter follows by one day Schibli's report to the Victoria Labor Council that B.C. construction workers had lost an estimated $200,000 over the last two years in wages and fringe benefits.

He said at the time the trades council would ask for legislation to protect construction workers from suffering such financial losses to the large number of contracting companies that "go belly up."

In his letter to Macdonald, he said in part: "The hardship and suffering that thousands of workers' families endure as a result of these often irresponsibly contrived failures cannot, of course, be neatly catalogued in statistical terms, but are a stark reality that cries out for remedies.".

The letter informs Macdonald that the council and its affiliated unions can supply his department with "ample evidence of the abuses" and that the council has active files on five such business failures in Victoria alone.

The construction industry, according to Schibli, is among the hardest hit areas of the business world where failures are concerned.

Hot and Cold

October was one of those crazy months.

On some days, summer clothes were just fine. On others, heavy parkas barely kept out the cold.

Weather officials at the Gonzales Observatory regional climate data centre said maximum temperature of 66.7 degrees for the month on Oct. 15 shattered the previous record for that date in 1929 by two degrees.

And, the weatherman said, the 35.5-degree minimum on Oct. 30 was the lowest, other than the 1970 and 1971 lows, since 1961 and the eighth lowest on record.

Officials at Gonzales Observatory and Victoria International Airport agreed October was generally cooler, drier, sunnier and less windy than normal.

In the day time, they look quiet and innocent, but at night when no one is looking they go about their evil work.

They trespass on people's property, ruin their lawns, dirty their windows, and lay shadowy traps for unwary pedestrians.

That was the story put to Oak Bay's parks and recreatio committee meeting Thursday night, during the course of which committee members got some free legal advice on the rights of trees from Ald. John Goult.

It is not possible for a tree limb — or the owners of that limb — to be charged with trespass on another's property, even if it does encroach, he said.

If the limb is sound then the owners of that limb cannot be made to cut it off.

There's a little kicker in there, however.

If, to be neighborly, the owners of that limb give permission for it to be lopped off, and in the process it damages the neighbor's property, then they may be liable to a damage suit.

And so ended the legal lesson.

It was prompted by a spate of written protests, all concerning trees.

One tree on Dalhousie Street is sending up shoots all over the lawn, and within two feet of the house.

"Will you please have this tree taken out and the roots killed at your earliest convenience," was the request tabled by the committee, from the beleaguered householders.

Some enormous trees on Sutherland Road are also terrifying the neighbors.

The roots are pushing up the turf on lawn and boulevard and taking the goodness out of the lawn, while the leaves rain pitch on residents, visitors, cars and house windows, complained Mr. and Mrs. R. Bentley of 2109 Sutherland.

Arborist Michael Gye reported that branches are trespassing onto the Bentley property, but Goult objected to that concept.

It was decided to recommend that council remove one tree, prune another and plant another.

Another tree, which had been wounded in a previous battle (it was pruned by B.C. Hydro men) had rebounded to spread in all directions, ruining a small inoffensive holly tree in the process.

Actually, reported Gye, the tree, a London plane at 2548 Lincoln Road is in a sorry state. He recommended pruning again and council will be asked to approve that course of action.

There are some more aggressive trees out there on Beach Drive.

They have grown so that they cover street lights in that area, creating shadows where an unwary pedestrian could be hidden and run down by passing motorists. They will be investigated.

One tree, a flowering plum on Larkdowne Road was given a reprieve. It had grown much bigger than its neighboring trees and was obscuring part of the view for John and Ellen Martin at 3062 Larkdowne Road. The committee felt the tree should be left alone.

Many other requests for action were tabled until committee members could view the scene of alleged crimes and in other cases it was decided to recommend that the trees be pruned, removed or left alone.

The committee also spent some time on a list of suggested projects for submission for winter works program grants.

Most of the items to be recommended to council are concerned with recreation, since Mayor Frances Elford had told them they would probably receive first priority approval from the federal government.

It was also decided to recommend to council that the Uplands garbage collection route should be the first to have a newspaper pickup for recycling.

The committee was told that the scheme could go into effect two weeks from now, with papers being picked up by a special truck on the regular garbage collection day and sold directly in Victoria.

Studies May Provide First Crack at Corpse in Sky

Two Victorians Have Stars in Their Eyes

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

Somewhere out there 6,000 lightyears from Earth (don't bother looking — you'll never find them), two heavenly bodies, one believed to be a neutron and the other a star with the most fantastic temperature variation ever discovered, rotate around each other, divulging a world first in information to two Greater Victoria men of science.

The observations of Dr. David Crampton and interpretation of Dr. John Hutchings at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain concerning what Crampton calls a "double star," will be published in December in the Astrophysical Journal of the American Institute of Physics.

Hopefully, according to Crampton, their studies will eventually provide the world with its first real knowledge of the neutron star (the corpse of a star) and some kind of an insight into the life cycle of an ordinary star.

HZ Hercules

Crampton, who sat drawing diagrams in the living room of his Gordon Head home Thursday night for the benefit of a bewildered reporter, said the regular star was discovered in 1940 and given the name HZ Hercules.

Early this year the American satellite UHURU discovered there was a source of x-rays coming from the star's area. It also provided the fascinating information that every 36 days there would be a nine-day period of much more intense x-ray activity allowing for better observation.

A Flickering

That's where Crampton and Hutchings come into the picture.

With the use of the observatory's 72-inch telescope and refined calculations, they got an image of one faint star, but discovered the motions of rotation and the fact there were really two.

This was broken down to show the rotation takes 1.7 days.

"Superimposed on all of this," said Crampton, "is a flickering every one-and-a-quarter seconds."

The accepted theory is that these come from rapidly rotating neutron stars.

While he hasn't definite proof yet, Crampton is almost certain one of the objects of his attention is a neutron.

Only one other neutron was ever observed optically, he said. That was one observed in the Crab Nebula by the Chinese in 1054 AD. There was no chance then to make the study that is being made today.

The neutron is described by Crampton as the corpse of a star that has probably existed 10 billion years. It is the collapsed core of the star, minus atoms and electrons and so dense that a piece the size of a sugar cube would weigh 100 million tons.

In Rotation

The other star involved in the rotation turned out to have a temperature ranging from 6,000 degrees Centigrade on one side to 15,000 degrees Centigrade on the other.

"We have never discovered a star that has done this before to such a fantastic degree," Crampton said.

This is being caused by the suspected neutron, which he says has a surface temperature of 10 million degrees Centigrade. The sun's surface temperature is almost cool by comparison -- 6,000 degrees.

The particular interest in a neutron star in a system like this is that you can determine some of the dimensions and its properties," Crampton said.

Until Spring

Further observations can't be made until the spring because the stars are too close to the sun at the moment, he said.

From observations so far it is felt the mass of the suspected neutron (weight) is slightly more than that of the sun.

"This is consistent with what we expect from a neutron," he said.

Some very interesting questions remain to be answered by the two men, or others around the world continuing the study.

With Interest

"For instance, there is no good interpretation for the 36-day period," Crampton said. "Why does it take on the more intense X-ray system every 36 days? We don't know the answer to that."

He is looking forward with interest to one other possible finding.

"Out of this may come some theory of how a star does, in fact, evolve."

A neutron star doesn't really come into existence without the assistance of one of the galaxy's most spectacular shows, according to Crampton. This is the super nova — a large explosion.

Over a period of millions of years hydrogen is converted into helium in the core of the star. The core grows and the star swells. In the end it collapses suddenly and there is an explosion blasting away the surface portion of the star.

By the way, this usually happens somewhere every 50 years or so and Crampton says our galaxy is "overdue" for just such a show.

Heynsbroek
. . . aldermanic bid

First One In Race

A Victoria woman who has been a strong opponent of highrise development on the city's waterfront is the first person to file her papers as a candidate for alderman in Victoria in the Dec. 9 municipal election.

Joyce Heynsbroek, 44, of 1448 Vining, is a registered nurse who first sought civic election a year ago. She filed her papers Thursday with city clerk Morran Waller.

The Victoria voters' list for Saturday, Dec. 9, says Waller, this year includes 17,757 property owners, 3,432 resident-electors and 198 tenant-electors, for a total eligible of 21,387.

There is no mayoralty contest this year. Voters will elect four Victoria aldermen, while five trustees will be elected to the school board from the school district at large.

Venomous Spider Could Be Lurking in B.C.

By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Reporter

One of North America's most dangerous spiders may be lurking undetected in B.C. basements, closets, and storerooms.

The highly venomous Brown Recluse or Fiddleback spider, normally found from Kansas to the Mexico Gulf coast and from Tennessee to Oklahoma has been blamed recently for several severe illnesses in northwestern U.S.A.

Dr. Albert Turnbull, pestologist at Burnaby's Simon Fraser University told the Colonist Thursday there was no record of this spider being in the province.

"But if they have been reported in the Northwestern States they could be in B.C." Turnbull said.

He described the species as an "ordinary-looking brown spider with a leg and body span a little smaller than a dime."

It has a violin-shaped dark marking on its back.

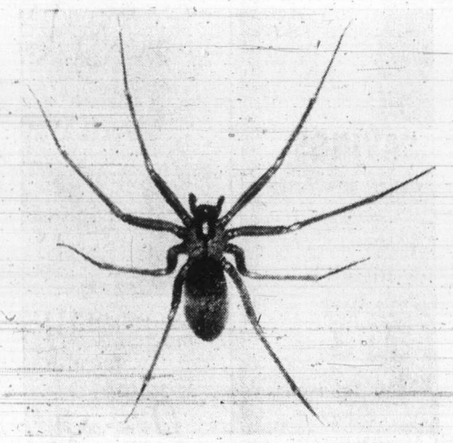

"It's a pretty nasty little spider and a person bitten may not realize it for some time. The skin and flesh around the bite starts to break down and in severe cases the area affected can reach about two-and-one-half inches in diameter," he said.

He also stressed there is no known cure for the spiders' poison.

Turnbull is one of Canada's leading authorities in the study of spiders.

An Oregon woman told doctors she believed she was bitten on the hand by a fiddleback while on a camping trip last summer in Utah.

The doctors worked all summer to save her hand. A skin graft was needed to cover the back of her hand where tendon and other tissues were destroyed. She has regained partial use of the hand after months of painful therapy.

COMMON BROWN, with dark brown violin-shaped spot on its head and about the size of a dime, the Fiddleback spider is potentially more dangerous than Black Widow.

Turnbull said the Fiddleback is not an aggressive spider but will bite if handled or trapped in clothing.

He emphasized the spider's habit of living undetected in basements of buildings.

"One time a large infestation of them was discovered in the basement of one of the buildings at Harvard University, although the spider was not known to be in Massachusetes," Turnbull said.

He also added that the building where the spiders were found had been used for the study of spiders for years.

Turnbull said the Fiddleback could be destroyed by the use of ordinary pesticides.

"The Black Widow spider is also found in B.C. and is, of course, known to be poisonous but the results of its bite are entirely different from that of the Fiddleback," Turnbull explained.

He said the Black Widow leg and body span is about the size of a quarter. Its body is shiny black and has a red-hour-glass shape on its abdomen. He also said sometimes only two red dots appear on the spider's abdomen instead of the hour-glass.

A Black Widow's bite can be lethal to young babies and also to persons in ill health.

For most persons in good health, a bite from a Black Widow can cause severe stomach cramps and high body temperature.

Like the Fiddleback, the Black Widow is a shy spider and is not aggressive.

"They only attack for food and in no way do they recognize a human as a source of food," Turnbull said.

Family Out During Fire

A fire swept through the Albert Sayers residence at 677 Sevenoaks while nobody was home Thursday afternoon and left extensive damage inside the house in its wake, Saanich fire department officials reported.

Officials said the fire originated in a front bedroom and speculated it may have been caused by an article left on top of a table lamp.

The blaze was discovered by one of the Sayers' six children — a boy about 15 years old — and the fire department received the report about 3:20 p.m.
